Editorial & Reader's Guide

Provenance, Verbatim Fidelity, Preserved Diagrams, and Dual Pagination

1. Complete Verbatim Preservation

Every English page in this volume reproduces 100% verbatim the independently reviewed and committed English translation layer of the Translation Alignment V2 campaign (`ocr/enriched_en/page_001.txt` through `page_092.txt`). No sentences, qualifiers, invocations, divine names, numerical table entries, printed folio markers, blank-leaf notices (`[NO VISIBLE TEXT]`), or philological annotations (`[UNCLEAR: ...]`) have been omitted, abridged, or paraphrased.

2. Preservation of Manuscript Diagrams, Magic Squares & Star Asterisms

Plain-text OCR files cannot convey the spatial geometry of al-Būnī's concentric celestial wheels (dawā'ir), radial archangelic inscriptions, multi-chambered talismanic panels, magic squares (awfāq), circular seals (khawātim), or the inline star-dot constellation asterisms of the twenty-eight lunar mansions. All 39 visual figures and plates across Physical Pages 1–92 have been extracted directly from the 300-DPI archival scans and anchored beside their corresponding passages.

3. Typography & Dual Pagination

Soft-wrapped OCR prose lines are joined into justified book paragraphs while preserving structural headings, liturgical lines, and tables intact. Inline editorial notes (`[UNCLEAR: ...]`) appear verbatim in smaller italic type so continuous reading remains effortless. Every manuscript page carries a milestone banner citing both its Physical Scan Page (1–92) and its Printed Cairo Folio, while sequential PDF Page Numbers appear in the running footer and Table of Contents.

Part One

of the book

Shams al-Maʿārif

al-Kubrā

and Laṭāʾif al-ʿAwārif

by Shaykh Aḥmad ibn ʿAlī al-Būnī; may Allah sanctify his spirit; he died in the year 622, six hundred and twenty-two.

It is stated in Kashf al-Ẓunūn: The purpose of this book is to make known through it the nobility of the Names of God Most High, and what has been deposited in their sea of various wisdom-jewels; and how to work with the Names and invocations, and what follows them, of the letters of the sūrahs and verses, so that through them one may reach the Divine Presence without toil and reach through them the desires of this world without hardship. End quote.

❖ And following it ❖

The Epistle of the Balance of Justice on the Purposes of the Rules of Geomancy ❖ the Epistle of the Openings of Desires on the Particular Properties of the Planets' Times ❖ the Epistle of the Flowers of the Meadows on the Signs of the Zodiac ❖ the Epistle of the Subtleties of Indication on the Special Properties of the Wandering Planets ❖ authored by the eminent, distinguished scholar, Sayyid ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ḥusaynī al-Adhamī

❖ May Allah benefit the Muslims through his knowledge. Amen.

❖ Notice ❖

Since the book Shams al-Maʿārif, owing to the people's great need for it, has been printed many times (in Egypt and India), and the Egyptian printing presses took care to correct it, yet it was not free from errors and distortions because correct copies were unavailable.

This time it has been printed after collation with copies from “Egypt and India” and another copy in the handwriting of Hajj Mirza Husayn, with careful correction by a committee of eminent Egyptian scholars; it was corrected again by the great scholar Shaykh ʿAbd al-Raḥmān al-Jazīrī. Thus, praise be to Allah, this edition has become one of the finest copies in both printing and correction.

And to Allah belong the Most Beautiful Names, so call upon Him by them.

In the name of Allah, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful.

A testimony of pre-eternity; from the light of this testimony the chosen ones drew knowledge. Understand this, and the order that appeared in the two testimonies connected with the noble angels and those endowed with knowledge. This is the testimony of eternity, for within them lies the secret of these two testimonies: the witness of the two realms and what they deposited through the secret of connection with revelatory unveilings; and for every form there is a path to all wisdoms.

I ask Allah, the Living, the Self-Subsisting, to make it sincere and an accepted offering before my private supplication, and to let its spirit of comfort accompany me in my movements and my dwelling; to make the path clear to me and to you; and to bestow upon us and upon you the lights of realization. Indeed, this mercy-filled flash and the radiant, illuminating suns are the paths of the knowers, the way of the truthful, and the broad road of the righteous, leading to the holy presence of the Lord of the worlds, Lord of lords, Opener of causes, and Lifter of the veil, [UNCLEAR: the following epithet literally reads "originated without a model"; its attachment and intended reading are uncertain], transcendent above forms, everlasting, never ceasing to be described by the attributes of beauty, eternally existent in pre-eternity, raising the higher realms by His determination and wisdom, and spreading the lower realms by His power and will. There is no god but Him, the Great, the Most High, veiled by the veils of light, hidden from all secrets, concealed from the enclosures of vision; yet He perceives all vision through His inward aspect, by His Essence, in His pre-eternity. He became manifest through His attributes in His eternity, revealed Himself through His family [UNCLEAR: the intended referent of "His family" in this clause is uncertain] in His sempiternity, and manifested through His acts in His eternity. He is the First in pre-eternity, the Last in eternity, and the Manifest in sempiternity. He is exalted above substances and accidents, bodies and parts, and being subject to purposes. Directions and regions cannot contain Him; the succession of cycles does not follow Him, and the passing of night and day does not annihilate Him. I praise Him, glorified is He, the Most High. Everything with Him is measured. He is the Knower of the unseen and the witnessed, the Great, the Most High. And I bear witness that there is no god but Allah alone, without partner. It is a testimony that accompanies souls with steadfast confirmation in the barzakh realms. And I bear witness to you [UNCLEAR: the following damaged wording mentions His creation counting or encompassing it, living and dead, seeing the dead, and provisions; the grammatical relationships are uncertain] . The Knower of what has passed and what is to come, and the Reviver of the dead after they have become remains. And I bear witness that Muhammad is His servant and Messenger, the sun of the religious community and the deliverer of the servants from polytheism and humiliation.

Applications of the letters and their retreats in general and in detail (the thirty-ninth chapter) in the explanation of the Beautiful Names of God as set out by way of explanation and detail (the fortieth chapter) in the individual supplications recited throughout all the nights and times

(The first chapter concerning the dotted letters and what is in them of secrets and hidden meanings)

I say, and with God is success and guidance, the aims of the seekers have been divided into two parts, worldly and otherworldly, and each one of them is divided into sections according to the purposes. And people have spoken concerning the opposition or correspondence of times and the observation of the stars and the exercises and the acts of talismans before the setting down of this book and the discourse upon it. And this science is expansive; many people have desired it, especially those who found it to have a great effect. So I wanted to address this with an account that operates like a form of perception in the practices of those versed in this science. And the early sages spoke concerning it, and many people agreed to that saying. If such practices multiply in this world, they harm in the Hereafter. What I mention to you will benefit you in this world and the Hereafter.

(Chapter concerning the mention of the dotted letters: are they the roots of speech and its foundation, and by them its building is raised)

(And know) that for numbers there are secrets just as for letters there are effects, and that the upper world supplies the lower world; so the world of the Throne supplies the world of the Kursi, and the world of the Kursi supplies the sphere of Saturn, and the sphere of Saturn supplies the sphere of Jupiter, and the sphere of Jupiter supplies the sphere of Mars, and the sphere of Mars supplies the sphere of the Sun, and the sphere of the Sun supplies the sphere of Venus, and the sphere of Venus supplies the sphere of Mercury, and the sphere of Mercury supplies the sphere of the Moon, and the sphere of the Moon supplies the sphere of heat, and the sphere of heat supplies the sphere of moisture, and the sphere of moisture supplies the sphere of cold, and the sphere of cold supplies the sphere of dryness, and the sphere of dryness supplies the sphere of air, and the sphere of air supplies the sphere of water, and the sphere of water supplies the sphere of earth, and the sphere of earth supplies the sphere of Saturn. In the upper realm, the letter is jīm, and its number is three in general; in detail it is fifty-three: mīm is four and bāʾ is three [UNCLEAR: these are the source values, but their numerical relationship is inconsistent]. It also consists of three letters; in the lower realm it is the letter ṣād, whose number is ninety, while its general number in the upper realm is five, represented by hāʾ. It has a fivefold wafq. The sphere of Jupiter has six, represented by wāw, and it has a sixfold wafq. The operation of the sphere of Venus uses the letter zāy and a sevenfold wafq. The operation of the sphere of Mercury has number eight, represented by ḥāʾ, and an eightfold wafq. The operation of the sphere of the Moon has number nine, represented by ṭāʾ, and a ninefold wafq. Saturn has the triangle well known among scholars; understand this.

(Chapter concerning the correspondence of the human essence)

So the Throne has the letter alif, and the Kursi has the letter ba, and Saturn has the letter jim, and so on to the Moon, as stated above.

(Chapter) And the letters are of kinds: some begin on the right—the Arabic letters—and some begin on the left—the Roman, Greek, and Coptic letters. And every writing on the right is connected, and every writing on the left is separate, so understand that. The letters number twenty-eight, excluding lām-alif; together they complete twenty-nine, the number of the lunar mansions. Since fourteen of the mansions appear above the earth, these letters include fourteen that assimilate with the lām of the definite article: tāʾ, thāʾ, dāl, dhāl, rāʾ, zāy, sīn, shīn, ṣād, ḍād, ṭāʾ, ẓāʾ, lām, nūn

Among them is what appears together with them, and they are fourteen letters, as you see: alif, bāʾ, jīm, ḥāʾ, kāf, mīm, ʿayn, ghayn, fāʾ, qāf, hāʾ, wāw, and yāʾ [UNCLEAR: the source says fourteen but lists only thirteen letters]. The first of the letters is alif, followed by other letters [UNCLEAR: the examples literally read "acts of obedience, definitions, and rāʾs"; their intended connection to the letters is uncertain], on the side of alif and what follows it. When an observer considers the letters, he finds them corresponding within the soul before they exist in physical form, so understand. Alif among the letters is the one among the numbers, and numbers are a subtle spiritual power. Reliance upon it is therefore among the secrets of utterances, just as letters are among the secrets of actions. Numbers in the human world have secrets and benefits that He, exalted is His power, has arranged as with the arrangement within letters of secrets of benefit such as supplication, incantation, and whatever else whose effect becomes manifest to the world through various names. (And know) that letters have no time that confines them; rather, they act through spiritual discipline and special properties for whoever wishes, while numbers act through talismans and are connected to higher-world correspondences. (As for the letter dāl,) it has the numerical value four. Whoever constructs a figure should multiply 4 by 4 and place within it the correspondence of Monday—the day the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, was born, the day he was commissioned, and the day he died—under the moon's exaltation at three degrees of Taurus, free from malefic influences. Let the hour belong to the moon, and write it after complete purification and two cycles of prayer, reciting Āyat al-Kursī and al-Ikhlāṣ one hundred times, on pure parchment. Whoever carries this wafq with him will have memorization and understanding made easy for him by God Most High, and his rank will be magnified before the upper and lower worlds alike. If a prisoner carries it, he will be freed by permission of God Most High. Whoever carries it on a banner will defeat the enemies among the unbelievers and aggressors. Whoever carries it and disputes with someone through it will overcome and subdue him. Its numerical arrangement is 4 by 4, and its form is made by multiplying 4 by 4. It belongs to the four elements—fire, air, earth, and water—which are yellow bile, phlegm, blood, and black bile. These are four, not [UNCLEAR: the following source word is rabaʿa; the intended contrast is uncertain]; thus it has the power of the temperaments and their balance. This noble letter appears especially in the name of God Most High, al-Dāʾim, and in His name al-Wadūd. Nothing precedes dāl in al-Dāʾim, [UNCLEAR: the following incomplete clause connects this with the two noble, generous names Aḥmad and Muḥammad, then speaks of permanence as the final limit of its beginning and of what follows dāl for permanence; the grammatical connections are uncertain] . It was placed first in His name al-Dā’im because He possesses permanence at both beginning and end, and He granted His servants a share in enduring existence after annihilation in the Hereafter. This letter belongs to the Throne because its existence does not change: it is the first world of originated things, the first world, and the place to which spirits ascend. In it are the degrees of intellects and the lights of mercy. Some people who know God Most High have disclosed this in connection with the portion allotted to Ḥārithah, may God Most High be pleased with him, when the Messenger of God, peace and blessings be upon him, asked him, “How did you awake, O Ḥārithah?” Ḥārithah replied, “O Messenger of God, I awoke a true believer.” The Messenger of God, peace and blessings be upon him, asked, “What is the reality of your faith?” Ḥārithah replied, “I awoke having presented myself to the world; its stones and gold, its living and dead, its rich and poor, had become equal to me. It was as though I were looking upon the Throne of the Merciful unveiled, while people were being driven to the reckoning, to Paradise, and to the Fire.” The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said to him, “You have understood, so remain steadfast.” The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, also said concerning spirits: “When they separate [UNCLEAR: bānat can also mean “become apparent”; what the spirits separate from is not stated] in a state of purity from ablution, they remain prostrating beneath the Throne.” (The letter dāl) has among its secrets permanence and abiding existence. (As for al-Wadūd,) it is a name derived from wudd. Wudd is a shared term: it is the outward aspect of love, while love is the inward aspect of wudd. The beginning of wudd is affection. Wudd is divided into outward and inward: its outward is wudd and its inward is love. Wudd dwells in the heart and is the heart's most revealing world. Al-shaqq is a subtlety between love and wudd; its dwelling is shaghaf [UNCLEAR: the term al-shaqq is uncertain in this context, and the next fragment reads “most beloved/love, the inward aspect of passion” without a secure grammatical connection] ; its dwelling is the fu’ād, because the heart has three cavities. One is in its upper part, formed from its denser substance; it is a radiant light and is the place

The locus of Islam and the meanings of the letters there is difficult to explain; it is also the locus of the speaking faculty in the human being that governs the meanings of the will issuing from the soul. The second cavity is in the middle of the heart. It is the place of reflection and remembrance, a radiant light, the place of tranquility, and the place of the imagination in what the spirit casts into it. The third cavity is at its far end; it is the most delicate and subtle of them. It is called the fu’ād, and it is the place of faith, intellect, light, agency, secrets, the balance of the intellect, the subtleties of wisdom, and the life of nature through subtle heat. Therefore, this fu’ād has a luminous eye through which it perceives the realities of the malakūt, the secrets of the higher worlds, particulars and universals, and the measures of realities. It is the place of gifted lights and the secrets of the higher worlds. That is the insight by which it sees, concerning which God Most High says: “It is not the eyes that are blind, but the hearts within the chests.” The middle cavity, which is the place of passionate love, has a luminous eye through which the object of seeking is perceived. From it arise earnestness in seeking and longing for the sought thing. Because of its subtlety, it attaches more quickly to persons. Through it the world of visible dominion and all that it contains of the creation of God Most High is unveiled, and through it appreciation of beautiful things takes place. Then the first cavity has a luminous eye through which one looks upon the secrets of sensory things, the states of composite beings, and the realities of letters and their secrets, as well as the immense things God Most High has deposited in them: the secrets of the Divine Names and the realities of their meanings. Through it, this becomes a gift to the servants of God Most High and a means of glorifying God Most High by knowing them through Him and through what He has bestowed upon it by unveiling the secrets of sensory things. These are all the insights of the hearts, although people differ in the ways matters differ. It was mentioned earlier, in the discussion of the times of insights and the subtleties of inner secrets, that the spirits of revelation in the Book of God are three: the Spirit of the Trustworthy One, the Spirit of Holiness, and the Spirit of the Command. The Spirit of the Trustworthy One indicates the first cavity because it is the intermediary between utterance and the tongue. It is the first rank of revelation in its descent, each according to what God has allotted to it of inspiration and revelation upon the hearts. After it comes the Spirit of Holiness, which consists of the lights of what reaches the second rank of the heart from the Preserved Tablet. Through it faith and intellectual insight are established, and the lights of wisdom, the lights of spiritual sources, and the subtleties of faith appear. Then there is the second rank, which is the locus of the Most Holy; it is also the locus of hearing and the locus of intellect. God Most High says to His Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him: “You cannot make the dead hear, nor can you make the deaf hear the call.” This does not refer to the death of the senses; rather, it refers to the death of unbelief and disobedience. Nor does deafness refer to the ears, because the faculty of hearing is present. Rather, it refers to the hearing within the fu’ād, which is the locus of intellect and the place where the Spirit of the Command descends, signifying empowerment and the reality of union. No one but Muḥammad was singled out for this descent, peace and blessings be upon him. We have explained the medicines of the hearts, their treasuries, their lights, and their insights in our book entitled Mawāqif al-Ghāyāt fī Asrār al-Riyāḍāt. Consult it; you will find it well-grounded, if God Most High wills. God Most High says: “Indeed, the Most Merciful will appoint affection for those who believe and do righteous deeds.” That is, affection will be placed in their hearts, taking hold of their whole being, and they will love Him. This is because they cultivate their hearts with various forms of remembrance and [UNCLEAR: the following phrase about modes/readings is corrupt], leaving none of the works of the heart without strengthening themselves through it. They cultivate their souls only by cutting off habits and familiar customs, until affection from God Most High is obtained for them. Then their speech becomes speech of wisdom and their movement an ascent through degrees. They cultivate their spirit with the realities of faith, the subtleties of Islam, the light of the secrets of the sacred law, and the religious lights, until the effects of affection appear upon the spirit. It then looks toward the return, unveiling what God Most High has prepared of every kind of bliss for His friends and punishment for His enemies. Its nature increasingly seeks return to God Most High and yearns for Him. Its intellect increases in reflection upon created things and upon the secrets of His signs that God has deposited in them, and it cultivates it by abandoning everything...

ties and familiar customs; he cultivates it by obeying His command while in a state of purity; He commands only beneficial good. When the heart turns toward love, it returns to contemplate the secrets of the wonders of the kingdom, the forms of divine address, divine revelation, and higher realities. Let us return to what we were discussing concerning the letter dāl and its benefits. Whoever writes the letter dāl thirty-five times—this is its assigned number—and writes with it the form of the square on white silk, with the moon in its house and protected from Jupiter, then surrounds it with the letter dāl thirty-five times, should place it inside a ring at that time and wear it in a state of complete purity, fasting, and inner clarity. God Most High will perpetuate provision and goodness for him. Whoever frequently invokes His name al-Dāʾim will obtain the same. We have mentioned some of the properties of His name al-Dāʾim and of the dāl in al-ḥamd in our book The Knowledge of Guidance and the Secrets of Right Guidance; consult it. (Whoever draws it) in this manner and carries it with him will attain all his aims before kings and rulers; whoever sees him will love him, and he will obtain abundant good fortune. This is how it is written on yellow silk: the moon should be in Cancer or in the house of Jupiter, protected from its influence, and it should be fumigated with anything possessing a pleasant fragrance. This is its form.

(Some of them mentioned) that whoever writes “Muḥammad, the Messenger of God (peace and blessings be upon him); Aḥmad, the Messenger of God (peace and blessings be upon him)” thirty-five times on a card after the Friday prayer and carries it with him, God Most High will grant him strength for obedience, assistance in receiving blessing, and protection from the promptings of devils. If he continues looking at this card while imagining the Prophet's name, peace and blessings be upon him, Muḥammad, and his name Aḥmad, and how the two noble, exalted, honored, and revered names were completed by this noble letter, dāl, and if he continues looking at it at sunrise every day while invoking blessings upon the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, God will make easy for him the paths of obedience and the greatest happiness. This depends on acceptance, sincerity of intention, and inner purity; it is a very subtle secret. (Whoever writes) its numerical form and carries it will be protected by God Most High from harmful enemies, whatever worlds they may belong to. (Whoever writes it), erases it, and gives it to someone suffering from a persistent fever to drink: it will benefit that sufferer greatly. Whoever suffers the pain of poison from scorpions or snakes and drinks it will be protected from it by God. (Whoever writes) its form

Its numerical form, when carried with him, is a means by which God Most High protects him from harmful enemies, whatever worlds they may belong to. This is its form.

(As for the literal form,) its property is that it removes forgetfulness and sharpens understanding and intellect for whoever persists in drinking it in rainwater and bee honey. It benefits whoever complains of an ailment in the chest or ears. The moon should be in Scorpio, and Mars should regard it with an hostile aspect, on a copper tablet; and it protects him from the house [UNCLEAR: the connection of this phrase to the preceding instruction is obscure] , and it is highly effective against a scorpion's sting when its water is given to drink after the ring has been dipped into it. Since this square form is made from the sum of the four alifs, which are the secret of the intellect, the secret of the spirit, the secret of the soul, and the secret of the heart, the alif in number is one. When four is multiplied by itself, it becomes sixteen, which is the end of the detailed number, because the Throne, the Footstool, the seven heavens, and the seven earths together amount to sixteen. This number is the end of this square form, which is sixteen. Within sixteen is the even number fourteen, namely the seven heavens and the seven earths; the pair of the zodiacal signs, which are twelve; the pair of eight, namely the bearers of the Throne; the pair of six, namely the eight boundaries—above, below, behind, before, right, and left; the pair of four, namely the prophets, the truthful, the martyrs, and the righteous; and the pair of the two verses, namely the testimony that there is no god but God and that Muḥammad is the Messenger of God, peace be upon him [UNCLEAR: the blessing formula is incomplete in the source]. These are seven pairs. There is also the odd number fifteen: the Footstool, the heavens, and the earths. There is the odd number thirteen: the Pen, the Tablet, the Trumpet, the Spirit of Holiness, the Footstool, the Throne, and the seven heavens. There is the odd number eleven: the five senses in the human world—hearing, sight, smell, taste, and touch—and the six directions—above, below, right, left, behind, and before. There is the odd number nine: the human entities and the eight natures—heat, dryness, cold, and moisture. Yellow bile is hot and dry; air is hot and moist, and this is the nature of blood; phlegm is cold and moist; and black bile is cold and dry. These are eight distinct elements. There is the odd number seven: the seven spheres—Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, the Sun, Venus, Mercury, and the Moon—the seven days, the seven heavens, the seven earths, and every set of seven. There is the odd number of the pairs, namely the five prayers. There is the odd number three, namely the three abodes: the abode of this world, the abode of the barzakh, and the abode of the Hereafter. There is the odd number one, namely the oddness of the intellect.

Gather within the sixteen eight pairs and eight odd numbers. Every even number receives “klwt” and “klwt”, and each even number receives [UNCLEAR: the repeated term klwt and the completion of the clause are obscure]. * An example is: one, one, two, three, and six, and so on to the end; and likewise with the pairs. * As for the numerical form written with the natural pen, which is the Indian pen, the explanation of it will follow. This pen is more appropriate and more deserving for it, and it has wondrous secrets in the letters. The method is to place a form and put letters in the positions of the numbers. This is done after a fast of two weeks, because each is in it at night, except the part alone [UNCLEAR: the referents and syntax of this clause are obscure], with the condition of spiritual discipline, continual purity, and remembrance of God Most High. Then take a square sheet of refined tin, engraved with this literal form. Face the qiblah after praying two cycles, reciting al-Fātiḥah and Āyat al-Kursī once and al-Ikhlāṣ one hundred times, at the hour of Jupiter at sunrise. The moon must be protected from Jupiter and the Sun, and the ascendant must be Gemini. Fumigate it with mastic and white sandalwood every Thursday. Whoever wears this ring will have God make easy for him the affairs of this world, the Hereafter, and religion. He will be granted success in righteous works and acts of obedience, the means of provision will be made easy for him, and God Most High will bless what lies before him. (Whoever writes it) and places it in his shop or his box will have abundant wealth and provision, and he should use the special formula associated with it for seeking provision.

And the attainment of blessing in what follows, if God Most High wills. (Whoever writes it) on Thursday on gazelle parchment at sunrise and carries it in the sewn seam of his clothing will, by the help of God Most High, be protected from thieves, every hardship, and everything that is feared and guarded against. This is the first of the subjects of numbers. I shall tell you about some of the secrets of numbers, what God has brought forth in them, their benefits and harms, and their transformations; about the secret of the separated letters in the Book of God Most High, which are the openings of the surahs—twenty-eight surahs that none but the elect of His creation can apprehend; and about what is contained in the names of God, which are treasuries of secrets and channels of destiny; and about knowledge of God's Greatest, Great, Greatest Name and the divine secrets and attributes of lordship within it—things you will not find in a book or encounter in a register—from the pearls of knowledge and obscure secrets that I have gathered, so that whoever reads it and understands its meaning may benefit from it, if God Most High wills.

This is its form and description, as you see. It has a great supplication composed from its form and letters: alif, bāʾ, jīm, dāl, hāʾ, wāw, zāy, ḥāʾ, ṭāʾ, and yāʾ; yāʾ is added to them as the tenth. From them this noble supplication is arranged, as follows:

O God, I ask You by all Your Most Beautiful Names, those of them that I know and those that I do not know: O He, O One, O Singular, O Guide, O Lord, O Creator, O All-Seeing, O Originator, O Expander, O Everlasting, O Majestic, O Everlasting, O Inheritor, O Loving, O Living, O Wise, O Forbearing, O Manifest, O Manifestor, answer my supplication and fulfill my need, O Lord of the worlds.

(Since it has already been stated) that the letters are twenty-eight, corresponding to the twenty-eight lunar mansions, fourteen of them appear above the earth and fourteen beneath the earth. When one mansion rises, its counterpart—the fifteenth—rises, and so it continues forever. Therefore, the letters are fifteen dotted letters and fourteen undotted letters. The dotted letters are as follows: bāʾ, thāʾ, jīm, khāʾ, dhāl, zāy, shīn, ḍād, ẓāʾ, ghayn, fāʾ, qāf, nūn. The undotted letters are as follows: alif, ḥāʾ, dāl, rāʾ, sīn, ṣād, ṭāʾ, ʿayn, kāf, lām, mīm, hāʾ, wāw, lām-alif.

(And know)—may God grant us and you success—that the undotted letters are the mansions of good fortune, while the dotted letters are the mansions of misfortune. A letter with one dot is closer to good fortune; one with two dots is midway among misfortunes; and one with three dots is a greater misfortune, like shīn and tā’. Reflect on this.

(And know) that the mansions have different arrangements in the divine circle, with none resembling another. God created the moon round, and likewise the sun, for a hidden secret that cannot be explained, because disclosing the secret of lordship is unbelief. When the moon descends into the mansion of al-Naṭḥ, it has signs that indicate it, and a lengthy discussion will follow in part. But walls have ears, and concealment is best in this matter. Understand what I have indicated and reflect upon it; you will be guided.

(Chapter Two: On contraction and expansion and the arrangement of works in times and hours)

(Know)—may God grant me and you success in obedience to Him and understanding the secrets of His Names—that God Most High mentioned the sun and the moon in His Mighty Book, with the words of Him, Most High: “Each floats in an orbit.” This is because when the moon is in the mansion of al-Naṭḥ, it has the letter alif and is connected with the secret of alif. When it descends into that mansion, the spirituality of alif becomes manifest from it, and anger appears throughout the parts of the world, most of all among the nobles of the people of the world and their greatest. Every creature finds coercion and anger within according to its own kind; whoever examines that finds it. Therefore, a person should remain still at that hour, occupy his limbs with worship of God Most High, increase supplication and remembrance, and maintain purity throughout that period.

And say:

alif	yā-hā’	yā-dāl	dāl

And before the period, some distress of the souls occurs within it, so that a person does not know the cause of his constriction and becomes perplexed within himself. This is because alif is the first rank of the units in numbers and letters, with no ambiguity in it. Therefore disturbance occurs in the lower world; understand this. It can be used to distress and constrict whomever you wish to distress among the worldly people of tyranny and arrogance, since it is suited to causing his distress and constriction. The letter alif contains heat and dryness; it is the aspect of the red one, and the red one is hot and dry, its nature is fire—burning and restraining. If you invoke hot, dry names in accordance with its nature, this is done when the moon is in al-Naṭḥ, rising on the eastern horizon, with the moon in it; what was mentioned proves true [UNCLEAR: source symbol] .

Whoever writes the letter alif one hundred and eleven times on red copper, iron, or a shard of pottery [UNCLEAR: source verb] , over the name of the person whom he wishes to distress, and buries it in that person's house after fumigating it with something of its kind, should make heat corresponding to the letter present in it and invoke the names one hundred and eleven times, which are the numbers assigned to it. Take the letters of the name of the person whom you wish to distress, expand them, and determine which of the four natures predominates in his name: heat, dryness, cold, or moisture. Take the hot and dry letters from his name and place them before you on a tablet. Add to them the letters of Mars and the Moon, make from them a name among the Names of God Most High, and invoke it with the stated number. Concentrate your intention on his mouth and his subjugation; that will happen [UNCLEAR: source symbol] .

For example, Zayd and ʿAmr: arrange the letters like this—mīm, rāʾ, wāw; mīm, dāl, yāʾ, khāʾ, nūn, ṭāʾ, ḥāʾ, qāf, mīm, rāʾ—separated and expanded. These are fourteen letters according to the source, including fiery, airy, earthy, and watery letters; [UNCLEAR: the source's classification immediately following this list] , namely wāw, yāʾ, and nūn. Among the moist letters there is one, namely qāf. The repeated hot letters are four: mīm, mīm, and ṭāʾ [UNCLEAR: the source's count/list] . The dry letters are ḥāʾ, ʿayn, dāl, dāl, and ḥāʾ. The hot letters number three and the moist letters one. Thus the fourteen letters are confined here, and heat and the heat of dryness predominate among them.

From the Names of God Most High there emerges for us this ʿazīmah:

“O Samsāʾīl, by Him who created you, fashioned you, and made you a light in His sphere—be my resource, for I have empowered you over 652 and as a helper to me in what I desire of vengeance against so-and-so and so-and-so, and the loss of his senses. Mix the heat of Mars into the heat of his nature, stir up the heat of fire within him by crushing his joints, constrict his belly with it, bind his intellect with it, leave upon him the torment and fire of Mars, and stir up the fires, headache, and every other pain, by the right of Mars and the ill omen and fire within it, and by the right of your lofty, exalted station—dry, hot, and avenging against the tyrannical oppressors and transgressors. Send to him the spirit of this chosen one, the tyrannical, arrogant transgressor, and settle in his body the torment of ailments; subject his inward self to coercion, wrath, and vengeance. I have sworn you by the Powerful, the Encompassing, the Manifest, the Living, the Self-Subsisting, the Light, the Faithful, the Advancer, the Delayer, the Emitter of Lights, and the Giver of Secrets; by the right of fire and sparks and the Red Planet; and by the right of God, the One, the Subduer: respond obediently and swiftly to the Names of the Lord of the worlds.”

(The first mansion,) al-Sharṭayn, has the letter alif and a compliant wafq. Its planet is Mars and its servant is the red one. It is a letter of powerful effect: when you multiply it by itself, it manifests obedience, and it is the end of the units. (Know) that this noble letter has power over the disposition of all the other letters because it is like alif; understand this.

(Among its properties) for love: write “kābāynāh” at a fortunate hour. If you combine the name of the person for whom you intend the operation with the letters of the wafq, the result is more beautiful and stronger in effect. This ʿazīmah says: “I have sworn you, O Samsāʾīl, and your servants and helpers …”

“From the upper and lower realms and all the servants of the letter alif—[I adjure you] to hear, obey, and stir up so-and-so and so-and-so—by the right of what I have sworn you by, by the right of the letter alif and the secrets that God has placed in it, which no one perceives except those who know God Most High, and by the right of Abjad and the properties within it: respond obediently, as I have called you to do, and by what I have sworn you by. This is its form, as you see; understand, and you will be guided.”

Apply this by analogy to whatever works and actions suit it; your work will succeed, and God grants success to what is right. If you desire works of corruption, do as we first described: hatred, destruction, ruin, and whatever resembles them. Apply the same analogy and act, and you will attain the intended result. God speaks the truth, and He guides the way.

This is the invocation of the letter alif with which you invoke the preceding number:

“Glory be to You; there is no god but You, O Lord of everything, its Inheritor, and the earth [UNCLEAR: the connection of the final words is incomplete] .”

(The second mansion,) the mansion of al-Buṭayn, belongs to the letter bā’. When the moon descends into it, a spiritual force descends from it by the command of God Most High, suitable for anger and for what was mentioned earlier. Medicine is drunk in it, and the nobles, worldly people, and kings of the earth become active in it, because it is the second face of Aries and the face of the Sun. Its exaltation is there at nineteen degrees of it, on the fourth day of April. The Sun is fortunate, although hot and dry. Its fortune and exaltation in this face make it suitable for working for acceptance, approaching kings, and whatever is sought from them, for needs are fulfilled. Work for affection, acceptance, and attracting hearts; bring them forth through it. It is also suitable for the practice of the wisdom-crafts, golden elixirs, and their preparation.

(The third mansion,) the mansion of al-Thurayyā, has the letter jīm. When the moon descends into it, a spiritual force descends from it compounded of heat, moisture, and cold. It has a moderate fortune, is good for travel, for associating with nobles, for approaching the great ones, the lords of the world, and people of the pen, because al-Thurayyā is a dense gathering of stars.

Therefore, the conjunction described above was good. It has a great wafq, prepared during its exaltation and carried. Through it, Abū Jaʿfar al-Barmakī was accepted by al-Rashīd and obtained what he wanted from him. Whoever carries it, when he enters with it before kings and great ones, obtains what he seeks from them, and no one opposes him in what he wants. This is its form; understand, and you will be guided. God knows best.

(The fourth mansion,) the mansion of al-Dabarān, has the letter dāl. When the moon descends into it, an evil spiritual force descends from it. Perform in it the harmful and corrupt works appropriate to it and to such purposes.

(The fifth mansion,) the mansion of al-Haqʿah, has the letter hāʾ. When the moon descends into it, a spiritual force mixed with moderate heat descends from it. Perform works of goodness in it, along with some of their opposite.

(The sixth mansion,) the mansion of al-Hanʿah, has the letter wāw. It is a fortunate mansion, suitable for affection and reunion between those who are far apart, because a good spiritual force descends with it, helping illnesses through treatments and assisting works of piety, righteousness, and success.

(The seventh mansion,) the mansion of al-Dhirāʿ, has the letter zāy. When the moon descends into it, a good spiritual force descends from it, helping illnesses through treatments. Perhaps whoever persists in its remembrance will have something of the unseen kingdom opened to him. It is good for retreats and the pursuit of truth, and it is suitable for all works.

(The eighth mansion,) the mansion of al-Nathrah, has the letter ḥāʾ. When the moon descends into it, a spiritual force appears from it that does not assist goodness; perform in it works of corruption.

(The ninth mansion,) the mansion of al-Ṭarfah, has the letter ṭāʾ. When the moon descends into it, a spiritual force like the preceding one descends from it.

(The tenth mansion,) the mansion of al-Jabhah, has the letter yāʾ. When the moon descends into it, a spiritual force mixed between good and evil descends from it; perform in it what is appropriate to it.

(The eleventh mansion,) the mansion of al-Zubrah, has the letter kāf. When the moon descends into it, a spiritual force suitable for the growth of provisions and the pursuit of needs descends from it; perform in it what is appropriate to it.

(The twelfth mansion,) al-Ṣarfah, has the letter lām. When the moon descends into it, a spiritual force mixed between good and evil descends from it; perform in it what is appropriate to it.

(The thirteenth mansion,) the mansion of al-ʿAwāʾ, has the letter mīm. When the moon descends into it, a spiritual force descends from it in which nothing moves except for sailing the sea, and nothing else.

(The fourteenth mansion,) the mansion of al-Simāk, has the letter nūn. When the moon descends into it, a spiritual force descends from it that does not assist goodness, so do not do anything in it at all.

(The fifteenth mansion,) the mansion of al-Ghafr, has the letter sīn. When the moon descends into it, a good spiritual force descends from it, assisting all worldly and otherworldly movements. Do whatever you wish in it; your work will succeed.

(The sixteenth mansion,) the mansion of al-Zubānā, has the letter ʿayn. When the moon descends into it, a mixed spiritual force descends from it; nothing moves in it except goodness.

(The seventeenth mansion,) the mansion of al-Iklīl, has the letter fāʾ. When the moon descends into it, there descends

From it descends a spiritual force that does not assist in doing good; perform in it what suits the righteous affairs of this world, and you will prosper.

(The eighteenth mansion,) the mansion of al-Qalb, has the letter ṣād. When the moon descends into it, a spiritual force descends from it that assists good actions; perform in it whatever righteous works are suitable.

(The nineteenth mansion,) the mansion of al-Shawlah, has the letter qāf. When the moon descends into it, a mixed spiritual force descends from it; no worldly activity should be undertaken in it.

(The twentieth mansion,) the mansion of al-Naʿāʾim, has the letter rāʾ. When the moon descends into it, a pure, mixed spiritual force descends from it that purifies hearts and gladdens the soul. It is good for everything attempted in it concerning the affairs of this world and the Hereafter.

(The twenty-first mansion,) the mansion of al-Baldah, has the letter shīn. When the moon descends into it, a mixed spiritual force descends from it. It is suitable for nothing in the affairs of this world; activity in it brings neither benefit nor harm.

(The twenty-second mansion,) the mansion of Saʿd al-Dhābiḥ, has the letter tāʾ. When the moon descends into it, a mixed spiritual force descends from it. It is suitable for nothing in the affairs of this world; activity in it brings neither benefit nor harm.

(The twenty-third mansion,) the mansion of Saʿd Bulaʿ, has the letter thāʾ. When the moon descends into it, a spiritual force of moderate nature descends from it. Perform all works of goodness in it.

(The twenty-fourth mansion,) the mansion of Saʿd al-Suʿūd, has the letter ḥāʾ. When the moon descends into it, a fortunate spiritual force, favorable for activity and of moderate nature, descends from it and assists every good action. Do whatever good work you wish in it.

(The twenty-fifth mansion,) the mansion of Saʿd al-Akhbiyah, has the letter dhāl. When the moon descends into it, a fortunate spiritual force descends from it, assisting every good action. Do whatever good work you wish through it.

(The twenty-sixth mansion,) the mansion of al-Farʿ al-Muqaddam, has the letter ḍād. When the moon settles into it, a fortunate spiritual force descends from it, assisting every good action. Do whatever you wish in it.

(The twenty-seventh mansion,) the mansion of al-Farʿ al-Muʾakhkhar, has the letter ẓāʾ. When the moon descends into it, a mixed spiritual force descends from it; follow in it the endeavor and the causes.

(The twenty-eighth mansion,) the mansion of al-Rashā, has the letter ghayn. When the moon descends into it, a good, praiseworthy, wholesome spiritual force descends from it, assisting the pursuit of knowledge. Supplication in it is answered for a response, and righteous works performed in it are complete.

So look, my brother, at the benefits that God Most High has established through the letters. Since the speech of God Most High is composed from them, the Names of God Most High are ordered through them, and through them His address is understood, the meaning within them is the spiritual force descending from the mansions.

Just as the Mighty Qurʾān contains verses of mercy and verses of punishment, the verses of mercy are fortunate angels in relation to the one shown mercy through them, and the verses of punishment are angels of punishment felt by the one punished through them. There are also verses requiring promise and threat; these are what are called the mixed spiritual force. This applies only to the human being, not to the angels, for there is no deficiency in the angels and they are pure good. Nor does this contradict the human being's being pure good—the Name subsisting in him [UNCLEAR: the referent of the Name is obscure] —while pure evil is the disbeliever and mixed good is the sinful believer, concerning whom God Most High said: “And others have acknowledged their sins; they mixed a righteous deed with another that was evil; perhaps God will turn to them in repentance.”

This is the foundation of the secrets in the letters. The cycles revolve around the point, displaying composition, then through the cycles of the zodiac and into the world. Every mansion, every spiritual force, and every letter gathers at the point for forty days, and then likewise through the remaining mansions. The final letters are spiritual letters that gather good fortune and misfortune. If not for this differentiation of the letters and the celestial cycle, human beings would not know the causes of happiness and misery, the causes of misfortune, or the causes of mixture and falling behind. All of this branches from the children of Adam.

(Section)

(Section) Since these mansions require the twelve signs of the zodiac for His wisdom to appear in them, the twelve letters are arranged in six divisions. They are the letters of “There is no god but God,” as follows: lām, alif, lām, alif, hāʾ, alif, lām, alif, lām, alif, lām, alif, hāʾ [UNCLEAR: the source declares twelve letters but its final group alif-hāʾ makes thirteen]. They are twelve letters, corresponding to the twelve signs of the zodiac, and each sign resides in them. Just as some of the signs are fixed and some mutable, some of these letters are fixed and some mutable. Affirmation and negation alternate from existence to nonexistence, from which it comes.

These circular letters are not the sphere of the Moon, because the Moon is closer to the earth than the others, while the letters are closer to us than the Moon: they are implanted in the nature of every human being. The letters were discussed before the mansions, so there is no need to repeat them. Everything increases as the Moon increases and decreases as it decreases; this is wisdom and knowledge of its rank. Do you not see how darkness and other things increase? [SECTION MARK]

Since there are seven planets, God placed in them the secret of guidance, as He, Most High, says: “One who places a vicegerent on the earth,” and as He, Most High, says: “One who makes the angels messengers.” The powers of these seven planets are taken from the powers of the inner divisions, which are “There is no god but God.” Thus they draw from these exalted, holy celestial bodies.

These letters are hot, moist, cold, and dry. The hot letters are seven: alif, hāʾ, ṭāʾ, mīm, fāʾ, shīn, dhāl. The moist letters are seven: bāʾ, wāw, yāʾ, nūn, sīn, tāʾ, ḍād. The cold letters are likewise seven: jīm, zāy, thāʾ, ṣād, qāf, thāʾ, ẓāʾ. The dry letters are likewise: dāl, ḥāʾ, lām, rāʾ, khāʾ, ghayn. [UNCLEAR: the source calls this final list seven while displaying six letters.]

The explanation is that fire combines heat and dryness; air combines moisture and heat; water combines moisture and cold; and earth combines dryness and cold. These produce the four natures mentioned: yellow bile, blood, phlegm, and black bile. Yellow bile is the nature of fire and is dry; blood is the nature of air and is hot and moist; black bile is the nature of earth and is cold and dry; and phlegm is the nature of water and is cold and moist.

The effect of this has become evident. Some names repel fever when written; they are the cold and dry names, such as al-ʿAdl and al-Shadīd, which are entered into a sevenfold figure. Some names repel severe cold; they are the burning yellow bile. This is the form of its wafq, as you see. Understand, and you will be guided.

Do in it whatever you wish, for it is praiseworthy. The eleventh hour belongs to the Moon: perform talismans and make rings in it, and whatever resembles that. The twelfth hour belongs to Saturn: do not do anything in it, for it is inauspicious and fit for nothing except harmful purposes.

(Monday). The first hour belongs to the Moon; it is suitable for works of love, binding tongues, and attracting hearts. The second hour belongs to Saturn; it is suitable for travel and the successful fulfillment of all needs. The third hour belongs to Jupiter: [UNCLEAR: source mark] and writing the book and imitations. The fourth hour belongs to Mars; it is suitable for evil works such as falsification, nosebleeds, sickness, destruction, and what resembles that. The fifth hour belongs to the Sun; it is suitable for fulfilling needs, binding tongues, and attracting hearts. The sixth hour belongs to Venus; it is suitable for making talismans and other such things. The seventh hour belongs to Mercury; it is suitable for fulfilling needs, binding the tongue, and attracting hearts. The eighth hour belongs to the Moon; it is suitable for marriage and reconciliation between those who hate one another. The ninth hour belongs to Saturn; it is suitable for separation, moving, hatred, and the like. The tenth hour belongs to Jupiter; it is extremely fortunate and suitable for everything. The eleventh hour belongs to Mars: work in it for enmity, hatred, and shedding blood. The twelfth hour belongs to the Sun; it is suitable for binding tongues and acts of affection.

(Tuesday). The first hour belongs to Mars; work in it is for hatred, corruption, bloodletting, ailments, and diseases. The second hour belongs to the Sun; do not do anything in it at all. The third hour belongs to Venus; it is suitable for women's betrothal and marriage. The fourth hour belongs to Mercury: work in it to attract customers, and for selling, buying, and trade. The fifth hour belongs to the Moon; do not do anything in it because it is inauspicious. The sixth hour belongs to Saturn; it is suitable for writing bindings, illness, ailments, and what resembles them. The seventh hour belongs to Jupiter: do in it whatever you wish of acts of affection and love. The eighth hour belongs to Mars: do in it whatever you wish of bleeding, casting blood, ailments, and what resembles that. The ninth hour belongs to the Sun; it is suitable for binding women, love, and marriage. The tenth hour belongs to Venus: do not do anything in it, for it is not praiseworthy. The eleventh hour belongs to Mercury; it is suitable for obstructing travel and hindering marriage. The twelfth hour belongs to the Moon; it is suitable for works of hatred, corruption, moving, evil, divorce, and what resembles that.

(Wednesday). The first hour belongs to Mercury; it is suitable for acceptance and works of love. The second hour belongs to the Moon; do not do anything in it. The third hour belongs to Saturn; it is suitable for producing illnesses, bleeding, wounds, and what resembles them. The fourth hour belongs to Jupiter: do in it everything you wish of good works, for it is very good. The fifth hour belongs to Mars: work in it for quarrelling among people and evil work, for it is blameworthy. The sixth hour belongs to the Sun; it is suitable for travel by land and sea, so do whatever you wish in it. The seventh hour belongs to Venus: also do in it whatever you wish, for its actions are praiseworthy. The eighth hour belongs to Mercury; it is suitable for making children cry and writing protective amulets against the evil eye and the glance. The ninth hour belongs to the Moon; do not work in it for separation, hatred, bleeding, or the like. The tenth hour belongs to Saturn; it is good for entering upon rulers and notables. The eleventh hour belongs to Jupiter; it is good for writing wafqs, meeting rulers, whatever was, and what resembles that. The twelfth hour belongs to Mars: work in it for evil and hatred.

on land and sea, and it is suitable for every good work you wish. The seventh hour belongs to Jupiter; it is suitable for judicial matters and for meeting people of the pen. The eighth hour belongs to Jupiter; it is suitable for the Sun and for every good work. The ninth hour belongs to Mars; it is suitable for meeting princes, sultans, and rulers. The tenth hour belongs to the Sun; seek your needs from princes and officeholders in it. The eleventh hour belongs to Venus; write in it for acceptance and love. The twelfth hour belongs to Mercury; nothing at all is suitable in it, for it is blameworthy.

(Friday). The first hour belongs to Venus; work in it for incitement, and for the betrothal and marriage of women. The second hour belongs to Mercury; perform all talismans in it and whatever you wish. The third hour belongs to the Moon; do not do anything in it at all, for it is blameworthy and bad. The fourth hour belongs to Saturn; it is suitable for causing springs and wells to sink away and what resembles that. The fifth hour belongs to Jupiter; write in it for the acceptance of women, notables, and others. The sixth hour belongs to the Sun; write in it for meeting sultans and fulfilling needs. The seventh hour belongs to Venus; work in it for incitement, and for the betrothal and marriage of women. The eighth hour belongs to Mercury; perform all other works in it, for they succeed and are completed. The ninth hour belongs to the Moon; work in it for separation and moving, for it is quick in response. The tenth hour belongs to Saturn. The eleventh hour belongs to Jupiter. The twelfth hour belongs to Mars; travel in it and do whatever you wish in it.

(Saturday). The first hour belongs to Saturn; work in it for whatever acceptance and love you wish. [UNCLEAR: the source's final phrase for this hour.] The fortunate hour on this day, at the beginning of the month, is for good. The second hour belongs to Jupiter; write in it for reconciliation between people. The third hour belongs to Mars; work in it for hatred and works of evil. The fourth hour belongs to the Sun; enter upon kings in it and fulfill your needs from them. The fifth hour belongs to Venus. The sixth hour belongs to Mercury; write in it for hunting. The seventh hour belongs to the Moon; there is no good in it, and do not do anything in it. The eighth hour belongs to Saturn; work in it for ailments, diseases, and bleedings. The ninth hour belongs to Jupiter; do whatever good works you wish in it, and it will succeed. The tenth hour belongs to Mars; work in it for evil through sickness and all diseases. The eleventh hour belongs to the Sun; work in it also for acceptance and for reconciliation between spouses. [UNCLEAR: the source names no planet for the twelfth hour.] The twelfth hour is suitable for acceptance with kings, ministers, and great ones.

(And know) that [UNCLEAR: the source's phrase beginning "whoever knows from it therein" is incomplete]. Here I have explained to you what people discuss in this science, so that working with it from these aspects may be easier for you, and I have set down for you a table from which you can know the fiery, earthy, airy, and watery signs. If the Moon is in the fiery signs, then do for it what accords with it from the works of fire, and likewise with the remaining signs. Know what has come to you; this is its form. If a seeker of a need comes to you on any day, write his name, his mother's name, and the name of his object in separate letters, and arrange the third according to its element. If it is in a fiery, earthy, airy, or watery sign, perform for him a work that accords with it; otherwise, delay the work until the Moon enters the sign that is sought. If that time accords, its owner will be fortunate. Know that, and God knows best.

(And this is a great rule for knowing the Moon's sign.) Add what has elapsed from the Arabic month and add five to it; then give each sign the notation hāʾ hāʾ, beginning from the Sun's sign. Wherever the count is exhausted, that is the Moon's sign, the sign from which it derives. God knows best.

SCAN PAGE 024 · PRINTED FOLIO 18 Chapter on the Concealment of the Angels of the Letters

-- 18 --

[Chapter on the iḍmār, the concealed forms of the letter-angels without which the work is not complete]

If you desire to perform a work, examine the letters of the name of the seeker, the sought object, and the name of that day. Subtract 33 from them; if a remainder less than 33 remains, the final letter determines the iḍmār for that exact letter. The people associated with the names cannot depart from this even for the blink of an eye. This is among the most extensive operations. The form of the iḍmār of the angels is as follows.

The angel of alif is Ṭalhaṭayāʾīl, and its iḍmār consists of these letters: Hadhayūb, Samṭā, Yāsamkhalaq. The angel of bāʾ: its iḍmār is Tasīkh, Halīīj, Marīkh. The angel of jīm: its iḍmār is Mahlīīj, Salāk, Bihalūh. The angel of dāl: its iḍmār is Muḥaṭṭamatka. The angel of hāʾ: its iḍmār is Maht [UNCLEAR: the formula is fused to the following angel label in the source]. The angel of rāʾ: its iḍmār is Mahlūh, Salīmūḥ, Barākh. The angel of zāy: its iḍmār is Saʿdabuwāh, Ṭalṭam. The angel of ḥāʾ: its iḍmār is Laylā, Ṭalḥ. The angel of ṭāʾ: its iḍmār is Shamhaṭ, Salīsaḥ, Ṭamh. The angel of yāʾ: its iḍmār is Maqh, Hakahf, Suwaydaḥ. The angel of kāf: its iḍmār is Sabʿūdah, Nafṭā, Madīḥ. The angel of lām: its iḍmār is ʿAṭīṭ, Ṭamsh. The angel of nūn: its iḍmār is Madīḥ, Kalīl. The angel of sīn: its iḍmār is Ḥamṭ, Maṭlaʿ, Mamlaṭ, Jism. The angel of ʿayn: its iḍmār is Lajlīm, ʿan Fawādir. The angel of fāʾ: its iḍmār is Kayṭam, Warṭsh, Hafīẓ. The angel of ṣād: its iḍmār is Masʿūd, Hamīsh. The angel of qāf: its iḍmār is ʿAdʿaqīr, al-Ṭalḥayāsh. The angel of zāy: its iḍmār is Saṭīt, Halīl, Dahyūm. The angel of shīn: its iḍmār is ʿAslasīn, Hahfaʿal, Maḥṭ. The angel of tāʾ: its iḍmār is Yamrīlūh, Hafīṭ. The angel of thāʾ: its iḍmār is Mahfaṭ. The angel of ḥāʾ: its iḍmār is Hajīḥ, Hahyaḥal. The angel of dhāl: its iḍmār is ʿĀmiṣ, Muḥad, Salīṭ. The angel of ḍād: its iḍmār is ʿĀlamiṣ, Ṣahdaʿ, Shabāṭ. The angel of ẓāʾ: its iḍmār is Nūʿ, Radgh, Ahmūsh, Ahmūsh.

(And know) that the angels of ḍād and ṭāʾ have a single iḍmār: Wa-l-khudh [UNCLEAR: the reading and boundary of this formula are uncertain]. The angel of ghayn: its iḍmār is Saʿaltu, Kalakat, Ahyūdh, and Niʿmat. The complete set of iḍmārs is this. God, glorified and Most High, knows best what is correct. May Allah bless our master Muḥammad, his family, and his companions, and grant them peace.

[The third chapter: on the rulings of the twenty-eight celestial mansions]

Know — may Allah grant me and you success in obeying Him — that after that there are matters by which the crescent of each month can be identified in relation to each mansion. Look at the last day of the Arabic month, for the Sun and Moon will be in one mansion. Then determine, at the end of that day, whether it falls in the first, second, or third third of the Roman month, or in the first or second half. Enter the elapsed days of the Arabic month under that third or half, and you will find the mansion in which the Moon is; take note of it. Then enter the elapsed days of the Coptic month across the mansions, and you will know the mansion in which it is.

For example, suppose the crescent is in al-Sharaṭayn on the first night and seven days have elapsed from the Arabic month. If we want to know the mansion in which the Moon is on that day, we count seven mansions from al-Sharaṭayn and arrive at al-Dhirāʿ. We therefore know that the Moon is in al-Dhirāʿ. Apply the same method. This is the form of the circle, as you can see; understand, and you will be guided.

The discourse on the mansion of al-Sharṭayn: this is its form, hāʾ hāʾ, and its letter is alif. When the Moon descends in al-Sharṭayn, it is fiery and inauspicious. Works connected with worldly affairs, corruption, and bloodshed are performed in it. The sages at this time would incline toward sleep and stillness. Some of them said that in sleep a person sees what frightens him and disturbs his disposition, and that not sleeping at this time is beneficial. If you desire to perform a work, perform works of evil in it for one who deserves them. Whoever is born in this mansion will be highly corrupt. Its incense is pepper and black seed. God knows best.

(Discourse on the mansion of al-Buṭayn)

Its form is hāʾ hāʾ, and its letter is bāʾ. When the Moon descends in al-Buṭayn, which is hot and moist, a righteous spiritual being descends through it into the world by the permission of God Most High. It is suitable for matters specific to men rather than women. Perform talismans in it; alchemy is sound in it, as is every craft of high rank. It is suitable for beginning the sciences, making rings, engraving, figures and numerals, incantations for illnesses, and treatment. Whoever is born in it will live happy, rightly guided, successful, and beloved by creatures. Its incense is aloeswood, saffron, and mastic. God knows best.

(Discourse on the mansion of al-Thurayyā, and this is its form)

Its form is hāʾ hāʾ hāʾ hāʾ, and its letter is jīm. When the Moon descends in al-Thurayyā, a spiritual being mixed of heat and cold is generated from it into the world by the permission of God Most High. Perform talismans in it and what is suitable for women; manage suitable medicines and [UNCLEAR: the following source word is "coldness," with an incomplete relation to the medicines] . It is suitable for travelers, who may hope for increased profit. It is suitable for kings, marriage, and the purchase of slave women and male slaves. Everything managed in it is good, because it is the Moon's equilibrium rather than the Sun's, and everything made in it is praiseworthy.

As for the outcome: whoever is born in it will live happily, hate evil, and have a praiseworthy outcome. Whoever is born in it will live happily, hate debauchery, and love the righteous. Its incense is flaxseed and black seed. God knows best.

(Discourse on the mansion of al-Dabarān, and this is its form)

Its form is three dots (• • •), and its letter is dāl. When the Moon descends in al-Dabarān, which is earthy, a spiritual being descends into the world through it, by the permission of God Most High, and separates enmity, hatred, and corruption in the earth. Beware of seeking needs or beginning works in it. Do not make a talisman in it or devise a craft, for all works in it are bad. It is suitable only for burying the dead, burying money, concealing secrets, digging wells, and cutting channels; it is not suitable for anything else. Whoever is born in it will be blameworthy and forsaken. Its incense is sweet pomegranate peel and male frankincense.

(Discourse on the mansion of al-Haqʿah)

This is its form: three dots (• • •), and its letter is hāʾ. When the Moon descends in it, it is a mixture of fortunate and unfortunate influences. Work in it especially on antidotes to poisons and their mixtures. Do not devise a craft of the Sun or the Moon in it, plant nothing in it, wear nothing new, and do not marry in it, for its outcome is not praiseworthy. Its incense is aloeswood, frankincense, benzoin, and mastic. God knows best.

(Discourse on the mansion of al-Haqʿah • • •, and this is its form)

This is its form: three dots (• • •), and its letter is wāw. When the Moon descends in al-Haqʿah, it is a fortunate star. Work in it for affection, love, and amity; fall down in it with a fragrant scent; enter upon kings and notables; pursue their needs and whatever you want; associate with brothers; and begin the works you desire. Marry in it, drink medicine in it, buy slave women and horses in it, plant trees, build, measure, weigh, travel, sell, and buy. All of that is highly praiseworthy. Whoever is born in it will live happily and die a martyr. Its incense is qutrub and wormwood seed. God knows best.

(Discourse on the mansion of al-Dhirāʿ, and this is its form)

This is its form: three dots (• • •), and its letter is zāy. When the Moon descends in al-Dhirāʿ, it is airy, fortunate, and gentle. A righteous spiritual being descends into the world through it, by the permission of God Most High. It is suitable for beginning the sciences and righteous works, meeting scholars and worshippers, making talismans, the arts of naranjiyyāt, entering upon kings, and forming connections with noble people and brothers. Whoever is born in it will be happy, rightly guided, and successful. Its incense is celery seed and flaxseed.

(Discourse on the mansion of al-Nathrah, and this is its form)

This is its form: • • • • • • • :, and its letter is ḥāʾ. When the Moon descends in it, it is cold, mixed, and fortunate. A spiritual being descends into the world through it, by the permission of God Most High, and produces enmity, hatred, separation, and what resembles that. It is suitable for making talismans and supplicating against enemies, tyrants, rebels, and rancor. A spiritual being also moves in it; hasten there with works involving weapons of war and signaling, because it is bad and suitable for works of evil, as we have mentioned. Whoever is born in it will be unlucky. Its incense is costus and pomegranate peel. God knows best.

(Discourse on the mansion of al-Ṭarfah, and this is its form)

This is its form: three dots (• • •), and its letter is ẓāʾ. When the Moon descends in it, it is a continuously unfortunate star. A spiritual being descends into the world through it and indicates what resembles the foregoing. Do not make a talisman in it, devise a craft, enter upon kings, begin with affection, or work on wisdom. Do not dictate an oath. Solitude is better than association, and it rejects all works. Whoever is born in it will be unlucky. Its incense is nadd perfume and saffron. God knows best.

(Discourse on the mansion of al-Jabhah, and this is its form)

This is its form: seven dots (• • • • • • •), and its letter is bāʾ. When the Moon descends in it, it is cold and inauspicious, though closer to rectitude. Begin in it with works of affection, works of closeness, and approval. Moving from one place to another is suitable in it. Shaping iron and wearing it are disliked in it.

Whoever is born in it will be skilled, happy, and successful, but there will be some cunning and deceit in him. Its incense is seed

Whoever is born in it will be unlucky and marked by cunning and deceit. Its incense is male frankincense only.

(Discourse on the mansion of al-Zubānā, and this is its form)

Its form is two hāʾ marks (hāʾ hāʾ), and its letter is ʿayn. When the Moon descends in it, it is a fortunate planet. [UNCLEAR: the source's construction connects this mixed condition with an accurately landing iron blow, a dog bite, and someone against whom enemies have spoken evil, but does not make the relationship clear]; an illness may afflict his body, causing pain and making recovery arduous. Whoever is born in it will be fortunate in all his movements. Its incense is wormwood only. God knows best.

(Discourse on the mansion of al-Iklīl, and this is its form)

Its form is two hāʾ marks followed by a dot (hāʾ hāʾ .), and its letter is fāʾ. When the Moon descends in it, it is a planet mixed of fortune and misfortune. A spiritual being descends in it, drawing tribulations and hatred and bringing about evil and its opposite. Do not travel in it, marry, buy slaves, or plant trees, for its outcome is not praiseworthy. Do not tailor clothes or quarrel in it, and it is not suitable for needs. Whoever is born in it will be bad and ill-omened. Its incense is pepper, saffron, and aloeswood. God knows best.

(Discourse on the mansion of al-Qalb, and this is its form)

Its form is one hāʾ mark (hāʾ), and its letter is ṣād. When the Moon descends in it, it is a fortunate watery planet. A spiritual being descends from it and remedies what the preceding mansion damaged. It is suitable for buying weapons and instruments of war, buying beasts of burden and veterinary treatment, cutting trees and crops, plowing, bringing out buried treasure, treating animals, drinking mild medicines, phlebotomy, and cupping. Whoever is born in it will be unlucky, whether male or female, although there is some cunning in him. Its incense is the leaves of al-ihlīlaj. God knows best.

(Chapter on knowing the origins of the mansions)

This is another account, different from the preceding one. You say that its beginning is al-Sharṭayn: two separate stars, one toward the south and the other toward the north. They are the two horns of Aries, and the brighter of them is called al-Nāṭiḥ. In visual observation, when they are midway across the sky, the distance between them is ten cubits. Near the two al-Simāk is a small star that sometimes precedes them, and this is its form: 0 0 0.

As for al-Buṭayn, they are three small stars, dim and strongly variable. It is the belly of Aries, and it is small only because there are many stars in the shape of Aries. Al-Buṭayn is its belly, al-Thurayyā its rump, and al-Sharṭayn its horns. The form of al-Buṭayn is as follows: 0 0.

As for al-Thurayyā, it is seven stars: six of them are visible, and one is small and hidden, by which people test their eyesight. It was named Thurayyā from al-tharwah, meaning an abundance of dew and drizzle. It has among its names al-najm, “the star”; although numerically it is several stars, some scholars say that what is meant by the saying of God Most High, “By the star when it falls,” is al-Thurayyā, according to most opinions. [UNCLEAR: the source says that the Arabs call al-Thurayyā “mā,” but the designation is incomplete or corrupt] , even though numerically it is a group of stars. The Messenger of God, peace and blessings be upon him, referred to it as a star and said: “When the star rises, afflictions are lifted from fruits and other things.” By “the star” he meant al-Thurayyā. Among them are al-Suʿūd and al-Muqaddam, some said

When the Pleiades appear in the evening § the small-eyed one sees them as seven stars. They follow the liver of al-Ḥarrāʾ, as though they were § a splint in a knee above a wrist.

The form of al-Thurayyā is as follows: 0 0 0. § Al-Kaff al-Khaḍīb is al-Thurayyā spread out, and it has another part called al-Jazmā, which is below al-Sharṭayn. Al-ʿAyyūq is a large, blazing red star, and three stars follow behind it; [UNCLEAR: the source's naming relation to al-Aʿlām is incomplete]. They are followers of the lunar mansions, and we mention them here only because of their proximity to al-Thurayyā. §

As for al-Dabarān, it is the rump of Aries. It was called by this name, it is said, because it turned its back to al-Thurayyā. Some say that it is five stars in Taurus called Shāmah, and its form is as follows: 0 0. § It is also said to be a red star, and its form is as follows: 0. § Al-Dabarān is also called al-ʿAtīq because it resembles a great mountain. In front of it are small stars called al-Qalāṣ, meaning the young she-camels. When they gather, they appear in the form of a cow's head, and al-Dabarān follows al-Thurayyā. §

As for al-Haqʿah, it is three stars, some close to the others, and it is the head of al-Jawzāʾ, as though they were three joined fingers. Its form is as follows: 0 0 0. § It is also said to be the circle located on the side of a mount by the rider's leg. § Ibn ʿAbbās, may Allah be pleased with them both, was asked about a man who divorced his wife by the number of the stars in the sky. He said, "The al-Haqʿah of al-Jawzāʾ is sufficient for him." §

As for al-Hanʿah, it is five separated stars: two large stars with three small ones between them. Apparently, they are five, and their form is as follows: 0 0 0 0 0. § Al-Hanʿah was given this name because each one inclines toward its companion. It is said: “haʿat the thing” when you bend it. §

As for al-Dhirāʿ, it is the arm, the arm of the lion, and it consists of two luminous stars. It is also said that they are two stars with small stars between them, as though they were the lion's claws. To the eye, the distance between them is the length of a whip. They are two arms, one extended and the other clenched; the clenched one is not aligned with the arm, and the extended one is higher than al-Simāk.

The larger of them is called al-Shiʿrā al-Ghamīṣāʾ because it was unable to cross the Milky Way, and he caught up with its companion [UNCLEAR: the subject of “caught up” is unspecified], and it wept until it became dim-eyed. It is also said that it wept because it did not catch up with Suhayl. §

As for al-Nathrah, there is a small distance between them containing a patch of whiteness, as though it were pieces of cloud. It is the lion's nose. It is also said to be three stars, and its form is as follows: 0 0 0. § It lies between the lion's mouth and nostril and is called Maḥaṭṭat al-Asad, “the lion's station.” §

As for al-Ṭarfah, they are two stars in front of the forehead, and they are the lion's eye. It consists of four stars, one of them a bright star, the Yamāniyy. To the eye, the distance between every two stars is the length of a whip. It is called Izzāʾ al-Asad, “opposite the lion,” and follows al-Ṭarfah. Its form is [UNCLEAR: no form follows the source’s introductory words]. §

As for al-Jabhah, they are two stars [UNCLEAR: the comparison reads “ka-ahlā al-asad”], the place of the hair on its shoulders. To the eye, the distance between them is the length of a whip, and their form is as follows: 0 0 0. §

As for al-Simāk, they are two luminous stars: al-Aʿzal, which is one of the lunar mansions, and al-Simāk al-Rāmih, which is not one of the lunar mansions. It is said that they are the lion's two legs, and it is also said that they are the lion's two shanks, each being the other shank. With al-Rāmih there is a star in front of it, which is its spear. Al-Aʿzal is isolated from the stars, with no star near it. It was called al-Aʿzal because it has no spear, and it was called Simāk because it rose high in the sky. The form of al-Aʿzal is [UNCLEAR: no form follows the source’s introductory words]. § The form of al-Rāmih is as follows: 0 0. § Behind al-Rāmih is a star called ʿAjuz al-Asad, “the lion's hindquarters.” As for al-Simāk al-Aʿzal, [UNCLEAR: the text refers to the Yemeni and Syrian stars]. §

As for al-Ghafr, it is three small stars. Al-Ghafr descends in them. It belongs to Libra. It is also said that its name is derived from al-ghafr, the hair at the end of the lion's tail. Its form is as follows: 0 0. §

As for al-Zubānān, the two claws of the scorpion, they are two luminous stars, as follows: 0 0. §

As for al-Iklīl, it is four stars, whose form is as follows: 0 0 0 0. It is also said to be three stars, the head of the scorpion.

The scorpion, as though it were a crown upon the scorpion's head.

As for al-Qalb, it is the scorpion. Beside it is a luminous star, and beside that star are two stars. Its form is as follows: 0 0 0.

As for al-Shawlah, they are two separated stars called the Scorpion's star. Their form is as follows: 0 0. Some say that it is the scorpion's tail, derived from al-shawl, meaning elevation, as though it were raised, prominent, and projecting. Some say that it lies outside the Milky Way. It has also been said that it resembles the timbers suspended over the mouth of a well, into which the pulley and ropes are placed; they are called al-Naʿāʾim. ☼

As for al-Baldah, it is six stars of Sagittarius, and the Sun reaches it on the shortest day of the year. Some say that al-Baldah is the opening between the two [UNCLEAR: special points], and its form is as follows: 0 0. ☼

As for al-Dhābiḥ, they are two stars with a distance of one cubit between them. Each has a small star close to it, as though it were slaughtering that star; thus it was called al-Dhābiḥ. Its form is as follows: [UNCLEAR: no form follows this introduction in the source]. ☼

As for Saʿd al-Suʿūd, they are two stars, one of them luminous, with a fourth star below one of them. Its form is as follows: ☼ 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0. As for Saʿd al-Akhbiyah, they are three, as though they were one star. Its form is as follows: 0 0. ☼

It is said that they are two stars. Some say that the first is Saʿd al-Suʿūd, followed by Saʿd al-Dhābiḥ, then Saʿd al-Akhbiyah, then Saʿd Bulaʿ; these are four, and the Moon enters them once a year. [UNCLEAR: the source's classification clause contains the negative "are not" and "other than the lunar mansions," with an unclear relation] : Saʿd Qāʿirah, Saʿd al-Mulk, Saʿd Hammām, Saʿd Bāriʿ, and Saʿd Naẓīr. Each Saʿd among these six consists of two stars; to the eye, the distance between each pair is one cubit, and they are the key to the year.

As for the two branches of al-Dālī, al-Muqaddam and al-Mu'akhkhar, each consists of two stars, with five cubits between one and the other to the eye. They appear as though they are pouring from buckets. Al-Fargh is the outlet of water from the bucket, and for this reason the two Farghs are so called. ☼

As for al-Rashā, it is a small star that the Moon enters. These are the lunar mansions through which it travels each month. Every night the Moon is in one part of them: fourteen between sunrise and sunset, and fourteen between sunset and sunrise. At dawn it enters both. As it rises from east to west, their rising is to the left of the person praying and their setting is to his right, according to the differences among the climates. The Sun also enters these mansions.

Know that the Arabs call the mansions al-Anwāʾ. They were given this name because when the setting star falls, the rising star rises. It is also said that al-Nawʾ is the setting of a star from the mansions in the west together with the rising of its counterpart opposite it in the east, [UNCLEAR: the timing clause reads "of an hour in every night except thirteen," without a clear relation] ; and this applies to each star until the end of the year, except al-Jabhah, which has fourteen days. ☼

I say: We have not heard al-Nawʾ described as “falling” except in this passage. The Arabs attributed rains, winds, cold, and movement to it. ʿUmar ibn al-Khaṭṭāb, may Allah be pleased with him, said: “We were rained upon by such-and-such a nawʾ.”

(Section on the rules governing their risings)

The rising of al-Sharṭayn is on the thirteenth of Nīsān, and the Sun enters without al-Iklīl. The rising of al-Buṭayn is on the remaining night of that month. The rising of al-Thurayyā is on the thirteenth of Ayyār. After it sets at sunset, it remains hidden for fifty nights, then appears in the morning from the east. When it is midway in the sky as the Sun sets, the cold intensifies and afflictions are lifted from the fruits. The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: “When the star rises, afflictions are lifted.” The rising of al-Dabarān is on the twenty-third of Ayyār; the rising of al-Haqʿah is on the eighth night of Ḥazīrān; the rising of al-Hanʿah is on its twenty-first night; and the rising of al-Dhirāʿ

Know—may God grant you success in obeying Him [UNCLEAR: the source adds a repeated "and you"]—that God Most High has spoken about the twelve zodiac signs and the twenty-eight lunar mansions: "We have certainly placed constellations in the heaven and adorned it for the observers"; and God Most High said: "Blessed is He who placed constellations in the heaven," [the remainder of] the verse; and God Most High said: "Possessor of the constellations"; and God Most High said: "We determined it as mansions." Al-burj is the singular of al-buruj, and a burj is a palace; it may also be called a fortress. God Most High said: "Even if you were in fortified towers." Some scholars said regarding God Most High's saying, "Blessed is He who placed constellations in the heaven": They are the locations of the seven wandering planets, and they are twelve constellations. The first is al-Hamal (Aries), followed by al-Thawr (Taurus), al-Jawzaʾ (Gemini), al-Saraṭān (Cancer), al-Asad (Leo), al-Sunbulah (Virgo), al-Mīzān (Libra), al-ʿAqrab (Scorpio), al-Qaws (Sagittarius), al-Jady (Capricorn), al-Dalw (Aquarius), and al-Ḥūt (Pisces). * Al-Hamal and al-ʿAqrab are the domiciles of Mars; al-Thawr is the domicile of Venus; al-Jawzaʾ and al-Sunbulah are the domiciles of Mercury; al-Saraṭān is the domicile of the Moon; al-Asad is the domicile of the Sun; al-Ḥūt is the domicile of Jupiter; and al-Jady and al-Dalw are the domiciles of Saturn. These constellations are divided among the four natures, with three constellations in each group, called triplicities. Al-Hamal, al-Asad, and al-Qaws form the fiery triplicity; al-Thawr, al-Sunbulah, and al-Jady the earthy triplicity; al-Jawzaʾ, al-Mīzān, and al-Dalw the airy triplicity; and al-Saraṭān, al-ʿAqrab, and al-Ḥūt the watery triplicity. This is a table of the lunar mansions, the constellations, and the Roman months, in the following form:

March	April	May	June	July	August	September	October	November	December	January	February
al-Hamal	al-Thawr	al-Jawzaʾ	al-Saraṭān	al-Asad	al-Sunbulah	al-Mīzān	al-ʿAqrab	al-Qaws	al-Jady	al-Dalw	al-Ḥūt
Mahj	Thurayyā	Ḥaqʿah	Dhirāʿ	Jabhah	Ṣarfah	Simāk	Kabl	Shawlah	Baldah	Saʿūd	Muqaddam
Rashā	Muʾakhkhar	Dabarān	Hanʿah	Ṭarfah	Khurtān	ʿAwāʾ	Zubānā	Qalb	Naʿāʾim	Bulaʿ

The people of interpretation differed concerning the meaning of al-buruj. Some said that they are palaces in the heaven, citing His saying: "Even if you were in fortified towers." Others said that they are stars; others said lamps; and others said the gates of heaven called the Milky Way. * I say: Ibn ʿAbbās, may God be pleased with them both, explicitly stated that they are the familiar constellations to which we have referred—twelve constellations—and that God Most High, divided them into quadrants and triads. They are divided among the seven planets, as we mentioned, 32 [UNCLEAR: the relation of this number to the sentence is not specified].

[UNCLEAR: the source then describes a figure involving five stars.] Its figure has its front pointing west and its rear pointing east, and it is al-Thawr (Taurus). It is three [UNCLEAR: the relation of "Taurus and its stars" is corrupt], and there are eleven stars outside Taurus. It follows the form described above for Taurus. [UNCLEAR: the source contains a phrase about the head and horns.] It has been cut into two halves for its course, with its front toward the east and its rear toward the west. Among its stars are al-Thurayyā and al-Dabarān, which are lunar mansions.

The third is al-Jawzaʾ (Gemini), known as the Twins. It has eighteen stars, seven outside the figure. Its figure resembles two standing twins: one has placed his hand on the other's shoulder; the head and the rest of its stars are in the north, its legs at the eastern edge, and their feet toward the west.

The fourth is al-Saraṭān (Cancer), which has six stars, with four outside its figure. It resembles a crab, with its front toward the east and its rear toward the west and south, behind the Twins. [UNCLEAR: the source compares them to two lambs in a figure of eight.] Its figure is upright, and among its stars are the bright stars of al-Asad (Leo).

The fifth is al-Sunbulah (Virgo), known as the Virgin; it is twenty-six [UNCLEAR: the source omits the counted unit].

[UNCLEAR: the opening source name is "Nūliyā."] What lies outside the figure are seven stars. Its figure is a young woman with two wings, having lowered its head over al-Ṣarfah, which is a bright star; among its stars is al-Simāk al-Aʿzal, also a bright star.

The sixth is al-Mīzān (Libra), with eight stars. Its figure is upright, and nine stars lie outside the figure. § The seventh is al-ʿAqrab (Scorpio), with twenty-one stars; three lie outside the figure, and its figure is upright. Among its stars is Qalb al-ʿAqrab, a bright star. § The eighth is al-Qaws (Sagittarius), called the Archer. It has thirty-one stars behind the stars of [UNCLEAR: al-Qurb]. Its figure is an animal composed of a human and a horse, as though it had confined itself up to the neck and had not moved from the nape of the neck; [UNCLEAR: the source then describes a man who has placed an arrow in his bow and is bent over the saddle]. §

The tenth is al-Jady (Capricorn), with twenty-eight stars. Its figure is the front half of a goat, while the other half is the rear of a fish extending to its tail. § The eleventh is al-Dālī, known as al-Dalw (Aquarius). [UNCLEAR: a preceding source word reads "wa-ummuhu"] It has forty-two stars. Three stars lie outside the figure. Its figure is a standing man, holding a bucket in one hand; he has overturned it and poured water in front of his feet, while the water descends from beneath it toward the south. It is also called al-Dalw. § The twelfth is al-Ḥūt (Pisces), with thirty-four stars; four lie outside the figure. Its figure is two fish whose tails have been joined together. The total of these is three hundred and forty-three.

Aries is the first of the signs, and Taurus is a constellation in the heaven. Gemini is said to extend across the heaven to its middle, and the jawzaʾ of anything is its middle. Cancer is a constellation in the heaven. It did not mention Leo. Virgo is a constellation in the heaven. Some did not mention Libra. Scorpio is a constellation in the heaven, as are Sagittarius, Capricorn, al-Dālī, and Pisces; it says that they are constellations in the heaven. Al-Jady is a star beside al-Qalb by which the qiblah is known. God knows best.

[Chapter on the lands associated with each sign]

Know that Aries is associated with Babylon, Persia, and Azerbaijan; Taurus with Hamadan and the Kurds; § Gemini with Hājarjān, Gilan, and Sūfān; § Cancer with the land of China and eastern Khurasan; § Leo with the Turks, Tatars, and neighboring lands; § Libra with the lands of the Romans as far as America, the Copts of Egypt, and Abyssinia; § Scorpio with the Hijaz, Yemen, and adjacent lands; and al-Waqad [UNCLEAR: the source label is uncertain] with Baghdad as far as Isfahan. § Capricorn is associated with Kerman, Oman, Bahrain, and India; § Aquarius with Kufa as far as the land of the Hijaz; § and Pisces with Tabaristan, Bahrain, Mosul, and Alexandretta. This is the inhabited part of the whole earth. We have mentioned a portion of the regions and what they contain, fully and completely, according to the signs. God knows best.

§

[Chapter on the division of time into four divisions]

§

The first is spring, which some people call summer. It was called spring because [UNCLEAR: the source says that spring is made gentle in it] . Some call it autumn because the rain passed through it; its entry is when the Sun reaches the head of Libra. § Winter begins when the Sun reaches the head of Capricorn. § Summer begins when the Sun reaches the head of Aries, which they call spring. Then comes autumn, beginning when the Sun reaches the sign of Cancer, which they call summer.

§

[Chapter on the winds and what is said about them]

§

The first is the north wind, which blows from the direction of the pole. The second is al-Ṣabā, which comes from the sunrise when night and day are equal. Beneath it is al-Dabūr. The Arabs claim that al-Dabūr turns the clouds back, lowers them in the air, and then drives them along. When the clouds are uncovered from it, al-Ṣabā receives them and places some upon others until they become one dense mass. The south wind follows its trailing parts and extends them, while the north wind tears them apart. The third is the south wind, which faces the north, and al-Dabūr, which is faced by al-Ṣabā. God knows best.

SCAN PAGE 035 · PRINTED FOLIO 29 The Doctrine of the Ancients on the Form of the Spheres

We have already mentioned the doctrine of the ancients concerning the forms of the celestial spheres and what relates to them. As for the doctrine of the scholars of sacred law, these are heavens according to them. Reports have been narrated in the hadith from Ibn ʿAbbās—some say from al-ʿAbbās ibn ʿAbd al-Muṭṭalib—who said: We were with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, at al-Baṭḥāʾ when a cloud passed over us. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: “Do you know what this is?” We said: “The cloud.” He said: “And al-muzn?” We said: “Al-muzn.” He said: “And al-ʿanān?” We said: “Al-ʿanān,” and we fell silent. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, then said: “Do you know how far it is between the heaven and the earth?” We said: “God and His Messenger know best.” He said: “Between them is a journey of five hundred years, and the thickness of each heaven—that is, its thickness—is five hundred [UNCLEAR: the unit is not repeated in the source]. Above the seventh heaven is a sea whose upper and lower bounds are as far apart as the heaven and the earth. Then above them is a world. [UNCLEAR: the next source phrase is garbled and mentions ‘the son of the heaven and the earth.’] God Most High, is above that, and nothing of the deeds of the children of Adam is hidden from Him.” The proof of this is His saying, God Most High: “God is the One who created seven heavens, and of the earth the like of them.” Thus the distance of all of them is this journey of the children of Adam. As for the angel, he traverses all of it in a single hour; likewise, the devil reaches the earth before the angel reaches the heaven.

It was narrated that Abū Razīn al-ʿUqaylī, may God Most High be pleased with him, was asked: “How far is it between the heaven and the earth?” He said: “An answered supplication.” He was asked: “How far is it between the east and the west?” He said: “A day’s journey.” Al-Thaʿlabī related from Ibn ʿAbbās: He said: “The Sun rises each year through three hundred and sixty apertures, [UNCLEAR: the following clause begins “so it does not rise” and mentions “the uppermost,” an aperture, that day, and the following year; their relation is corrupt].”

I say: The Sun has benefits and indications. Among the indications is that it is one, and its light illuminates all horizons and the whole world. Likewise, the Creator, glorified is He, the Most High, is one, and He governs the world. Second, the Sun’s benefits are distant while its arrival is near; and God Most High, is distant from creation in essence but near in answering. Third, its light is withheld from no one; therefore God’s provision is withheld from none of creation. Fourth, its eclipse is evidence of the existence of the Resurrection, along with other things that indicate its darkness. Fifth, the cloud covers it; likewise, the covering covered knowledge.

As for its benefits, they are very numerous. First, it is the lamp of the world. God Most High said: “And We made the Sun a lamp.” Second, it ripens their food and brings their fruits to maturity without cost. Third, it travels from east to west for their welfare. Fourth, it does not remain in one place, lest it harm creation. Fifth, in winter it is in the lower part of the constellations and in summer in their upper part, for the benefit of the world. Sixth, it does not combine with the Moon in its dominion, lest each of them nullify the light of the other.

If you say: It is in the fourth sphere, and the heavens do not veil it, while the cloud veils it. I say: The heavens are subtle, transparent substances, whereas the cloud is dense because it rises from the earth. God knows best.

(Chapter on the Moon, its similitudes, and what is in it)

It was narrated from Abū Hurayrah that he said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Do you see the full Moon when there is no cloud before it?" They said: "Yes." He said: "Then do you dispute concerning the Sun when there is no cloud before it?" They said: "Yes." He, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Then you will see Him in the same way."

If you say: Why was the example not made with the Sun, since it is brighter and more complete in light, while the Moon's light comes from it? I say: For two reasons. First, the Sun's light overpowers the eyes, so one cannot look at it. Second, the Moon was broken for the sake of the Truth, so God Most High, mended it. This happened when Gabriel struck the Moon's light with his wing. Its heart broke because it had been comparable to the light of the Sun, so God Most High, mended it in two ways. One is that He made eyes look at it in this world every month. The second is that He commanded His Prophet Muḥammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, to use it as an example for the greatest and highest things.

If you say: God Most High, said, "The eyes do not perceive Him, while He perceives the eyes." I say: We do not claim that the eyes perceive Him in the sense of encompassing Him; rather, the perceiver is a ray [UNCLEAR: this clause continues onto the next page] .

Sight, because the Creator, glorified is He, the Most High, [UNCLEAR: the following predicate reads "yastaḥīlu ʿannā al-wujūd" and its meaning is corrupt] . The Moon has benefits. Among them is that it is a lamp for creation at night and a miracle for our Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, because of His saying, God Most High: "The Hour has drawn near and the Moon has split." He determined it in mansions so that we might know the time by them, and He erased ninety-nine parts from its light, because of His saying, God Most High: "Then We erased the sign of the night and made the sign of the day visible." Had it not been for that, people would spread out in their livelihoods by night and day, and no one would know night from day.

The Commander of the Believers, ʿAlī ibn Abī Ṭālib, may God honor his face, said: "Sleeping naked beneath the Moon causes leprosy. When a garment is washed and hung in the moonlight, it frays and its color changes." God knows best.

(Section: the Moon is delayed each night in one of the mansions, and these are their names)

(Section on the four stars, their indications, and their management)

God Most High said: "It is He who made the stars for you, so that you may be guided by them in the darkness of the land and the sea"; and God Most High said: "And by the star they are guided." It was narrated from Saʿīd ibn Jubayr, from Ibn ʿAbbās, may God be pleased with him, that he said: "The knowledge of the stars is lofty and beneficial; many people have been incapable of it." [UNCLEAR: the source then points to knowledge of the stars for rulings associated with sacred restrictions.]

They agreed that the light of the Moon comes from the light of the Sun, but differed concerning the known stars, which are twenty-two stars. Among them is al-Jady, one of the indications used to determine the qiblah. Al-Jady is a star beside the North Pole. Around it are six small stars, three above and three below. One of the two is al-Farqadān, and in the other is a shining star facing them [UNCLEAR: the antecedents of "the two" and "the other" are not specified]. Between them and that star are six small stars, three above and three below, which revolve around the pole. Al-Jady does not depart from their place [UNCLEAR: the source uses a dual possessive although al-Jady is singular]. Al-Jady is used to identify the pole; al-Jady is the pole of this butterfly [UNCLEAR: the referent of this source description is uncertain]. It is also said that the pole is its pole.

Al-Jady is used to identify it when there is no Moon. When the Moon is bright, only a sharp-eyed person can see it. Al-Suhā is beside it, a faint star by which people test their eyesight. The al-Jady used to identify the qiblah is the Jady of Banāt Naʿsh. [UNCLEAR: the clause about three Banāt, four, and two preceding ones is corrupt.] Among the Banāt is al-Jady, which is the last of them.

Al-Suhā is a faint star among Banāt Naʿsh. Hence the proverb: "Show her al-Suhā and she will see the Moon." The method of knowing the qiblah is to place al-Jady behind your back in the land of al-Shām; in Iraq, opposite the back of your right ear; and in Egypt, behind the left [ear], above it. One is then facing the door of the House toward the Station. Whenever you turn your back toward al-Farqadān or Banāt Naʿsh, you face the direction of the Kaʿbah.

The al-Farqadān are two bright stars close to the pole. Banāt Naʿsh are seven stars: four of them are the bier, and three are the daughters. The same applies to the Lesser Banāt Naʿsh. The North and South Poles are not reached by the Sun or the Moon.

The South Pole has its [UNCLEAR: corresponding] Jady. Suhayl rises, but it appears only in the Arabian Peninsula. Suhayl is beside the South Pole; its rising is from the direction of the south wind, then it moves toward the west, enters the qiblah of the place of prayer, and sets there. Suhayl is a solitary star, separate from the Yemeni stars. Its rising is to the left of the qiblah. It is seen throughout the Arab lands, in Iraq and al-Shām, but it is not seen in the lands of Armenia. [UNCLEAR: the source says that al-Ḥijāz is associated with its rising.] Its sighting in Iraq lasts ten-odd nights.

Some said: "Suhayl is the star of the Arabs." They say: "When Suhayl rises, do not feel safe from the torrent." Know that the stars number one thousand and twenty-two. And it is a tenth of a star in twelve [UNCLEAR: the referent and intended relation are uncertain].

Ten figures along the path of the Sun: these are the twelve zodiac signs. Among them are three hundred and sixty stars in twenty-one figures inclined away from the Sun's path toward the north. These include the Great Bear, the Lesser Bear, the Dragon, and others. Among them are three hundred and sixteen stars in fifteen figures inclined away from the Sun's path. As for [UNCLEAR: the phrase preceding "the stars that we named" is damaged], the practitioners in general never divided them.

Abū Muḥammad ʿAbd al-Jabbār, known [UNCLEAR: the epithet is incomplete], mentioned them in his book entitled al-Baṣrah on the fixed stars and said: The stars in the northern figures include the Lesser Bear. It resembles a standing bear stretching out its paws. It has seven stars, and the Arabs call it the Lesser Banāt Naʿsh. Four stars form the bier in a square, and three lie on its tail. Eight stars lie outside the figure. Among them are seven stars that the Arabs classify as the Lesser Banāt Naʿsh, the stars observed toward the North Pole.

I say: Among them is the Great Bear, with twenty-seven stars. Eight stars lie outside the figure. Among them are seven stars that the Arabs call Banāt Naʿsh: four on its body and three on its tail. The Arabs call them al-Suhā. Among them is the Dragon, with thirty-one stars. Its figure is a great serpent with many coils. It begins with four stars arranged as an inclined square at its head. [UNCLEAR: the source then reads "the mark of the scorpion, the benefits"; its connection to the head description is corrupt.] The Dragon is a place in the heaven, a kind of serpent, and the greatest of them.

Among them is al-Fakkah, called the Northern Crown. [UNCLEAR: the source continues "a kind of serpent is known in the sky; some of it, the dwellers, because of its roundness, eight"; the clause is corrupt.] Al-Fakkah also consists of round stars behind al-Simāk al-Rāmiḥ.

Among them is the Kneeling Man, whose figure has twenty-seven stars. Among them are al-Sabʿāt, also called al-Lawz and al-Ṣubḥ al-Rūmī. Among them is the Tortoise, whose stars number ten; some of its stars are drawn as al-Nasr al-Wāqiʿ. There is also the Hen, which has nineteen stars; two stars lie outside the figure, and the largest of their stars is in the Milky Way. Among them is the Triangle, four stars between the star of the Fish and the Eagle above the head of al-Ghūl. Thus the total of these northern figures is three hundred and sixty stars.

As for the southern figures, they comprise three hundred and twelve stars. Among them is Qayqaṭus, with twenty-two stars. Its figure is a bare animal with two legs and a tail like the tail of a whale. Among them is al-Jabbār (Orion), with thirty-eight stars. Its figure is a running man holding a staff, with a belt and a sword at his middle. Among its stars is al-Jawzāʾ, a red star. There are also twelve stars gathered beneath Orion's leg, resembling a rabbit whose face is toward the west and whose rear is toward the east.

Among them is the Great Dog, with twenty-eight stars; eleven stars lie outside the figure, behind the stars of al-Jawzāʾ. Among them is al-Sunbulah, among the stars of al-Shiʿrā al-ʿAbūr; it is called al-Abbān al-Marzabān [UNCLEAR: the referent of "it" is uncertain]. Among them is al-Shiʿrā al-Ghumaysāʾ, the stars that rise after al-Jawzāʾ. As for Cancer, [UNCLEAR: the source refers to figures in al-Jawzāʾ and to al-Shiʿrā al-Ghumaysāʾ in the arm]. The Arabs claim that the two are the sisters of Suhayl.

Among them is the Southern Crown, with thirteen stars; six stars lie outside the figure. Its figure is a great fish, with its stars south of the star al-Dālī, its head toward the east and its tail toward the west. Among them is the Milky Way, to the south of [UNCLEAR: the following location name is garbled]. This is a summary of the southern and northern stars.

I say: What some authors have mentioned is restricted to the famous stars. As for the less famous stars, they are very numerous; they will be mentioned later, if God Most High wills.

SCAN PAGE 038 · PRINTED FOLIO 32 Chapter on the Bodies of the Celestial Orbs: The Sun's Body

— 32 —

[Chapter on their bodies and what is connected to them]

Know that the Sun’s body is one hundred and a half times the measure of the world, and the Moon’s body is thirty-nine times the measure of the world. The same applies to Venus, Mercury, and Mars. Jupiter’s body is eighty-two times the measure of the world, and Saturn’s body is ninety-nine times the measure of the world. Some of our scholars said that the Sun’s body extends fifteen degrees before it and likewise behind it; the Moon’s body extends twelve degrees before it and likewise behind it; Mars’s body extends eight degrees behind it and likewise before it; Venus’s body extends seven degrees before it and likewise behind it; and Mercury’s body is likewise. God Most High, knows best.

[Chapter: every star in the heaven is many times the measure of the world]

As for the fixed stars, there are fifteen of them, including al-Shiʿrā al-ʿAbūr, al-Simāk, al-Nasr al-Ṭāʾir, Qalb al-Asad, and similar stars. Each of these stars is sixty-four times the measure of the world.

[Chapter on the seven stars traversing the spheres]

Know that the Moon traverses the sphere in twenty-nine days and one-third of a day; Mercury traverses it in twenty-eight days; Venus traverses it in two hundred and twenty-four days and one-quarter of a day; the Sun traverses it in three hundred and sixty-five days and one-quarter of a day; Mars traverses it in six hundred and thirty [UNCLEAR: the source omits the unit]; Jupiter traverses it in eleven years; and Saturn traverses it in twenty-nine years. God knows best.

[Chapter on the stations of the zodiac signs]

Know that the Moon’s station in each sign is two days and three nights; Mercury’s station in each sign is fifteen days; Venus’s station in each sign is twenty-five days; Jupiter’s station in each sign is one year; and Saturn’s station in each sign is thirty months.

[Chapter on the dignity of the planets]

Know that the Moon’s dignity is Taurus; Mercury’s dignity is Virgo; Venus’s dignity is Pisces; the Sun’s dignity is Aries; Mars’s dignity is Capricorn; Jupiter’s dignity is Cancer; and Saturn’s dignity is Libra. As for the Pleiades, it is said that they are the lamp of the world in the heaven because they are a gathering of stars like a knot. They are in the heaven, and the Arabs call them “the stars,” because there is no place in the heaven with more stars than them.

[Chapter on the day belonging to each of the seven planets]

Sunday belongs to the Sun; Monday to the Moon; Tuesday to Mars; Wednesday to Mercury; Thursday to Jupiter; Friday to Venus; and Saturday to Saturn.

[Chapter on the conjunction of the planets]

The meaning of conjunction is that one planet is in a sign while the other is in its counterpart. “Meeting” means that the two come together in one sign. Thus, by the command of God Most High, it influences every action. That is in the Qur’an, so understand that.

When Saturn approaches Jupiter, wars spread throughout the regions, and a king from among the kings of the world and the earth dies. When Mars approaches Saturn, [UNCLEAR: the source says "that is what happens."] When Saturn approaches the Sun, [UNCLEAR: the source again says "that is what happens."] When Saturn conjoins Venus, it indicates high prices and drought. When Saturn conjoins Mercury, it indicates the good condition of the book. When the Moon conjoins [UNCLEAR: the other planet is not named in the source], it indicates the appearance of injustice in judgments. When Jupiter conjoins Mars, there are many hardships in the world.

[Chapter]

(Chapter on the natures of the planets)

Know that the Moon is cold and feminine. [UNCLEAR: the preceding word is corrupt.] It is phlegmatic and has incidental heat because its light comes from the Sun. Its influence is laughter and adornment, and it has yellow bile. Mercury is masculine and feminine; it is sometimes fortunate and sometimes unfortunate, and its nature combines heat in balance. Its influence is speech and writing.

Venus is feminine and fortunate, cold and moist. It has phlegm, and its influence is marriage and joy. It is associated with desire, arranging the crown, affectation, bringing hearts together, women, beauty, amusement, and laughter.

The Sun is masculine, hot, and dry. It has yellow bile. It is fortunate by aspect and unfortunate by opposition. Its substance is gold, and its influence is over the sciences. It has the highest dignity, joy, delight, and kingship.

Mars is feminine, hot, and dry. It has yellow bile; its substance is iron and its taste is bitter. Its influence is over the head, the stomach, killing, women, and other things.

Jupiter is masculine, moderate, spiritual, and fortunate. It has blood; its substance is tin; its taste and color are white. Its influence is over the wind residing in the heart, and it brings abundant gifts and leadership.

Saturn is masculine, cold, dry, and dark. It has black bile; its substance is lead; its taste is bitter and its color black. Its influence is over study and deliberation, and it is associated with heat, injustice, subjugation, and coercion.

I say: Some people claimed that these zodiac signs, spheres, and moving planets exert influence in the world and govern the worlds. They used as evidence His saying, God Most High: "By those who direct an affair," and similar passages. We do not [UNCLEAR: the object of the author's rejection is missing in this transition]. It has been transmitted that when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ascended to heaven, he informed us about the zodiac signs, the stars, and other matters. Whatever has come from him in this subject is accepted, while whatever is prohibited is not to be followed. Rather, proofs and evidence establish that the Creator, God Most High, invented and brought them into being.

As for His saying, God Most High, "By those who direct an affair," Ibn ʿAbbās said that some angels are entrusted with provisions, some with rain, and some with the winds, as is mentioned in the creation of the angels. If they are directors, then they direct only by the permission of the Creator, majestic and exalted, because He is the Powerful, the Knowing, and the Wise. Glory be to Him: His is the power and His is the wisdom. To Him belong creation and command. Blessed is God, Lord of the worlds. God knows best what is correct.

(Chapter five: the secrets of the basmalah and its hidden properties and blessings)

Know—may God grant me and you success in obeying Him and understanding the secrets of His names—that whoever knows what God Most High, has deposited in the basmalah ("In the name of God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful") of secrets will not be burned by fire, nor will fire consume him. Whoever writes it and arranges its wafq will not be burned by fire.

All scholars have agreed that it is recommended to begin every important matter with the basmalah, following the Noble Book and because of what Abū Hurayrah, may God Most High be pleased with him, narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: "Every important matter that is not begun with the basmalah is severed." In one narration: "It is cut off"; and in another: "It is amputated." Its meaning is that it has little blessing and is not blessed.

It is narrated that the books sent down from heaven to earth number one hundred and four: the scrolls of Seth, sixty; the scrolls of Abraham, thirty; the scrolls of Moses before the Torah, ten; the Torah; the Gospel; the Psalms; and the Furqān. The meanings of all the books are gathered in the Furqān; the meanings of the Furqān are in al-Fātiḥah; the meanings of al-Fātiḥah are gathered in the basmalah; and the meanings of the basmalah are gathered in its letter bāʾ. [UNCLEAR: the source then gives the cryptic meaning that everything brought into being will be what it will be.]

It is narrated that when the basmalah was revealed, the Throne trembled at its descent, and the keepers said: "No one who recites it will enter the Fire." It consists of nineteen letters, corresponding to the number of angels entrusted with the Fire. May God protect us from it.

It is narrated from Jābir, may God Most High be pleased with him, that he said: "When it was revealed…"

In the name of God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful. The cloud fled to the east, the winds became still, the seas surged, and they listened to it by God's permission. The devils were pelted from heaven, and the Lord of Might swore: [UNCLEAR: the oath has damaged negative wording about pronouncing My name over someone sick with longing and over a thing; its condition and outcome cannot be established] .

Ibn Masʿūd, may God Most High be pleased with him, said: "Whoever wants God to save him from the nineteen al-zāniyah [UNCLEAR: the source uses this unclear term, literally related to 'adulteresses'] , let him write it. It consists of nineteen letters; every letter is salvation from one of them. Whoever recites it frequently is granted awe in the upper and lower worlds. Through it the kingdom of Solomon son of David, peace be upon them both, was established. Whoever writes it one hundred times and carries it is granted awe in people's hearts."

It is narrated from ʿAbd Allāh ibn ʿUmar, may God Most High be pleased with him, that he said: "Whoever has a need from God Most High should fast on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. When Friday comes, he should bathe, go to the congregational mosque, and give something in charity. After performing the Friday prayer, he should say: 'O God, I ask You by Your name, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful: God, there is no deity except Him, the Living, the Sustainer, to the end of the verse—the One before whom faces bow, voices become humble, and hearts tremble out of fear of Him. I ask You to bless and grant peace to our master Muḥammad, his family, and his Companions, and grant peace, and to grant my need, which is such-and-such,' naming the need." He used to say: "Do not teach it to your fools, lest some of them pray against others and their prayers be answered immediately."

It is narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: "The distance between the basmalah, 'In the name of God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful,' and the Greatest Name of God is only like the distance between the whiteness of the eye and its blackness." The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, also said: "There is nothing between human beings and the devils except the basmalah, 'In the name of God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful.'" It is the concealed name indicating that what follows it is the Greatest Name, namely God, because the Greatest Name is the Name of Majesty. It is the pole of the names, and they return to it. Among the names it is like a proper name: if you ask by the Most Compassionate, you say 'God,' and likewise the other names are attached to it and known through its majesty and exalted elevation.

It has an additional distinction over the other names: if you remove the letter alif from it, 'lillah' remains; if you remove the first lām, 'lah' remains; and if you remove the second as well, 'huwa' remains. Thus every letter of it stands by itself. This is not so with the other names, because if you remove a letter from them, their meaning is lost. [UNCLEAR: the source says that the letters of this Greatest Name have not been disrupted or altered.] This is a distinction over the names and proof that it is the honored Essence, firmly possessing might and permanence.

It has another distinction indicating the unique lordly Essence and indicating the oneness of divinity. Its first letter is alif, the first of the letters and the first of the numbers; its last is the letter hāʾ, which points to the unity of godhead and is not found in the other names. By its very state it says: 'I am the First, the Last, the Manifest, and the Hidden.' Then He followed it with the attribute of mercifulness. The Most High said: 'Call upon God or call upon the Most Compassionate; whichever you call upon.' He thus gives you the choice between saying "O God" or "O Most Compassionate."

For He combines the two merciful attributes and the noble speech. If you seek mercy, say 'O Most Compassionate'; this is more specific, because God Most High is the most specific of the names and, by agreement, the greatest of them. It is a divine name. As for its explanation, it is that He brings things out of nonexistence into existence. It has other meanings as well. Whoever studies them must withhold them from fools, lest they use them to reach reprehensible and forbidden acts, [UNCLEAR: the following warning about falling before God, "like bāʿ," and the clause mentioning God Most High and disobedience are corrupt]. We seek refuge in God Most High from His anger. O God, do not make us among those who use Your names to aid their disobedience.

This name has four letters—alif, lām, and hāʾ [UNCLEAR: the source counts four letters but lists only these three]. It has four natures, four directions—east, west, north, and south—and four angels of glorification: Jibrīl, Mīkāʾīl, Isrāfīl, and ʿIzrāʾīl.

Jibrīl bears the message to the messengers and is associated with victory and overpowering; through him God Most High destroyed the disbelievers among the nations.

[UNCLEAR: the page begins mid-sentence with "and the blowing."]

Isrāfīl is the bearer of the Trumpet and the blowing. He has three blasts: the blast of terror, of which the Most High said, "Then those in the heavens and those on the earth were terrified"; the blast of swooning, of which the Most High said, "Then those in the heavens and those on the earth swooned"; and the blast of resurrection, of which the Most High said, "Then it is blown into it again, and behold, they are standing and looking." Each blast has matters peculiar to it.

ʿIzrāʾīl, peace be upon him, is entrusted with taking the souls and bringing about their extinction. Through him tyrants are subdued and the roots of the disbelievers and the arrogant are cut off. Through him the believer finds rest, reaches his Lord, and rejoices in what God has prepared for him of generosity, bounty, pardon, and forgiveness.

Mīkāʾīl, peace be upon him, is entrusted with the provisions and sustenance of God's servants and with preserving their existence. There is no sesame seed on earth without an angelic helper assigned to it for its owner. Jibrīl, peace be upon him, has assistants too numerous to count, and he has invocations and works [UNCLEAR: the reference of "differ from them" is unclear].

These four are kings of days, with particular days assigned to them. Jibrīl, peace be upon him, has Monday because it is cold and moist. Isrāfīl, peace be upon him, has Thursday, which is hot and moist. ʿIzrāʾīl, peace be upon him, has Saturday because it is cold and moist; [UNCLEAR: the source then associates his domain with earth, death, and extinction]. Mīkāʾīl, peace be upon him, has Wednesday, which is composed of the four natures.

There are four awfāq associated with them: the sevenfold for Jibrīl, peace be upon him; the square for Isrāfīl, peace be upon him; the threefold for ʿIzrāʾīl, peace be upon him; and the eightfold for Mīkāʾīl, peace be upon him. These are the four awfāq, and this is their form, as you see.

The sevenfold is written on paper or pure white silver on Monday at sunrise, during the hour of the Moon. If it is for a stone, write it during the Moon’s increase [UNCLEAR: the sentence continues with “and if…”] .

If the Moon is in its exaltation or fortunate state, free from malefic influences, it is more effective. If you want something else—vengeance against enemies or [UNCLEAR: a damaged phrase concerning a tyrant] —let the Moon be in its disappearance and combustion, connected with Saturn and Mars. Do not do this against anyone who does not deserve it; pardon is better. The Most High said: “That you pardon is nearer to piety.” He also said: “Whoever pardons and makes reconciliation, his reward is with God.” Fumigate for good with pleasant incense, and for evil with its opposite.

Consider the following: if the Moon is in an airy sign, suspend it in the air; if it is in a fiery sign, place it in fire; and if it is in a watery sign, place it in water or bury it near water. If you want to send it, place it in a sunlit reed of Fāris [UNCLEAR: the source’s expression is obscure] and recite over it what follows. If it is in earth, bury it in the earth beneath his doorway or beneath your doorway if you want to bring him to you. If it is a bone, it will answer you.

This is what you recite over it: “In the name of God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful. O God, I ask You by all Your Most Beautiful Names. [UNCLEAR: the source’s grammar then joins this invocation to a statement of praise.] Praise belongs to God, which, when placed upon something, makes it humble and submit; when good is sought by it, good is attained; and when evils are turned away by them, they are turned away. I ask You by Your complete words—if all the trees on earth were pens, and the sea, replenished by seven seas after it, were its ink, the words of God would not be exhausted. Indeed, God is Mighty and Wise.

“O Sufficient, O Protector, O Compassionate, O Gentle, O Provider, O Loving, O Self-Subsisting, O All-Knowing, O All-Encompassing, O Generous, O Bestower, O Expander, O Possessor of bounty, O Giver, O Enricher, O Most Compassionate, O Merciful, O Self-Sufficient, O Reliever, O Tender, O Bestower of favors, O Bountiful, O Good, O Avenger.

“O God, enrich me through Your majesty instead of what You have forbidden; through obedience to You instead of disobedience; and through Your bounty instead of anyone besides You, O Most Merciful of the merciful. I ask You, O God, by Your name—there is no deity but He—: the Majestic, the Most Compassionate, the Merciful, the Gentle, the Magnificent, the Provider, the Forgiving, the Giver of security, the Guardian, the Causer of death, the Responsive, the Near, the All-Hearing, the Swift, the Generous, the Possessor of Majesty and Honor, the Possessor of bounty, the Bestower of favors.

“Know that whoever carries these names and remembers them will have his character ennobled and will show generosity and mercy toward people through them. He will witness wonders among the meanings of the Gentle, gain acceptance, and have his outward and inward praised, because the Greatest Name of God is within them. When He is called by it, He answers; when He is asked by it, He gives. It is among the greatest and noblest forms of remembrance.

“Whoever persists in remembering them will have wondrous secrets disclosed to him, the desired matter made easy for him, and what he seeks provided in immediate affairs. Whoever continues these names for half the night will witness wonders according to the measure of his aspiration; persistence in them opens the hidden secrets. No one persists in remembering them without seeing matters from the higher realm and having every knowledge from the angels placed at his service. They are the perfect words and [UNCLEAR: text is missing before “the marvels of secrets”] the marvels of secrets.

“Whoever remembers them together with the name al-Kāfī, while wishing for a matter for himself [UNCLEAR: the source continues “from where he does not know, nor does it occur to his mind, nor does anyone mention him/it”; the connections and pronoun references are uncertain], while he is in a weak rank and his aspiration seeks something higher than the easier [UNCLEAR: the source’s wording is obscure], God Most High will enable him to reach it without toil.

“Whoever continually remembers al-Kāfī and al-Jāmiʿ over something he has lost will find it, and what was lost will return to him. Its name is al-Tafwīḥ [UNCLEAR: this name or term is obscure], for repelling painful things from great matters. al-Raʾūf is a remembrance for the frightened [UNCLEAR: the source’s phrase about the distressed person is damaged]; whoever is afflicted will find tranquility and his fear will be calmed.

“Whoever persists in remembering it until a state arising from it overcomes him, while his stomach is empty of food, may hold fire in his hand. [UNCLEAR: the source then says “no harm” and “nor breathing upon a boiling vessel”; the syntax is corrupt.] Its boiling continues by the permission of God Most High. He adds to it al-Ḥalīm, al-Raʾūf, and al-Mannān: ‘O Lord, O Bestower of favors.’

“If these names are written during the Moon’s hour and he encounters someone whose harm he fears, God Most High will suffice him against that person’s evil when he sees him. Whoever is overcome by desire and persists in these three names will have that desire removed by God.

[UNCLEAR: the source then contains a damaged fragment about returning or repelling something.] Among the benefits of ‘In the name of God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful’ is that when it was revealed, the heavens shook because of the angels, the Throne trembled at its descent, and angels descended with it in numbers known only to God. The angels increased in faith, the celestial spheres moved, and the kings submitted to its greatness. And it was…

— 37 —

Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm was written upon Adam’s forehead, peace be upon him, five hundred years before he was created. Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm was written upon Gabriel’s wing on the day he descended upon Abraham, peace be upon them both. He said: “In the name of God: O fire, be coolness and peace for Abraham.” Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm was also written upon Moses’ staff, peace be upon him. Its writing was in Syriac, and were it not for it, the sea would not have split for him.

Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm was on Jesus’ tongue, peace be upon him, when he spoke in the cradle. He would recite it over the dead, and they would come to life by the permission of God Most High. Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm was written upon Solomon’s ring, peace be upon him.

Among the special properties of Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm is that it is written at the beginning of every sūrah of the Noble Qurʾān. Among its special properties is that if a person recites it 786 times—the number the source associates with its letters—for seven consecutive days with an intention for a matter, he will obtain all of that: bringing good, warding off evil, or [UNCLEAR: the source says “the marriage of merchandise,” then says that it marries by the permission of God Most High].

Among the special properties of Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm is that whoever recites it twenty-one times at bedtime will be protected by God Most High that night from accursed Satan, theft, and sudden death, and every affliction will be kept away from him.

Among its special properties is that if it is recited fifty times in the face of a tyrant, God Most High will humble him, cast awe of the reciter into that tyrant’s heart, and grant safety from his evil.

Among the special properties of Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm is that if it is recited at sunrise three hundred times while you face the Sun, together with invoking blessings upon the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, the same number of times, God Most High will provide for him from where he does not expect, and a year will not pass before he becomes completely wealthy.

Among the special properties of Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm for love and affection is that if it is recited over a cup of water 786 times and the water is given to whoever you wish, that person will love him intensely. If he drinks that water at sunrise for seven days, his dullness will disappear and he will retain everything he hears. [UNCLEAR: the source's pronouns are ambiguous.]

Among the special properties of Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm is that if it is recited sixty-one times when rain falls, with the intention of seeking rain, God Most High will complete it. [UNCLEAR: the object of "complete it" is not specified.]

Among the special properties of Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm is that if it is recited after the dawn prayer two thousand five hundred times, with sincere intention and a humble heart, for forty days, God Most High will pour upon its reciter some of the hidden secrets. He will see in his sleep everything that occurs in the world. This requires spiritual discipline; he will see wonders, and he should keep his secret concealed.

Among the special properties of Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm for fulfilling needs and entering the presence of rulers is that whoever wants this should fast on Thursday, [UNCLEAR: the source says to "look upon oil and dates"], perform the sunset prayer, and recite it one hundred and twenty-one times. Then he should recite it without counting until sleep overcomes him. When he rises on Friday, he should pray the dawn prayer, recite it the stated number of times, and write it on paper with musk, saffron, and rose water. He should fumigate it with ʿūd and ambergris and write it the stated number of times.

"By God, besides whom there is no deity, no man or woman carries it without becoming, in people's eyes, like the full moon. He becomes honored, awe-inspiring, eminent, and obeyed. Everyone who sees him loves him and fulfills his need, and love for him is cast into the hearts of creation.

"This is the method for writing it: write Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm one hundred and twenty-one times, with the writing joined together.

"Another method: write it on gazelle parchment one hundred and twenty-one times with musk, saffron, rose water, and incense of costus, storax, frankincense, and benzoin. The person afflicted in his provision should carry it; God will open matters for him and expand his provision. If a debtor carries it, God Most High will pay his debt, and it will be a protection for him from every disliked thing. If he writes it in a glass bowl forty times, erases it with Zamzam water or sweet well water, and drinks from that…"

Any sick person who drinks it will be healed by God Most High. If a woman having difficulty giving birth drinks from it, she will deliver immediately.

If it is written on a sheet of paper thirty-five times and hung in a house, no Satan or jinn will enter it and blessing will increase there. If that sheet is hung in a shop, its customers, profit, and merchandise will increase, and it will blind the eyes of onlookers.

If it is written on a sheet one hundred and seven times on the first day of Muḥarram and a person carries it, no harm will befall him or the members of his household for the duration of his life.

If it is written one hundred and ten times for a woman whose children do not survive, or for a barren woman who has not yet conceived, after she has been purified from menstruation for three days, and she carries the sheet and her husband has intercourse with her, she will conceive by the permission of God Most High. She should not put down the sheet after sixty days; she will bear a righteous child and will experience no pain or hardship in bearing it, by the permission of God Most High.

If it is written sixty-one times and carried by a woman whose children do not survive, her children will live. This has been tested and confirmed, and God is powerful over all things.

If it is written on a sheet one hundred and one times and buried in a crop, that crop will become fertile and be protected from all pests. If it is written seventy times and placed with the dead person in his shroud, he will be safe from the terror of Munkar and Nakīr, and it will be a light for him until the Day of Resurrection.

If it is written on a lead tablet and placed in a fisherman's net, his catch will increase. If it is written once on a card and placed beneath the bezel of a ring, and the ring is placed in menstrual milk and a person who has been stung drinks it, [UNCLEAR: the source's following wording is damaged]; the poison will leave him by the permission of God Most High.

If its letters are written separately and carried, it will have great virtue. The bāʾ is God's splendor; the sīn is His radiance; the mīm is His glory and dominion; the alif is His pre-eternity; the lām is His gentleness; the hāʾ is His guidance; the alif is His command; the lām is the pain of kingship; the rāʾ is His mercy; the ḥāʾ is His wisdom; the mīm is His kingdom; and the nūn is His favor.

[UNCLEAR: the introductory words are damaged.] Write from the basmalah the following: bāʾ, twenty-one times, and place it among wealth; its blessing will increase. [UNCLEAR: the transition before the next writing instruction is corrupt]. If you write this number and add to it the following verse, whose letters are given as: "Peace upon Noah among the worlds." Erase it and give it to the person who has been stung to drink; he will be cured immediately by the permission of God Most High.

Whoever writes it on a sheet of paper and looks at the letter mīm forty times every day while saying, "O God, Owner of the dominion," up to the words "in Your hand is the good," will not know from where good comes to him, and God will bless what is before him.

Whoever writes al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm fifty times on a sheet, recites the basmalah over it one hundred and fifty times, carries it, and enters before a ruler or tyrant will be safe from his evil and no harm will befall him.

If he recites it one thousand times every day with sincere intention and a humble heart, after fasting and spiritual discipline, for fourteen days—or, according to another report, one thousand times after every prayer, the stated number—he will see the spiritual angels, speak with them, and they will speak with him, and he will direct them to do whatever he wishes.

Whoever writes it broken and cut into separate letters, as follows—mīm, ḥāʾ, alif, lām, rāʾ, ḥāʾ, mīm, nūn—also writes the name of the person he wants and that person's mother's name, then turns toward him; [UNCLEAR: the source says that his need will be fulfilled in what he seeks.]

Whoever writes al-Raḥmān split as “al-Raḥ / man” seven times, writes with it the name of the slave who flees, buries it in the house, and weighs it down with a stone, while saying: “O God, I ask You by the right of “In the name of God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful” and by the right of Your name al-Raḥmān to prevent this slave from absconding, O Lord of the worlds,” he will never flee or leave the house in which he is.

Whoever writes al-Raḥmān on a knife [UNCLEAR: the source’s phrase about its making and purpose is damaged], recites over it three hundred and thirty-one times, slaughters a rooster with it, and separates its head from its body — [UNCLEAR: the condition introduced by the source’s phrase about the head is corrupt], take the head and bury it beneath the threshold of the door of the desired house. All insects will leave it, as will the jinn.

If the rooster’s head is fried in good oil and the person suffering pain is anointed with it, it will benefit him greatly. If a bleeding woman carries it, it will benefit her greatly.

Whoever writes al-Raḥīm on a banner one hundred and ninety times, carries it, and enters a battle, no weapon will affect him and no illness will befall him. And whoever…

Whoever writes it on seven almonds with a yellow-copper needle on Friday during the hour of Venus, recites the name its prescribed number of times over the almonds, and feeds them to whomever he wishes, will make that person love him intensely.

Whoever writes it in this manner on a new mirror on Monday at sunrise, and the person called ṣāḥib al-lūqah [UNCLEAR: the term is obscure] looks at himself in it frequently, God Most High will heal him. Whoever writes al-rīḥī [UNCLEAR: the term is obscure] in this manner on a silver ring weighing two dirhams and carries it with him will be granted awe and obedience by God Most High.

Whoever wants to subdue every tyrant should write a wafq of Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm on a piece of lead, place the name of the person desired in the wafq, fumigate it with khintīt and red garlic, and bury it near a fire with continuously burning fuel. Beware of letting the fire touch the lead, for the person against whom the operation is performed will perish and you will be held accountable for it before God Most High. This is its form, as you see:

Bism	Allah	al-Raḥmān	al-Raḥīm	Fulan
Allah	al-Raḥmān	al-Raḥīm	Fulan	Bism
al-Raḥmān	al-Raḥīm	Fulan	Bism	Allah
Fulan	Bism	Allah	al-Raḥmān	al-Raḥīm

This is what you recite over it: “In the name of God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful; in the name of God, the Living, the Self-Subsisting, before whom faces bow, voices become humble, and hearts tremble out of fear of Him. I ask You to bless and grant peace to our master Muḥammad, his family, and his Companions, and grant peace, and to grant my need concerning Fulan. O God, You know that if he will turn back from what he is doing, then guide him and grant him success; but if You know that he will not turn back, send down upon him Your affliction and wrath and destroy him—O Subduer, O All-Subduing, O Powerful, O All-Powerful, O God”—seven times. Supplicate with this seven hundred times. The wrongdoer will either turn back from his wrongdoing or perish quickly. So fear God Most High.

Whoever writes the noble basmalah eight times in the center of a circle, writes around it the Most High’s words, “Muḥammad is the Messenger of God and those with him…” to the end of the sūrah, fumigates it with a pleasant fragrance at a fortunate time, and carries it will become feared, magnified, and honored among people. Everyone who sees him will love him and naturally incline toward him, and all his aims will succeed by the permission of God Most High.

Whoever writes the entire basmalah while the Moon is in Pisces and the ascendant is fortunate, on gazelle parchment, and carries it on his head with its prescribed number [UNCLEAR: the source’s phrase about the number is obscure], will live happily and die a martyr. He will see nothing in himself, his wealth, or his child that he dislikes.

Know—may God grant me and you success in obeying Him—that “Bism” is the concealed name, and God Most High is the Greatest Name. al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm is an attribute by which He describes Himself: He is the Most Compassionate of this world and the Merciful of the Hereafter.

“Praise be to God, Lord of the worlds” corresponds to “Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm.” Thus “Bismillah” corresponds to “Praise be to God,” and “al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm” corresponds to “Lord of the worlds.” Know that every attribute of His in the saying “Master of the Day of Judgment” is a manifestation of lordship: He is

King and Owner. Attend to clarifying speech and lights; [UNCLEAR: the connection of the following phrase, "and for seeking, the Day of Judgment," is obscure] .

Through the attribute of ownership He becomes King of kings and manifests to souls through subjugation, victory, and kingship. He is King of kings and manifests to [UNCLEAR: the source's recipient phrase is corrupt] through conferring ownership. This corresponds to His saying, "In the presence of a Powerful Sovereign."

All of this is contained in Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm. "Bismillah," which is the Name, [UNCLEAR: the source mentions conveying all the comprehensive sayings toward "al-ant" with the truth, raising the call with "the tongue of distraction" toward God, and ascent; "al-ant" and the connections between these fragments are corrupt] . The lāhūt of al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm descends to the second beginning, while Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm ascends to the first beginning.

Within it is the secret of beginning and the ranks of divine unity, because "Bism" corresponds to "I bear witness," and "Allah" corresponds to "there is no deity except Him." It contains the ranks of the angels corresponding to al-Raḥmān and those endowed with knowledge corresponding to al-Raḥīm.

Likewise, there is the relation of the quadrangular world, which is expressed in the saying of al-Raḥmān, Most High: "Those are the ones upon whom God has bestowed favor, from among the prophets, the truthful, the martyrs, and the righteous"—from the raḥīmiyyah to the raḥmāniyyah. Therefore the degrees are reached in the ascent to Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm. So the first…

The circle of Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm.

In the sound hadith: whoever comes with Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm in his scroll three hundred times, while being certain of His lordship, God Most High will free him from the Fire and admit him to the Abode of Permanence. And in the Gospel: "O Jesus, let Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm be at the opening of your recitation and your prayer. Whoever places it at the opening of his recitation and his prayer will not be seen by Munkar and Nakir. If he dies in that state, God will make death, its agonies, and the constriction of the grave easy for him; He will widen his grave for him as far as the eye can see; bring him out of his grave with a white body and a face shining with light; reckon with him by an easy reckoning; make his balance heavy; and grant him complete light upon the Bridge until he enters Paradise. He will be called in the arenas of the Resurrection with happiness and forgiveness."

Jesus, peace be upon him, said: "O Lord, for whom is this and its special privilege?" God said: "For you and for whoever follows you, takes up your way and your word. It will belong to Muhammad and his community after you." So Jesus, peace be upon him, informed his companions. When Jesus, peace be upon him, was raised to heaven, the disciples died out, and others came who went astray, altered, and substituted [UNCLEAR: the source's damaged phrase about what they substituted] . The sign of faith was then lifted from the breasts of the Christians and the monks, and it remained in the breasts of the people of the Gospel until God sent our Prophet Muhammad, peace and blessings be upon him. It was then written in the openings of the sūrahs, the registers, and the headings of letters.

The Lord of Might swore by His might that no believing servant invokes it over anything without blessing being bestowed upon it. The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: “Whoever recites Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm while being a true believer—the mountains glorify on his behalf and seek forgiveness for him, and he does not hear their glorification.”

The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: “When the servant says Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm, Paradise says: ‘Here I am, at Your service, O God. Your servant Fulan has said: In the name of God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful.’ Then their good deeds are transferred onto his evil deeds. Then [UNCLEAR: the speaker is not identified] says: ‘Glory be to God, Lord—make the good deeds of the community of Muhammad, peace and blessings be upon him, outweigh.’ Then [UNCLEAR: the speaker is not identified] says to them: ‘[UNCLEAR: the source’s next phrase is damaged].’ This is only because the beginning of their speech consisted of three names from the great names of God Most High. If they were placed in one pan of a balance, while the heavens and the earths, what is within them, and what corresponds to them were placed in the other pan, they would outweigh them. These are: Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm.”

He said: “He has made it a safeguard from every affliction and disease and a protection from the accursed Satan. Through its blessing this community has been protected from the earth swallowing them, being pelted, and metamorphosis. [UNCLEAR: the source’s concluding exhortation about presenting or advancing it, followed by an address to the Possessor of Majesty and Honor, is damaged.] This is its form, as you see; so understand, and you will be guided.”

Al-Ḥasan al-Baṣrī, may God Most High have mercy on him, said concerning the meaning of His saying: {“When you mention your Lord alone in the Qur’an, they turn their backs in aversion”}: the meaning of that is Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm. And concerning His saying, {“He made them adhere to the word of piety, and they were most deserving of it and worthy of it”}, he said that it was Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm; and it was also said: “There is no deity except God.”

Whoever writes Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm and writes it beautifully, honoring it, will be recorded by God among those brought near. It is related from ʿIkrimah that he said: “God Most High existed and there was nothing with Him. Then God created the light, and from the light He created the Tablet and the Pen. Then God Most High commanded the Pen to write upon the Tablet what is to be. The first thing the Pen wrote on the Tablet was Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm. So God Most High made it a safeguard for His creation for whoever persists in reciting it. It is recited by the inhabitants of the seven heavens and the inhabitants of the pavilions of Paradise, including the cherubic angels, the truthful, and those who glorify God.

“The first thing sent down to Adam, peace be upon him, was Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm. He said: ‘Now I know that my descendants will not be punished by the Fire so long as they persist in reciting it.’ Then it was taken up after him until the time of Abraham, peace be upon him, and it descended upon him while he was in the catapult, so God Most High saved him from the Fire.

“Then it was taken up after him until the time of Solomon. When it descended upon him, the angels said: ‘Now Solomon’s kingdom is complete.’ God Most High commanded that it be proclaimed among all the tribes, the ascetics, and the worshippers: ‘Whoever wishes to hear the sign of faith, let him come to Solomon son of David, peace be upon them both, in his father’s prayer niche.’

“He said: So they gathered before him. Solomon stood, ascended the pulpit, and recited to them the sign of faith, which was Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm. When they heard it, their joy increased, and they said: ‘We bear witness that you are truly the Messenger of God, O son of David.’

“Then it was taken up after him until the time of Moses. When it descended upon him, he subdued with it Pharaoh and his armies, Qarun, Haman, and his armies. Then it was taken up after him until the time of Jesus, peace be upon him. God revealed to him: ‘O son of Mary, have you not learned which sign has been sent down?’ He said: ‘Yes, my Lord.’ God said: ‘The sign of faith has been sent down to you, namely Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm. Therefore persist in reciting it during your night and your day, on your journey and when you come, while sitting and standing, while eating, and in all your states. Whoever comes on the Day of Resurrection with it in his scroll, God will forgive him his preceding sins.’”

And it is related of one of the righteous that he went to one of the saints to visit him and seek his supplication and blessing. He found people gathered at the saint’s door, waiting for him to come out, [UNCLEAR: the next phrase mentions a rainbow and someone placing his foot, but the actor and their relation are corrupt]. Someone said: “In the name of God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful.” The shaykh who had come to visit him was called al-Madīḥī. When he saw what the shaykh had done, he cried out and said: “The men have gone ahead, while we remain as we are!” Then the shaykh took up earnest effort and striving.

[UNCLEAR: the initial word is damaged.] He joined the solitary ones (al-afrād). The one who [UNCLEAR: the source’s wording about an act involving the mentioned Qaws Quzaḥ is damaged] was Abū ʿAbd Allāh al-Raḥāḥī, may God Most High be pleased with him. So look, my brother, at what is contained in Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm and [UNCLEAR: the intervening phrase concerning its placer is damaged], up to His saying, Most High: “It is from Solomon, and it is: In the name of God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful.” It consists of nineteen letters, corresponding to the number of its dots, without repetition. These are: Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm. The mīm is repeated three times in it, the lām four times, and the rāʾ twice; the bāʾ is repeated, as are the sīn and the hāʾ. The repeated letters total nine.

[UNCLEAR: the source’s following wording about the letter patterns is damaged.] It gives the mīm as “mm,” the alif as “aaa,” the lām as “lll,” the rāʾ as “rr,” and the ḥāʾ as “ḥḥ.” From this it follows that Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm contains ten letters that are not repeated, including the bāʾ. [UNCLEAR: the source’s wording about the bāʾ conveying good is awkward.] It leads to good, and it is a cold letter; for that reason, faith was always opened with it. The letter bāʾ is among the letters that remain until the Day of Resurrection, and it is an essential letter. This is because al-watr is among the secrets from the aspect of the Essence: it is an indication of the Reality, and it is from Him and to Him. *

Know that the first of the scriptures given to Abraham, peace be upon him, [UNCLEAR: the wording says this was reported in the first revelation to the Messenger of God, peace and blessings be upon him] is connected with His saying, Most High: “Recite in the name of your Lord who created; He created man from a clinging substance.” [UNCLEAR: the phrase following this verse concerning “the easiest of the bā’” is damaged.] He created from it the angels, and they are “one and eight”, glorifying God Most High and sanctifying Him.

Among the properties of Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm is that the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: “Whoever says three times in the morning: ‘In the name of God, the Greatest, by whose name nothing in the earth or in the heaven can cause harm, and He is the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing,’ no sudden affliction will strike him.” In one narration: “No paralysis will strike him.” *

It is narrated from Khālid ibn al-Walīd, may God be pleased with him, that he drank deadly poison when he sent [UNCLEAR: the object or continuation is unclear] . [UNCLEAR: the speaker of the following challenge is not identified] said: “If you are truthful and claim that poison does not harm with these words, then drink it.” He took the poison in the presence of the Companions and others, said “In the name of God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful,” drank it, and stood up unharmed. In one narration he said: “In the name of God, by whose name nothing in the earth or in the heaven can cause harm, and He is the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing.” Then he drank, and nothing harmed him; [UNCLEAR: the damaged source appears to say that he merely perspired] by the power of God. Look, my brother, at this noble Name and how it prevents the harm of poison.

By this noble Name the ship of Noah, peace be upon him, sailed; through it Abraham was saved from the Fire, and it was made coolness and peace for him. Through it comes your safety when you enter your house and when you leave it, according to the saying of the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him: “Say, when you enter your house and when you leave: ‘In the name of God we sent forth; in the name of God we went forth; and upon Him we rely.’”

You should also say it when closing a door, for Satan does not enter a house whose door was closed after it, and it is this: In the name of God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful; he does not approach it. Among its properties is that when you enter your bed, you should say: “In the name of God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful, and upon the way of the Messenger of God, peace and blessings be upon him”; nothing will befall you.

The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: “There is no ablution for one who does not mention the name of God.” [UNCLEAR: the following fragment says “and when he said, he added,” without identifying its relation or speaker] . Whoever eats with a leper and says, “Trusting in God and entrusting myself to Him,” will not be harmed by any of that. ʿUmar ibn al-Khaṭṭāb, may God be pleased with him, did this with ʿUtb al-Sūmī, who was leprous. He brought food while ʿUtb was present, invited him, ate with him, and said: “In the name of God, trusting in God and entrusting myself to Him.”

By this noble Name healing is sought for the eye [UNCLEAR: the source does not specify whether this means the eye itself or the evil eye] . Strike your hand upon the eye and say: “In the name of God, trusting and relying upon Him. O God, remove its heat and its persistent affliction.”

You should also say it when you set your foot among the riders and intend to travel. Say it, for no disliked harm will reach you. When the believing servant says Bismillah al-Raḥmān al-Raḥīm, Satan becomes small until he is like a fly. The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, used to recite it for anyone setting out as a traveler and instructed him, when he mounted, to say: “In the name of God and upon the way of the Messenger of God, peace and blessings be upon him.” The Messenger of God, peace and blessings be upon him, said that he should begin his journey with it and say: “I seek refuge in God from Satan…”

the accursed Satan and from the hardships of travel, to its end. The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said to Ṭalḥah ibn ʿUbayd Allāh when his she-camel threw him and broke his neck: “If you had said ‘In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate,’ the angels would have lifted you while the people looked on.” So look at the blessing of this noble Name: the angels lift the one who utters it, the devils depart when it is mentioned, and poison is neutralized when it is mentioned. Your master has made its worth known to you, and by the Lord of Might—how wondrous are its virtue and its secret! Do not make a movement or remain still except by God’s permission, and do not doubt; all of this is contained within “In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate.”

Jesus recited it as a healing incantation for pains and ailments. Whoever writes the form of the bāʾ on Friday, fasts the preceding Thursday, and carries it on his right upper arm—God will open his breast, remove laziness from him, and make blessing appear upon him. He will see the lights of the angels, and their higher and lower forms will appear. A standing form, complete in shape and pleasant in scent, will appear and utter the bāʾ. He will see the light fixed, its radiance not changing. When the name of the bāʾ is mentioned, its light appears upon its essence. It is among the hidden names. [UNCLEAR: the source’s description of the appearing form and light is obscure.]

These letters, when they occur in a name containing the bāʾ, benefit every dry pain and every difficult pain, which becomes easier by permission of God Most High. They are al-Barr, al-Bārī, al-Bāqī, and al-Bāʿith; within them is the secret of guidance, and all of this is contained in “In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate.” The standing alif is the head of the bāʾ, and it is the extension within the essence of the bāʾ, as follows. The bāʾ appears in His Most High names al-Baṣīr, al-Badīʿ, and al-Bāṭin. Each name therefore has a particular meaning. al-Barr, for people of righteousness, helps with righteous deeds and honoring parents.

Whoever mentions it for any matter two hundred and thirty-three times, after combining it with whichever of its names he wishes, should proceed as follows: take, for example, the name ʿAmr and its letters; then take the first letter of the name al-Barr and place it at the beginning of the line. Next take the first letter of the name ʿAmr and place it after that, continuing to the end of the two names, as follows: alif, ʿayn, mīm, rāʾ, wāw, bāʾ, rāʾ, wāw. Then take it, break it apart, and expand it until the first name returns. Then make the last one [UNCLEAR: the instruction lacks a clear complement] and drop it: ʿayn, lām, mīm, bāʾ, wāw, rāʾ, hāʾ. Then make the first one last and drop the last; [UNCLEAR: the source says that four mixed lines remain but visibly lists only] alif, rāʾ, ʿayn; rāʾ, lām, bāʾ; mīm.

Write them on whatever you wish, place them in your pocket, and recite over them the following. You say: “[UNCLEAR: the invocation begins with ‘O Lord,’ ‘mīm,’ ‘Lord of piety,’ ‘Lord of lords,’ ‘my nurturer,’ and ‘the Gentle One’; the remaining letter sequences and wording are damaged.]” The continuation contains [UNCLEAR: damaged fragments about the flow of God’s gentleness and rejoicing in the sweetness of that sea, through which spirits know His secrets]. “Grant me a name from the names of Your power by which I may supplicate You, and [UNCLEAR: the preceding fragment reads waq] protect me from the evil of what You have created in the earth, what emerges from it, what descends from heaven, and what ascends in it. Truly You are Gentle, Aware, Preserving, Knowing.”

As for His Most High name al-Bārī, it is for healing illnesses and swellings. al-Bāʿith has properties for both of them that will be given in their proper places, if God Most High wills.

(As for the letter sīn) when God Most High created it from the world of His command, He sent down with it nine thousand eight hundred angels. It is the first letter among the letters of the Greatest Name. The Greatest Name has an outward and an inward: through its outward, the heavens were established, and through its inward, the higher realms of the Footstool and the Throne were established. Therefore the sīn occurs at the beginning of the heavens, and in that is the rank of the Footstool.

Since the bāʾ is connected with power and is concealed for concealed things, [UNCLEAR: the source's doctrine is obscure]. The bāʾ is "from you to you"; so you say, "He, He," and he says, " [UNCLEAR: the speaker is not identified clearly; the following word reads approximately 'dhabnī'] ."

In Sūrat Yā Sīn there is a name among the names of wisdom. Whoever stops at it, writes it, and erases it with rainwater while facing the qiblah, [UNCLEAR: after doing so for a number of days corresponding to the number of names], God Most High will make him speak with wisdom. It is in the middle of the sūrah. The sūrah has sixteen letters, including two letters dotted above and two letters dotted below; it consists of five words, the first beginning with the letter sīn and the last ending with the letter mīm. The letter sīn appears in His names al-Salām, al-Samīʿ, and al-Sarīʿ. It is especially the name of those who persist in supplication. And as for [UNCLEAR: the page ends here with an incomplete continuation].

[Continuation concerning] al-Sarīʿ: whoever mentions it— [UNCLEAR: the source's phrase "O its preparer" is obscure] —and asks God Most High for something, He gives it to him. Whoever has a need should draw it on his palm and supplicate with the Names, multiplied by the days; let him complete the prescribed count when he invokes, for God Most High answers his supplication. Its number, multiplied by the days, is four thousand two hundred and seventy-seven repetitions. It is for whoever wishes to see spirits and ask them questions, and they answer him. It contains hidden secrets and manifest works. So strive and act, and you will attain. *

As for His Most High Name al-Samīʿ, whoever adds al-Baṣīr to it, saying, "O All-Hearing, O All-Seeing," and writes them at an auspicious time: if someone who has fainted carries them, that person will recover at once. This is the utmost attainment of the people of secrets. For when they came to it [UNCLEAR: the destination antecedent and the following location wording are unclear], they found Ibrāhīm ibn Jārūḥ, who had fainted. A wafq was drawn for him, and he carried it after mentioning the Name seven hundred times; he recovered, and what he was suffering left him, by permission of God Most High. Whoever writes it in gold and carries it with him will hear the languages of the jinn and exercise authority over whatever he wishes among the spirits. Whoever persists in it will have the secrets of creation disclosed to him, will be informed about what lies in their hearts, will see the conditions of all servants, and will witness the secrets. *

As for His Most High Name al-Salām, it is for seeking safety and security. It is the invocation of the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him: "O Peace."

The letter mīm is a realm among the realms of letters. Every letter whose end is like its beginning, such as wāw, mīm, and nūn, points to totality because of the union within it, and points to stillness because of the awe within it. It is among the letters of the Tablet. When God Most High created it, He created it as a concealed light, [UNCLEAR: the source's phrase about it being whispered or suffused with light is obscure]. It is among the letters of the intellect because of its encompassing, and from it the sun draws in the fourth sphere. Through its secret God Most High established the kingdom and the dominion and manifested the world through the mīm. He aided it in its works through the secret of the mīm-light. It is the final rank in Bism, and within it is the secret of reaching full strength. God Most High said: “until, when he reached his full strength and reached forty years.”

The numerical value assigned to the mīm is forty, and God Most High has entrusted it to ninety angels from the angels of the spirit. It is the secret that God Most High deposited in the name of His Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, at its beginning. That is the ease of the dominion; in its middle is the ease of the kingdom. Thus the world of the kingdom and the world of the dominion come together.

Whoever looks at the form of the mīm forty times every day while saying, “Say: O God, Owner of the kingdom,” up to His saying, Most High, “without reckoning,” God Most High will make the means of good and blessing easy for him, and he will not know from where his provision comes. [UNCLEAR: the source’s sentence about the form and the later discussion of it being an incoming on Wednesday is abrupt.] The form is the subject on which the discussion will follow, and it has an appointed occurrence on Wednesday.

If someone draws its numerical secret after fasting forty days, maintaining ritual purity and the remembrance of God Most High, facing the qiblah in complete purity, when the Moon is in the auspicious mansions and during the hour of the Sun, no blameworthy thought will occur to its bearer. God Most High will open for him the realities of faith and the sacred lights, and he will be safe from every harm. Whoever supplicates with it on Friday while fasting and constant in remembrance, whatever his need, it will be fulfilled by permission of God Most High. Whoever carries it while pursuing a livelihood will have his good increase and his provision made easy from where he does not expect. It also serves to bring hearts together, make them affectionate, and draw them toward the person who seeks this.

* [UNCLEAR: the source then adds that this is an addition for whoever contemplates it; its form and image come with the seven forms for the seven days, God Most High willing.]

Know that whoever understands the secrets of the mīm, its encompassing and its conformity, and the worlds contained within it, will witness wonders of colors. Whoever wants God to make memorization easy for him should write this numerical secret on Thursday while pure, facing the qiblah, together with the name of the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, forty times. He should erase it, drink it with water and bee honey, and say: “O God, by the blessing of what I have drunk, make memorization and understanding easy for me.” Let him continue this for forty days; God will open for him an outward or inward understanding of its secret. There he witnesses the power of what it conceals from every world, in the secret by which He established the mīm. [UNCLEAR: the following phrase reads li-hādhihi ahimmah; its relation to the statement that the opening occurs is damaged.] As for its letter-form, it is among the secrets.

the hidden secrets. Whoever wishes to see the outcome of his affair should fast that day sincerely for God Most High, break his fast with whatever bread is available, recite Sūrat al-Mulk, sleep in a state of purity on his right side with it beneath his head, speak to no one, and sleep. God Most High will show him the outcome of his affair according to the portion he intended. This is suitable only for people whose hearts are pure and for people of spiritual discipline.

Whoever writes it in a glass bowl and drinks it will have understanding and wisdom made easy for him by God. Whoever hangs it upon himself will be made to speak with wisdom by God Most High. Whoever writes it together with “There is no deity except God; Muḥammad is the Messenger of God” eighty times and carries it on his right upper arm, or writes it on a garment and wears it, will be granted awe and compassion by God.

If you wish to take as brothers believing jinn who will fulfill your needs and seek your satisfaction, begin fasting on Wednesday and continue until the fourth day, Saturday, after washing the garment and the body. Recite Sūrat al-Ikhlāṣ one thousand times each day, and recite Sūrat Yā Sīn, Sūrat al-Dukhān, Tanzīl al-Sajdah, and “Blessed is He in whose hand is the kingdom” once.

When Saturday afternoon arrives, at the tenth hour, withdraw from people to a secluded place in a clean spot. Take seven barāʾāt [UNCLEAR: the term appears to mean written slips or sheets] made of paper. On the first write the saying of God Most High: “He is the One who gives life and causes death, and to Him belongs the alternation of night and day.” On the second write the saying of God Most High: “When He decrees a matter, He only says to it, ‘Be,’ and it is.” On the third write the saying of God Most High: “God will suffice you against them, and He is the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing.” On the fourth write the saying of God Most High: “Then, when He calls you with a single call from the earth, behold, you come forth.” On the fifth write: “Then, behold, they will hasten from the graves to their Lord.” On the sixth write: “And the Trumpet is blown,” up to His saying: “Then, behold, they are standing and looking.” On the seventh write: “On the day they come forth swiftly from the graves, God will suffice you against them, and He is the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing.”

Do this after praying four rakʿahs: al-Fātiḥah and Yā Sīn in the first; al-Dukhān in the second; and al-Fātiḥah, al-Sajdah, and Tabāraka al-Mulk in the third. [UNCLEAR: the source does not specify the recitation for the fourth rakʿah.] At the end of every prostration say:

“Glory be to Him who donned might and spoke by it. Glory be to Him who clothed Himself in praise and was ennobled by it. Glory be to Him who encompassed everything through His knowledge. Glory be to Him to whom alone glorification is fitting. Glory be to Him who, when He wills a thing, says to it, ‘Be,’ and it is. Glory be to Him who, when He wills a thing, it comes to be, and what He does not will does not come to be. Glory be to the Possessor of favor, bounty, and blessings. Glory be to the Possessor of knowledge and forbearance. Glory be to the Possessor of power and bounty. Glory be to the Possessor of the Throne, the Tablet, the Pen, and the Light.”

Then raise your head and say: “O God, I ask You by the seats of might of Your Throne, by the utmost limit of mercy in Your Book, by Your Great—Greatest Name, by Your Noble—Most Noble Face, and by Your perfect words, to subject for me a helper from among the righteous jinn who will assist me with whatever I seek of the needs of this world.” Seven people from among their nobles and great ones will appear to you; they will greet you and obey your command.

Before reading the names, hang seven barāʾāt upon yourself on a thread like a ṭarṭūr [UNCLEAR: a conical headpiece or turban], and place it on your head before beginning the prayer. Keep wax with you. Take the barāʾāt from the seven that you wrote, read them to the jinn, and say: “Honor the owner of this barāʾah, the owner of this sheet.” One of them will say, “I am its owner.” Ask him, “What is your name?” and he will say, “So-and-so.” Write his name on the sheet. Then say, “Your seal.” Take the thread and wax and seal the bottom of the sheet with them, as one seals a written document. Do the same with each of them until you reach the seventh.

Then say: “ [UNCLEAR: the source’s oath reads approximately, ‘I adjure you by the names contained in this sheet: attend and answer my summons whenever I summon you.’] ” Say: “ [UNCLEAR: the following short command is damaged; it appears to ask for help and invoke God’s blessing upon and among them.] ” Then lift the barāʾāt and the sealed sheet and place them in a pure location. Whenever you have a need for food, drink, knowledge of something, a treasure, a hidden object, or anything else, summon them and they will answer you quickly, by permission of God Most High. Beware of being weak.

[Continuation concerning] a firm heart and resolve, a highly astute mind, a steady intellect, and a strong heart; you must be practiced in seclusion and spiritual disciplines. If you are not such a person, beware of summoning them, lest you harm yourself. Beware of witnessing them, for that exposes the heart’s veil. If you restrict yourself to the octagonal seal mentioned earlier, it is sufficient, God Most High willing.

Whoever writes the seal on gazelle parchment and hangs it on a person suffering bodily ailments, such as fevers, chills, and other conditions, will see them depart. This is because the secrets of numbers have an intellectual power: numbers point to the spiritual world, while letters point to the corporeal world. Within this, the spirituality of letters appears through the subtleties of corporeal things, and numbers through the subtleties of spiritual things.

Whoever understands the secret of the mīm will have revealed to him the secret of the ringing of the bell, which is the sent-down revelation. The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, was asked: “How does revelation come to you, O Messenger of God?” He said: “Sometimes it comes like the ringing of a bell, and sometimes the angel appears to me, speaks to me, and I retain what he says.” The bell is the jingle-bell. Do you not see that when bells are gathered around the necks of horses and camels and they move as they walk, you hear the bell’s resonance from a distance? This is the description of revelation in the ringing of the bell. The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said that this was the hardest form of it for him.

[UNCLEAR: the source’s connective wording is damaged.] The comparison of the letter mīm to the bell is because of its roundness, its closure, and the severity of its matter. Do you not hear what he, peace be upon him, said in describing Isrāfīl, peace be upon him: the greatness of his creation, his strength, and his obedience; how he carried on his shoulder one of the legs of the Throne despite its greatness; the Tablet between his eyes despite its greatness and the size of its body; and the Trumpet, whose breadth is the distance of a five-hundred-year journey, which he has taken into his mouth? He has placed one foot forward and the other backward, and his feet pierce the seventh, lowest earth down to its limits.

The mīm was in the final rank because the Trumpet is for terror, swooning, and resurrection. Isrāfīl fixes his gaze upon the Throne, waiting to be commanded to blow the Trumpet. The blowing cannot emerge without the lips joining, and the mīm is produced by the lips joining; he cannot produce it without the lips joining. Thus the comparison was made to the ringing of the bell and the [UNCLEAR: source’s phrase “Mūsawī ringing”] .

Ringing, by its nature, is a spiritual movement. The movement of the ringing and the mīm has two directions: an upper direction, which is the mīm, and a lower direction, which is the second mīm in the detailed text—thus: mīm.

Since the mīm has a secret in the higher spiritual realms and in the lower corporeal realms, numbers likewise have a relation to the higher realms, while their letters hold secrets in the lower realms. This is a letter outside the totality, and in it is moisture between two heats, in detail. The heats are the first and second mīms, thus: mīm. From these two heats came its utterance and its agitation. Were it not for the moist yāʾ separating the two heats, it would make the two rugged mountains speak— [UNCLEAR: the technical image is obscure] . Know this and verify it.

Through the letter mīm [UNCLEAR: the clause linking it to every lofty concealed Name is incomplete] ; it is “In the name of God,” and God is the giver of success. The letter mīm is what is indicated in the name of the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him.

Whoever writes the letter mīm, its form and its wafq, recites over it what is to be recited, and [UNCLEAR: observes or places it according to the source’s damaged wording] , then enters with it before kings, rulers, judges, and governors, will be accepted by them and his word will carry authority. Awe will be granted to him, so that even if he faced a lion, it would be humbled before him, fear him, and turn away fleeing. If he enters battle with it, he will overcome his enemy and his enemy will fall before him; no enemy approaches him with it without his gaining victory over that enemy. He will be beloved among people, honored and esteemed; he will love everyone who sees him and naturally incline toward that person. It has many great and beneficial properties. Understand this. God speaks the truth and guides to the way. This is its form.

Some of the imams have indicated that whoever sincerely devotes himself to spiritual struggle and discipline, frees himself from desire, anger, ugly character traits, and evil deeds, sits in a secluded place, closes the pathways of the senses, opens the eyes of sight and hearing, aligns the heart with the world of the dominion, and strives—repeating "Allah" constantly in the heart rather than on the tongue—until he has no existence from himself and sees nothing but God Most High, a window will open for him through which he sees while awake what he sees in sleep. The spirits of angels and prophets and beautiful, lovely forms will appear to him. The dominion of the heavens and the earth will be unveiled to him, and he will see what cannot be explained or adequately described.

The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: “The earth was folded for me, and I saw all of its eastern and western reaches.” God also said to His Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him: “Remember the name of your Lord and devote yourself to Him with complete devotion.” Complete devotion means severing oneself from everything, purifying the hearts, and supplicating Him wholeheartedly. This is the path of the Sufis in this age.

Know that among the properties of lordship is knowledge of His beautiful Names and His lofty, tremendous attributes—especially the Greatest Name of God, which He alone possesses in His majesty and glory: there is no deity but Him; He has no child and no parent. God is one deity.

Therefore, one of the saints said to one of the scholars: “I want to teach you a practice; perhaps you will be able to undertake it.” He replied: “Yes.” The saint said to him: “Persist in remembering God Most High, which is your saying ‘Allah, Allah’; remember nothing besides Him. Fast during the day as a spiritual discipline, stand in prayer during the night as much as you can, and remain devoted to the remembrance without leaving it night or day. Do not speak to anyone, and withdraw from people for seven days; the wonders of the earth will appear to you. Then continue that for another seven days; the wonders of the higher dominion will appear to you. If you reach forty days, God will show you miracles and grant you control over created things.” [UNCLEAR: the page ends with the fragment “and people have spoken.”]

SCAN PAGE 054 · PRINTED FOLIO 48 Discussion on the Essence of Allah's Self: Is It Known to Humans?

— 48 —

On the essence of the Self of God Most High: is it known to human beings or not? It was answered that it is not known. The reason given is that a thing is known by direct observation when it is present, and by comparison when it is absent; but God Most High is not like anything, and is not seen by direct observation. God Most High said: {Vision does not apprehend Him, while He apprehends the visions, and He is the Subtle, the Aware}. Some of the investigators said: since His pre-eternity, Most High is He, is established without beginning, His permanence without end, His oneness not from any number, and His attributes exterior to the attributes of creation, it follows that those who describe Him cannot reach the full reality of His attribute; for if it were so, a limit and a likeness would appear to it, and that leads to departure and annihilation, and that is impossible in respect of God Most High.

Al-Muḥāṣibī, may God Most High have mercy on him, said: when Jibrīl descended upon the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, with the Greatest Name, in a sheet from the leaves of Paradise, sealed with a signet of musk, upon which was written: "O Allah, I ask You by Your Name, the stored, the concealed, the pure, the purified, the holy, the Ever-Living, the Sustainer of all, the Merciful, the Compassionate, Possessor of Majesty and Honor." Anas said: a woman said, "Teach it to me, O Messenger of God." The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: "It is not to be taught to women and boys." Some of the scholars asked some of the imams to compile for him words by which he would supplicate in his important affairs, so he wrote for him this blessed supplication, and it is this: "O Allah, I ask You by Your Name, that You are Allah, the sanctified in the realities of pure specialization; and that You are Allah, [UNCLEAR: the clause that follows speaks of every state, earnestness, and adjustment, but their relationship is not expressed clearly]; and that You are Allah, sanctified by the properties of oneness and self-sufficiency against the opposite, the match, the contrary, and the like; and that You are Allah, there is nothing like unto Him, and He is the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing — that You send blessings upon our master Muhammad, and that You decree all my needs a decree in which there is the good of this world and the Hereafter, guarded by care from afflictions, marked by the properties of care, restored to good things. O You who in truth are worthy of being feared, worthy of granting forgiveness, and worthy of good deeds. O Allah, this is the request of a servant for the might of Your lordship, by the manifestation of the request that You are the Knower of the unseen and the Witness of the realities of requests before they reach the hearts; so complete it with a beautiful ending and the best of what is sought, and may Allah send blessings upon our master Muhammad, beloved of the hearts." In this supplication is the Greatest Name, as it has come in "In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate" that there is nothing between it and the Greatest Name except [UNCLEAR: a comparison mentioning whiteness, the black part of the eye, and its white part; the comparison itself is internally disrupted]. And Allah says the truth, and He guides the way, and may Allah send blessings upon our master Muhammad and his family and his companions and grant them peace.

(The sixth chapter on seclusion and what belongs to those who perform the retreats that lead to the higher things)

Know — and may God grant me and you success in His obedience — that this chapter, great in importance, is the means by which the Name of the Mighty, the Merciful is attained. Some of the righteous among the imams of the religion performed a retreat in the house of the sermon in the congregational mosque of Aleppo, and it was dark like a grave, and it had no opening for light except from the door, so when the door was shut it became like a grave. He used to pray with the congregation and go out with his back at the time of the standing of the prayer, then when the imam gave the salām he would enter in the state he was in, facing the qiblah, and would not look at anyone. And most of his supplication and entreaty and his asking of God Most High in all his times was that He should teach him the Greatest Name.

So while he was thus, one night, sitting, diligently striving in effort and supplication to God Most High with remembrance, behold a tablet of light had appeared between his eyes, in which were depicted forms. So he turned away from it, lest he be occupied by looking at it and distracted from turning toward God Most High. [UNCLEAR: the wording about reminding him with it before his face is disrupted.] It was said to him: "Take what you will benefit from." At that, he opened his eye and turned to the tablet to contemplate it, and behold it was four lines: a line above, and a line below, and one on the right, and one on the left. In the middle was a circle, and inside the circle another, and between the two circles was the measure of the opening. In the middle of the small circle was a line cutting it in half, and in the upper half, at the meeting of the two lines, two other lines ran to the cutting line in a triangular shape written there, and in its middle, from the pole of the circle: {Nay, but it is Allah} and [UNCLEAR: the final inscription reads approximately ḥā'-yā'-mīm fī ummah; its meaning is not clear].

At the corner of the two lines, and at the end of the right-hand line that meets the diameter of the circle, is the letter dāl. Written along the diameter-line is the name al-Ṣamad: its beginning is at the triangle's line and its end reaches near the circle; on the circle of the diameter is a dāl. Below the circle are the alif and the name al-Wāḥid, God Most High, in front of the name al-Ṣamad. From the corner, the name al-Qahhār is at the upper part of the line and the circle, inside the line—that is, the northern line of the triangle that meets the diameter of the circle. On the diameter, [UNCLEAR: the source has the diagrammatic word riwāyatih], that is, the line that meets the diameter of the circle, are the name al-Raḥmān and the name al-Raḥīm, from the triangle's line to the circle; behind it is the name al-Ghafūr. Inside the triangle, on the diameter, is the letter ṭā'; and in the lower half, on the diameter, there is a quarter-circle line and another line issuing from it and ending at the semicircle. Inside this line is written "Sijill"; inside the other [UNCLEAR: the source's diagrammatic phrase from the diameter is not secure] is written "bi-l-nūr." At the end opposite the circle, the letter zāy is written on the outside. Inside it—the quarter-circle—is written the letter hā' in Indian script, and outside it is written [UNCLEAR: ʿAbdalnā, an unspaced diagram inscription]. Inside the other line, from a quarter-circle to the semicircle, is written "Mukhtār". From the corner where the other two lines meet to the semicircle is written the wāw; and "Those are ten complete" is written, extending [UNCLEAR: the source's positional term ākhidh is not secure] to half the diameter. Opposite the head of the wāw, at the upper diameter of the outer circle, is written: "Alif-lām-mīm. Allah—there is no deity but He, the Ever-Living, the Sustainer." The disjoined letters are opposite the jīm that is inside the triangle; the yā' of al-Ḥayy is opposite the wāw at the bottom of the circle; and the mīm of al-Qayyūm is opposite the "mother of the circle" [UNCLEAR: a diagrammatic term] at its edge. Written on the outside is: "And Allah encompasses them from behind." On the other side, outside the circle, is written: "Rather, it is a glorious Qur'ān in a preserved tablet."

He said: "[UNCLEAR: the source's clause istaqbalta al-kayfiyyah bi-l-ghālib is semantically unresolved]; the figure disappeared from me." Then I prayed and sat down and began reciting my wird, and sleep overcame me. While I was asleep, I saw the Commander of the Faithful, ʿAlī ibn Abī Ṭālib. He said to me, "Where is the tablet that you saw?" I had a depiction of it with me, so I handed it to him. He took it and said things about its meaning that I did not understand; from them I recognized only one word—namely, that the Commander of the Faithful, may Allah be pleased with him, placed his index finger on the jīm at the corner of the triangle in the upper half of the circle and said, "From here majesty issues forth." Then I knew that it was the Greatest Name of Allah and that the names indicate the sacred Essence. I said to him, "O Commander of the Faithful, I did not understand what you said to me." He said to me, "Muḥammad ibn Ṭalḥah will explain it to you, if God Most High, wills." Then my wird ended and I went to Muḥammad ibn Ṭalḥah. There was between him and me a bond of brotherhood in God Most High. I told him the story; he praised God Most High, and began explaining the circle. He called it al-Durr al-Munazzam fī Sharḥ al-Ism al-Aʿẓam; it was also called "On the Greatest Secret." After that I saw the Messenger of Allah, peace and blessings be upon him, sitting in the miḥrāb, while the Commander of the Faithful ʿAlī was speaking of the tablet. ʿAlī said to me, "The sacred name does not depend on anything other than itself in its signification." The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said to him, "By the truth of the Truth, this is how Jibrīl, peace be upon him, taught it to me." When I awoke from my dream, I came to the shaykh and told him of the occurrence. He was silent for a while, reached his hand behind him, and brought out a slip containing this exact wording—meaning the sacred name.

It did not depend on anything else for its indication. When I saw that, I said to him, "Do not put it in the commentary." He said, "I thought that you would not show it to anyone other than me." Then he sought forgiveness of God Most High and appended it to the commentary, as has preceded, and called it as we have described it:

A secret among the secrets of God Most High, attained only by the truthful who remain steadfast in piety; a great name and a noble secret. If you know it, human beings and jinn will obey you. Keep it from those who are not fit for it, and fear Allah in private and in public; your affairs will prosper by permission of God Most High. This is its form:

[Letter-string: Kāf Hā’ Yā’ ʿAyn Ṣād | Alif Lām Mīm | Alif Lām Hā’ | Lām | Lām Hā’ | Lām Alif Lām | Alif Lām Hā’ | Alif Hā’ | Wāw | Kāf Yā’ ʿAyn Ṣād.]

Rather, it is a glorious Qur’ān in a preserved tablet.
One, Self-Sufficient, Subduer.
Ḥā Mīm: they will not be aided.
Ḥā Mīm ʿAyn Sīn Qāf.

Ḥā Mīm ʿAyn Sīn Qāf; the Ever-Living, the Sustainer, O Merciful One.

Know that the letters placed in its corners are the letters of the triangle. They are the endpoints of the nine numbers, which are the initial letters of Abjad, as follows: alif, bāʾ, jīm, dāl, hāʾ, wāw, zāy, ḥāʾ, ṭāʾ, yāʾ. The tenth yāʾ in it is for calling; one says: "O Allah, O Raiser-Forth, O Majestic, O One, O Ever-Living One, O Preserver, O Manifest One." These are nine names [UNCLEAR: the source calls them nine although only seven invocations are visibly listed] ; they have gathered the ingenuity of this great figure, and this is it:

In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate. O Allah, I ask You by Your being Allah in the realities of particularization; by Your being Allah, sanctified by the properties of oneness and self-sufficiency, beyond opposite, peer, contrary, and helper; and by Your being Allah, like whom there is nothing, and who is the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing. I ask You to send blessings and peace upon our master Muhammad and upon the family of our master Muhammad; and I ask You to fulfill my need and whatever contains the good of this world and the Hereafter, encompassed by care and preserved from afflictions through the properties of solicitous care. O One who repeatedly brings good things; O You who are in truth worthy of piety and worthy of forgiveness. This has preceded in the chapter before it, and this is the end of the greatest figure. Engrave and derive whatever you wish: you will find it and attain the request and every hope. For it is red sulphur and a pearl—ruby. Understanding its secret is not attained; he attained his affair [UNCLEAR: the subject and syntactic attachment of this clause are unresolved] , by permission of God Most High.

(Another section from it.) He—may God Most High have mercy on him—said: I was in my seclusion when I saw a figure and a circle within a circle, and in it was the form of the Name of Majesty, which is the Greatest Name of Allah. Every name had branched from it, and within it was the ʿayn [UNCLEAR: the technical referent is not resolved] of the Name of Majesty. When this figure had become fixed in my mind and heart, this state separated from me, and the luminous figure rose away, I inscribed it on paper and returned to my reflection. I said: 'Perhaps I can derive from this name approximately ninety-nine names.' I began to do so and took one; it was said to me concerning it: 'Gratitude for recognition, with success' [UNCLEAR: the exact syntactic relation of the phrase is irregular] . So I sought forgiveness of God Most High and turned back from that thought. These are nineteen names that issued from the Name of Majesty, and the Name of Majesty issuing from it is the conclusion of the ten [UNCLEAR: the source mentions nineteen and then this unresolved relation to ten] . Indeed, it has benefits not doubted by one who knows how to use it and has seen its effect. Whoever desires a worldly or otherworldly matter, let him purify himself and face the qiblah in a place empty of people after performing two rakʿahs, with good intention and good recourse to [UNCLEAR: the source page ends here; the object is absent] .

[UNCLEAR: continuation from the preceding page.] God Most High in the middle of the night and its latter part, and he mentions the twenty names with a present heart, so that he is not occupied with anything of what he is engaged in [UNCLEAR: the scope of this negative clause is internally awkward in the source] . He recites them 1,773 times or 130 times and asks God Most High for his need; it is fulfilled by God Most High's permission, especially if he intends the facilitation of knowledge. God Most High opens for him, through His name al-ʿAlīm, paths, and he sees wonders, some of which can be uttered and some of which cannot be attached to [UNCLEAR: the source's phrase about what cannot be attached is opaque].

If a person writes this circle and places it among his belongings, in travel and residence, he is guarded by God Most High's permission. Whoever writes it, hangs it on his right upper arm, and walks with it among his enemies, God Most High saves him from them and abandons them. Whoever enters with it before someone whose evil he fears, among the tyrants, that person is humbled before him and submits to him; God Most High turns that person's heart and might before him, and that person's self is cut off toward his will [UNCLEAR: the source compresses the relation of the person's heart, might, and self to the bearer's will]. God Most High gives him his requests and suffices him against every evil because of the wondrous secrets in it.

Whoever writes it with rose water, musk, saffron, hair, and fragrant camphor, and gives it to drink to someone who has a bodily ailment or a soul-related ailment, the text says that he is cured by God Most High's permission. Its bearer is given strength in body, self, and spirit, and the names give him awe and majesty, so that he witnesses this with no doubt.

Whoever mentions the names after the dawn prayer every day, seventy-seven times, as part of his litanies, sees from God Most High's gentleness what cannot be encompassed by enumeration, so that hardly does an aspiration attach itself to anyone among created beings. If one of the tyrants wrongs him or someone harms him and he wants revenge, let him mention the names in full in the first hour and invoke evil against the one who wronged and harmed him; the text claims that God Most High will take revenge on him before a week and grant him victory over him. These are the names:

O God; O All-Hearing; O Swift One; O Originator; O Just One; O Giver of Honor; O Abaser.

Whoever wants reconciliation between those who hate one another [UNCLEAR: the source's transmitted term is unusual; the context suggests mutually hostile people] should write them, erase them, and give them to both of them to drink; the text claims that they will love one another, by God Most High's permission. Or [for] a person's love [UNCLEAR: the source's phrase is elliptical]: he will love you with intense love if he drinks it on Sunday at the hour of the Sun or Mercury and it is fumigated with fragrant incense—oud, mastic, amber, jāwī, musk, and nadd—and that will occur, if God Most High wills. It has many properties, which we have abridged for fear of length.

These are the twenty names referred to; say: O God; O All-Hearing; O All-Knowing; O Swift One; O Benefactor; O Just One; O High One; O Magnificent One; O Exalted One; O Mighty One; O Pardoner; O Raiser-Forth; O Doer of whatever He wills; O Elevated One; O Worshipped One; O Withholder; O Originator; O Sufficient One; O Compassionate One. [UNCLEAR: the source calls this twenty names, but the transmitted sequence has nineteen vocative units; no missing name is supplied.]

This is the description of the circle, and this is its prayer; say:

Honor me with Your words in life and death, so that I may attain the paths of the ʿawārif, and provide me with ʿirfān from You, O Tender One, O Bestower, O Lord of the worlds.

{ Another chapter from it } This is that by which Jesus—peace be upon him—used to revive the dead, by the permission of God Most High; and it is the al-Ism al-Aʿẓam [Greatest Name], the great, the greater, the good, the pure, the purified, the complete, the stored, the hidden; all the names belong to it.

Asad ibn Mūsā narrated it to me, from al-Sulamī, from Abū Ṣāliḥ, and he said: Indeed, this stored, hidden name— [UNCLEAR: the following phrase literally reads "from his books," but does not connect coherently to the procedure] —while fasting, pure in garment and body, on Sunday at sunrise; fumigate it with Indian ʿūd and red mandal on gazelle parchment or clean paper, and carry it on your forearm. Good things hasten to it, and he witnesses wondrous things from its blessing, without doubt in them [UNCLEAR: the source shifts the subject and object across this procedure and claim].

And this is the name associated with the sending of Moses son of ʿImrān [UNCLEAR: the wording baʿatha bihi does not identify the sender or recipient clearly], when God said: "Indeed, I am Allah; there is no deity except Me, so worship Me."

And by this name Zubayda used to control Hārūn al-Rashīd, and he did nothing except by her word and opinion. And from his books and his slaughtering [UNCLEAR: the source phrase is malformed], he hung it facing the sun, where it rises upon it and sets; it never left him at all throughout its day, by its hours, and then it would have acceptance among the people [UNCLEAR: the referents of "it" and the subject of the acceptance claim are unstable].

And it is this: O Allah, I ask You—O God, O Subduer, O Sustainer, O Near One, O Powerful One, O Powerful One, O Eternal One, O Eternal One, O [UNCLEAR: the next name reads Qārin; its intended sense is not certain]. You are the one who strengthened Your awliyāʾ through Your prophets [UNCLEAR: "strengthened" may also mean "ennobled"], and made Your prophets through their bearing of Your affliction [UNCLEAR: the source's relation in this clause is grammatically incomplete], and subdued the enemies by spreading the authority of the sultan of Your power and Your domination.

I ask You by Your impregnable, momentous might, by Your immense, powerful generosity, and by Your right over Your creation, the noble and the lowly, to make me mighty among creatures through independence from them and need of You; honor me with Your life diffused through the secrets of their innermost secrets, so that through it I may turn and direct myself to You; and grant me a might from Your mights for Your awliyāʾ, in rank and wealth, beside them toward You [UNCLEAR: the relation of "beside them toward You" is unresolved]. Make me mighty at the gate of the established Truth and witnessing—"no being to You" [UNCLEAR: this transmitted phrase is malformed] —and spread my might in the hearts of the people of faith, so that I may attain the secret of Your people when the proof and demonstration appear.

O Tender One, O Bestower, You are the one who hears the secret and the private whisper; You are the one who knows judgment and taqwā; You are the one who manifests the secret of opening and tajallī in the hearts of Your beloved. Rather, You hear what is subtler and more hidden, and You see with Your eye that does not sleep; the creeping of the black ant on the mute rock beneath the darknesses of the dusty earth in the dark night is not hidden from You.

O Allah, I ask You by the subtleties of what You have inserted into hearing and sight, by the fine points of what You have placed in sight, by the realities of what You have joined between hearing and sight, and by the fine points of what You have concealed in sight, so that it may fall into the place of my hearing and [that of] others; by what You have concealed in hearing so that it may take the place of sight [UNCLEAR: the clause about my hearing, others, and what is concealed is syntactically damaged]. Grant me secrets embedded within the encompassing reach of sight and scenes of the lights of its abode when hearing and sight contain one another [UNCLEAR: the scope of "its abode" and the hearing/sight containment relation are unclear].

Provide me with Your luminosity and continual watchfulness over what comes from Your highest holiness, and support me in understanding how to hold the soul accountable through the fine points of self-accounting. Indeed, You gather all good and repel all harm, O Lord of the worlds.

O Allah, I ask You: O All-Subduing One, O Most Holy One, O Sustainer, O Near One. I ask You by Your aḥadiyya essence and Your ṣamadiyya attributes. O Sustainer, who does not sleep, and King, who does not perish [UNCLEAR: the source preserves an incomplete juxtaposition here]. May Allah bless our master Muḥammad, his family, and his companions, and grant them peace.

{ The seventh chapter on the names by which 'Isā, peace be upon him, used to revive the dead }

Know—may Allah grant me and you success to His obedience and to understanding the secrets of His names—that these names are of mighty standing and noble worth. Al-Khwārazmī, may God Most High have mercy on him, said: "I sought the Greatest Name for a period of years and found it with a man of knowledge; he had gathered many of these names, and I found them written with him in the Himyaritic script so that none but their people would know them." Al-Khurāsānī, may God Most High have mercy on him, said: "Whoever fasts seven days and writes these names on the seventh day on gazelle parchment with rose-water and saffron, then calls the angels of the Thāqūqah to a task in it [UNCLEAR: the following dhāka is disconnected from the clause]—and the Thāqūqah is the quarter of the year—and swears by the names of the winds [UNCLEAR: the following phrase mentions what the Friend of the Merciful touched, but the scope of the oath is not clear], and mentions whatever need he has and seeks it; and if it is possible to be upon flowing water, that is best—and hangs them in the sun, and mentions upon them the angels of the Thāqūqah and their helpers and the winds and the stars belonging to it, then the need is fulfilled by permission of Allah, exalted."

Al-Khwārazmī, may God Most High have mercy on him, said: When al-Khwārazmī met the aforementioned shaykh, al-Khwārazmī asked him about the Greatest Name. The shaykh said to him: "Know that every name among the names of God Most High is mighty." I said to him: "Yes, but I have learned many names among them." The shaykh asked me about the Thāqūqah of Bil'ām ibn Bā'ūrā' and the Thāqūqah of Yūsuf, and I told him about them. The shaykh thought that I had not gained access to the stored names. Then the shaykh said: "Come near me; by God, [UNCLEAR: the following comparison says that no visitor more honored than you has come, but the recipient is expressed irregularly] ." I said to him: "Yes." He drew me near to himself, and [UNCLEAR: the verb form for continuing the discussion is irregular] the noble names were discussed. I asked him about the names on the staff of Mūsā, peace be upon him. Al-Khwārazmī said: And it is he who dictated to me the Greatest Name, then said to me: "O my son, know that the most majestic and greatest of the names are these names," and they were written in 'Ujmī (foreign) and some of them in Hebrew so that no one would know them; and these are the glorious names, and their excellence and blessing is what Ziyād ibn 'Abd Allah, may Allah be pleased with him, related: he said: "I heard a man of knowledge say: 'The excellence of these names over all names is like the excellence of the Night of Decree over all nights, and the excellence of Friday over all days.'"

And al-Khwārazmī, may God Most High have mercy on him, said: "I found them written in the Himyaritic script in a place called Qazwīn; so whoever understands their excellence preserves them from other than their people, and let him fear Allah his Lord." And they are beneficial for one who has alarm, or anxiety, or some tenesmus and palpitations. And Ziyād ibn 'Abd Allah related about it: "Whoever fasts three days and writes this verse on pure white gazelle parchment with saffron, and a person suffering a wind-related affliction, the evil eye, some harm, or another such condition carries it, the condition departs from him in the swiftest time." And in a report he writes it on Saturday, being pure and fasting, with the moon in its house, and carries it; the sought is attained by permission of Allah, exalted.

[Ornament marker] And 'Isā, peace be upon him, used to revive the dead by them by permission of Allah, exalted, and to cure the blind-born and the leper; and it is written in the lowest heaven, and the people of knowledge agreed upon its interpretation thereby—and that is what the Commander of the Believers, 'Ali ibn Abi Talib, may Allah honour his face, said. And whoever persists in its mention, Allah breaks the ordinary course of things for him and his aims are attained. So beware of dishonouring it, and make it of your greatest concern, and make it your litany for days and during daytime, and you will ascend the ranks of the awliyā'.

It is related from Abū Hudhayl, may Allah Most High be pleased with him, that he said: When ʿĪsā, peace be upon him, wanted to revive the dead, he would pray two rakʿahs; when he finished, he would prostrate and supplicate with these names, namely: "O Ancient, O Everlasting, O One, O One, O Self-Sufficient."

Muqātil ibn Sulaymān, may Allah Most High be pleased with him, said: "I sought the names by which ʿĪsā, peace be upon him, revived the dead for forty years, until I found them with a man of knowledge, and they were the aforementioned names."

And he said: "Whoever calls upon Allah with them in the dawn prayer one hundred times and asks for whatever need he wishes, it is fulfilled. Whoever desires the destruction of a wrongdoer, let him pray the dawn prayer and say, while sitting before speaking to anyone: In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate; there is no power or strength except through God, the High, the Magnificent; O Ancient, O Everlasting, O Unique, O Odd, O One, O Self-Sufficient, O Living, O Self-Subsisting, O Generous, O Merciful, O Support of the one who has no support, O One to whom recourse is made, O One who neither begets nor is begotten, and none is comparable to Him, O Possessor of Majesty and Generosity, one hundred times. Then he asks Allah Most High for whatever need there is, and it is fulfilled at once, especially if he supplicates against a wrongdoer: the sought thing is attained. If you wish to perform the taṣrīf of these names, place them in a circle like the circle of the ṭaqs, write the names, [UNCLEAR: the OCR reads wa-kh..., an operation whose meaning is unresolved], and carry them; you will find the sought thing. And Allah knows best."

And this is the supplication of the circle; say: "O Allah, I ask You by Jibrāʾīl, peace be upon him, when he ascended Your Throne, and by the right of Your name, Allah, Allah, Allah, that You subject to me Your angels: al-Malik Kasfāʾīl [UNCLEAR: whether al-Malik is a title or part of the phrase], Dardāʾīl, Samkhāʾīl, Dubāʾīl, Samkāʾīl, Ṭahr Yāʾīl, and Karmāʾīl. Answer, O noble angels and pure spirits brought near to Allah through oneness, by the right of Allah the Greatest, the Mighty, the Holy, which You have preferred over all names, all of them mighty, glorious, and great [UNCLEAR: the antecedent and attachment of this clause are compressed]. Subject these noble angels to me by fulfilling my need, which is such-and-such, in what Allah takes pleasure." And beware of envy, for Bilʿām ibn Bāʿūrāʾ: {We gave him Our signs, but he cast them off}—the verse. So preserve this name and guard it, for many people occupied themselves with it and became among the learned and the righteous, and attained their aims and objects. And Allah guides whom He wills to a straight path.

And know—may Allah grant me and you success in obeying Him—that whoever writes this wafq and carries it while pure, God Most High establishes his affair outwardly and inwardly, helps him in obedience, grants him victory over his enemies, and no tyrant looks at him without being awed by him. Whoever writes it and carries it on his head, every tyrant is humbled before him; God Most High secures his heart and his outward and inward being, and strengthens his heart for outward and inward deeds. No one carries it and contests his enemy with it without subduing him, overcoming him, and triumphing over him by Allah Most High's permission. Whoever enters battle with it, God Most High grants him victory over his enemies, and no harm reaches him. If a king carries it, the soldiers, commanders, and notables obey him, and he is supported and victorious.

By permission of God Most High: whoever carries it, his good multiplies, and provision is made easy for him from a quarter he does not reckon on; and in it, for companionship and for love and affection, there is an abundance for whoever reflects upon that. And its figure comes among the figures for the seven days, if God Most High wills.

*

Know that whoever is granted an opening into a secret of the secrets of the mim, and into its compassing and its enfolding, and into what it contains of worlds, witnesses the wonders of the existences. Whoever wants memorisation to be made easy for himself, let him write this numerical secret on a Thursday, while he is in a state of purity, facing the qiblah, and along with it the name of the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, forty times; and let him fumigate it and drink it down with water and the honey of bees, and let him say: O God, by the blessing of what I have drunk, make memorisation and understanding light for me. And let him persist in that for forty days; God Most High opens his outward and his inward. This is for the one who understands, in that he witnesses the strength of what is in his belly of every world in the secret by which the mim stands. With this resolve, the opening comes to be.

Whoever writes it and carries it on his right upper arm and walks among his enemies, God Most High saves him from them and humiliates them. And whoever enters with it upon someone whose evil he fears, or upon a stubborn tyrant, that feared person or tyrant is humbled before the bearer and submits. God Most High seals that person's heart and tyranny before the bearer; that person's will is cut off in favor of the bearer's purpose. God Most High grants the bearer what he seeks and protects him from that person's evil, because of the wondrous secrets within it.

Whoever writes it, fumigates it, and hangs it facing the sun, in the place where the sun rises upon it and draws near, never leaving it for the whole length of its day with its rays, will have great acceptance among all creatures. And this is its figure:

(The Eighth Chapter on the four harmonies and what is peculiar to it of the circular chapters)

Know - may God grant success to me and to you for obeying Him and for comprehending the secrets of His names - that upon this chapter the whole of this book turns, and within it are mighty secrets. So if you desire to work with these blessed names and these august harmonies, and with the names of the angels who govern the time, and the names of the winds and the stars, know that the year is twelve months and is divided into four parts, each part of them being three months, and the seasons are four: the season of summer, and the season of winter, and the season of spring, and the season of autumn; and each season is three months. And the first taquqah is for the season of spring, and it is the twenty-fourth of June. (The third taquqah is for the season of autumn), and it is the twenty-fourth of September. (The fourth taquqah is for the season of winter), and it is from the twenty-fourth of December.

(A chapter on the names of the kings who govern the time) So the lord of the east, his name is Dānā’īl, and the lord of the west, his name is Dardā’īl, and the lord of the north, his name is Ismā’īl, and the lord of the south, his name is Ḥazqī’īl. So the lord of the east is for the season of summer, and the lord of the west is for the season of winter, and the lord of the north is for the season of spring, and the lord of the south is for the season of autumn.

(A chapter on the distribution of the helpers over the four quarters) So the helpers of the lord of the east are Wajhā’īl and Ḥamrā’īl and Samā’īl, and the helpers of the lord of the west: Ḥarqīl, Maṣā’īl, and Sar’a’īl, and the helpers of the lord of the north: Far’ayā’īl and Ṭā’īl, and the helpers of the lord of the south: Sabā’īl, Marḥayā’īl, and Ḥajramīkā Kayā’īl

(A chapter) You may gather the supplications and names for God and everything you need. The binding is honey; do not ask about the covenant. Indeed I have brought you a pure egg. So when you are in the season of spring and you desire the lord of [UNCLEAR: the designation is written thaqf; its meaning here is unclear], then call al-Ṭāqūfa, saying: In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate — I adjure you, O Tayā’īl, and your helpers: my spirit in His hand, and Ṭāḥūl, and the winds, and what enticed, and Maysūr, [UNCLEAR: the wording wa-mimmā waṭish is garbled], and upon the sun and the moon, [UNCLEAR: the sequence wa-mā ḥafat samma Allāh has no clear grammatical meaning], and by His mighty name, Lord of the Hereafter and the first, who has no end and no terminus, what is in the heavens and what is in the earth and what is between them and what is beneath the soil. God is great, is the subduer of enemies, ever bestowing favours, merciful to the merciful, powerful and not subject to power, subduing and not subdued, equitable on the Day of Gathering and of Resurrection. There is no god but He, the Knowing, the Wise, the Merciful, the Compassionate. He is God, there is no god but He, the King, the Holy — to the last of them. O God, I ask You, O Lord of the worlds, by Your perfect Name — O Everliving, O Self-Subsisting — I bear witness that everything other than God is null. I have believed in You; there is no god but You; there is no lord besides You, by Your Great Name which You have preferred over all Your names, that You subject to me the lord of the supplication and the lord of al-Ṭāqūfa and the four quarters, to be my helpers in the granting of my need, by Your permission. O God, it is You who decrees, and no decree is passed against You. Answer, O assemblies of spirits, and grant my need by the right of Him who has might and majesty, and by the right of the Truth, who does not die, than whom nothing is like, the Self-Subsisting whose name is not forgotten, whose light is not extinguished, whose Throne does not cease and whose Seat does not move, Send down the Scripture upon His servant [UNCLEAR: the source has an imperative followed by a third-person possessive, with an uncertain grammatical connection]. I ask You, O God, 3, there is no god but He, Master of the world and the Hereafter, I ask You to grant my need and to subject to me the spiritual servants of these Names. Surely You are able over all things.

And when you are in the season of autumn, then call the lord of al-Ṭāqūfa, saying: In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate — I adjure you, O Danāyā’īl, and by your helpers: O Ḥayā’īl and Ḥaramā’īl, and Sam’a’īl, and by the winds: al-Qadḥ, Taf‘ahūn, Mardūd, and ‘Ārūd, and by the sun and the moon: Mā Ḥūd and Sādūn. In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate; there is no might nor power except with God Most High, the Mighty. O God, I ask You by the fact that You are living, not dying; prevailing and not vanquished; creating and not created; seeing, You do not doubt; hearing, [UNCLEAR: the negated verb is written taṣih and is not securely readable]; subduing and not subdued; or Ṣamad, not fed, and Self-Subsisting, not sleeping; faithful and not defaulting; just and arbitrating, not wronging; independent and not in need; a treasure, not exhausted; forbearing and not hastening; known and not disowned; single and not made two; bestowing and not refusing; swift, not distracted and not straying; everlasting and not wearing out; responsive and not wearying; enduring and not perishing, and single, with nothing like You; and mighty; You do not race. O God, I ask You, O Everliving, O Hearing, there is no god but You, O Lord of the worlds, I ask You by Your might, that You grant my need and that You subject to me all the spiritual beings, by God the Great and by Your hidden Name and by the right of Your majesty and the light of Your face, that this is easy for You. I adjure you by God the Great and by His hoarded Name, that you will be helpers to me in the granting of my need, [UNCLEAR: the connection of allā mā with what I have commanded you is incomplete]; and by the right of the Great Names of God Most High: hasten, hurry, at once, this very hour. May God bless you.

And when you desire to call the lord of the south, you say: In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate — I adjure you, O ‘Anā’īl, and Ḥarḥayā’īl, and Sar’a’īl, and by the fierce wind, and by the sun and the moon: I ask you to descend in my place and to comply with everything I have commanded you and what I require of you. I ask You, O God, O Light of Light, and O Disposer of affairs, and O Knower of secrets: You are God, the King, the Subduer, there is no god but You and none to be worshipped but You. O God, 3, by the right of these Names

For the great names of God 3: the Most High, the Magnificent, the Wise, the Generous, the Living, the Self-Subsisting, the Unique, the Eternal Refuge, God, He neither begot nor was begotten, and there is none equal to Him. I ask You by Your might and Your settling upon Your Throne that You fulfill my need and that You subjugate for me the master of the day and the master of al-thaqūfa and the four directions. Indeed, You are powerful over everything, for You decree and it is not decreed against You, O God 3. You are He besides whom there is no god; You are veiled, so You are not seen; Your light is not attained. I have believed in You and relied upon You. You are God, before whom all Your creation is humbled and all Your creation submits to You. You are God, the Subduer, exalted is Your majesty; You are exalted above Your Throne, so nothing, nor any limit among Your creation, describes Your greatness. O Light of light, the people of the heavens and the earth have become illumined from Your light. O God, You are exalted above having a partner. O Light of light, every light praises Your light. O Possessor, and everything perishes, and You are the Remaining. There is no might and no power except by God. O God, You are the Merciful, the Compassionate; by Your mercy we take refuge from Your anger and Your wrath, and by it You provide me with happiness from You, and that You lodge me in Your Garden which You have lodged the best of Your creation in, O God. [UNCLEAR: an isolated h-like glyph follows this invocation.] And if you are in the winter season, then invoke the master of the west, saying: In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate. I adjure you, O Dardā’īl, and your assistants Harfā’īl and Musḥā’īl and Ṣarfā’īl, and upon the spirits Maʿdūd and ʿĀdūm and Maʿmūr, and the sun and the moon, Khādim, Ḥāsid, and ʿAyn, I ask you that you fulfill my need by the right of that by which I have adjured you. O God, I ask You, O Light of lights and Knower of secrets. You are God, the King, the Compeller, the Mighty, the Subduer; to You belongs praise and laudation and pride and bounty. I have believed in You; there is no god except You. I ask You, O God, O Merciful, O Compassionate, O Lord, I ask You, O Encompassing, O Powerful, O Seeing, O Seeing, O Originator, O Hearing, O Sufficient, O Provider, O Thankful, O God, O One, O Forgiving, O Forbearing, O Withholder, O Expander, O Living, O Self-Subsisting, O High, O Magnificent, O Praiseworthy, O Bestower, O Standing, O Swift, O Watchful, O Aware, O Giver of life, O Giver of death, O how excellent the Master, how excellent the Helper, O Preserver, O Near, O Responsive, O Strong, O Firm, O Doer of what He wills, O Great, O Exalted One, O Bestower, O Creator, O Truthful, O Resurrector, O Generous, O Truth, O Manifest, O Light, O Guide, O Opener, O Forgiver, O Severe in assault, O Possessor of majesty, O Possessor of bounty, O Provider, O Hidden, O Holy, O Peace, O Giver of security, O Guardian, O Mighty, O Compeller, O Supremely Great, O Creator, O Maker, O Fashioner, O Originator, O One, O Eternal Refuge, O He who neither begot nor was begotten and there is none equal to Him, O God 3, there is no god except You. I ask You by the right of these names with You and their secret with You that You subjugate for me the Ruhaniyyah of this day and this hour and this al-thaqūfa and the four directions. Indeed, You are powerful over everything. I adjure you, O spirits, O Ruhaniyyāt, that you be a help to me in what I seek. Answer, O Ṣalūb, and do that which is between me and you. [UNCLEAR: the grammatical link to the following He who said is missing.] He who said to the heavens and the earth, “Come, willingly or unwillingly,” they said, “We have come willingly.” The four tawāqīf are completed, and this is their form as you see.

And these are the Most Beautiful Names of God; may God benefit by them. Among them is His name, God Most High, the Merciful, the Compassionate, and they are two majestic, mighty names, and supplication by them is beneficial for the distressed and a security for the fearful. So whoever engraves them on Friday at the end of the day in a silver ring and seals with it, then he will never see anything disliked. And whoever increases in their remembrance, he will be gently attended to in all his states. And the womb/kinship bond: whoever joins it [UNCLEAR: the clause is incomplete]. [UNCLEAR: the following word is written al-khawāyim and its connection is unclear]; whoever cuts it, it cuts him. And if you look and verify, you will find Muḥammad and the Merciful gathered together in the secret and the whispered counsel, and the seven ḥawāmīm. * And whoever writes His name, God Most High, the Merciful, in a vessel at the exaltation of the moon and erases it with rainwater, and someone with wretchedness in his heart drinks from it, that wretchedness will depart from him by permission of God Most High. And this is its form as you see. * And as for His name, God Most High, the Compassionate, whoever writes it at the exaltation of the moon and carries it with him, God Most High will secure him from all afflictions and all disliked things, and hard hearts will soften for him. And this is its form. * And as for His name, God Most High, the Holy, whoever increases in His remembrance, God Most High will remove from him the carnal desires. * And as for His name, God Most High, the King, whoever increases in His remembrance, the pharaohs and the tyrants will become submissive to him and enter under his dominion. * And as for the name, Peace, whoever increases in His remembrance, God Most High will secure him from all afflictions. And whoever increases in His remembrance until a state from it overcomes him, then he holds the snake and the scorpion, for they will not harm him at all. And it has a great secret: whoever writes it and carries it and enters with it upon an oppressor, it will deliver him from him, and no weapon will work upon him. And this is its form as you see. * And as for His name, God Most High, the Giver of security, whoever increases in His remembrance every day 1132 times, God Most High will secure him from stabbings and plague. * And as for His name, God Most High, the Guardian, whoever engraves it on a ring five times at the exaltation of the moon and seals with it, he will be protected from the evil of the jinn devil.

And as for His name, God Most High, al-Ghanī (the Self-Sufficient), whoever is frequent in His remembrance, the avenues of wealth and provision will multiply for him. And as for His name, God Most High, al-Mughnī (the Enricher), whoever is frequent in His remembrance, God Most High will make him independent of all creation. And as for His name, God Most High, al-Māniʻ (the Preventer), whoever is frequent in His remembrance, God Most High will avert from him every harm; and whoever writes it upon the wall of a city or town around it one hundred and sixty-one times during the hour of Venus, God Most High will protect it from all calamities. The sages placed it upon the citadel of Mardin, so no one was able to conquer it and harm was repelled from it by the power of God Most High. And as for His name, God Most High, al-Ḍārr (the Creator of the Harmful), whoever is frequent in His remembrance and asks God Most High for the affliction of any person or oppressor, [UNCLEAR: the phrase la-arā fī fajr taṣrīfihi, concerning seeing at the dawn of its deployment, leaves the speaker and grammatical connection uncertain], a wonder, by permission of God Most High. And as for His name, God Most High, al-Nāfiʻ (the Benefactor), whoever is frequent in His remembrance in a state of distress, God Most High will grant him well-being. Whoever persists in its remembrance with a sincere spiritual state until some of its realms accord with him and a state from it prevails over him, he does not wipe his hand over a sick person except that God Most High cures him. Whoever places it in a silver ring [UNCLEAR: the intervening phrase fī ṣarīʻ, in a stricken or fallen one, has an unclear connection] during the exaltation of the Moon and a sick person wears it, God Most High will cure him. Do you not see that it points to His name, God Most High, the Healer (Muʻāfī), and the names of its letters point to two majestic names that are the instruments of healing? And as for His name, God Most High, al-Nūr (the Light), whoever is frequent in His remembrance, God Most High will illuminate his heart; and if it is combined with al-Nāfiʻ, it becomes a cure for any intractable pain that defies healing; it is written and given to drink, and it has a venerable magic square (murabbaʻ), and this is its form. And as for His name, God Most High, al-Hādī (the Guide), whoever is frequent in His remembrance, light will increase in his heart and God Most High will guide his inner secrets to His gnosis (maʻrifah). Whoever faces a pressing difficulty among the manifest or hidden affairs of this world and the Hereafter, let him pray two rakʻahs reciting Āyat al-Kursī and al-Ikhlāṣ, and repeat the Name until his breath ceases, for it will guide him to what he seeks. And as for His name, God Most High, al-Badīʻ (the Incomparable Originator), whoever is frequent in His remembrance will continually originate insights in divine sciences and inspired ladunī secrets. And as for His name, God Most High, al-Wārith (the Supreme Inheritor), whoever is frequent in His remembrance, God Most High will grant him goodness and increase in all his movements. And as for His name, God Most High, al-Rashīd (the Rightly Guiding), whoever is frequent in His remembrance, the outcomes of all his affairs will be praised. And as for His name, God Most High, al-Ṣabūr (the Patient), whoever is frequent in His remembrance, God Most High will grant him steadfastness amid hardships and crises. And God speaks the truth and He guides to the path; and may God's blessings and peace be upon our master Muḥammad, his family, and his companions.

(Chapter Nine: On the Properties of the Openings of the Qur'anic Surahs and the Decisive Verses)

Know—may God grant me and you success in obedience to Him—that regarding the dotted letters at the beginnings of the surahs, and all the letters of the alphabet, and what pertains to them concerning matters of affirmative belief, some scholars, may God Most High be pleased with them, said concerning His words, Most High: "Alif Lām Mīm Ṣād": its meaning is "I am God." Al-Ḥasan said: "Alif is pre-eternity (al-azal), lām is post-eternity (al-abad), and mīm and ṣād are the connection of whoever connects with Him and the separation of whoever separates from Him." In reality, there is neither connection nor separation; these expressions proceed according to conventional usage, and whoever seeks the Truth guards it from words. Every name among the Names of God Most High elevates you to a spiritual station among the stations. So His name, God Most High, Allāh, elevates you to:

all the ranks, for it is the name of the Essence described by the holy attributes; all the names return to it. Whoever understands its meaning understands the meanings of the inward names, which are the individual letters. So understand these indications and do not stop at the expressions, and you will be among those who are certain. And the first of all the inward and outward names [UNCLEAR: the clause is incomplete]. A useful point: when God Most High placed the ranks of the secret in Adam, peace be upon him, and it was not established in the angels, the letters flowed on the tongue of Adam, peace be upon him, with various vocalizations and different languages. God Most High placed the forms of all the letters in the heart; they are spiritual, and they are what appear in human speech and in reckoning script: letters in the breast, letters on the tongue, and letters in the two hands. That is the meaning of His saying, Most High: "Ṣād. By the Qur'ān that bears the Reminder. Qāf. By the glorious Qur'ān. Nūn. By the Pen and what they write." The letters indicate the verses of the Book, as a reminder for people of understanding. Every letter has three stations according to the three vocalizations: ḍamm, fatḥ, and jarr. The letters of prolongation and softness among them resemble the elements. Each of the three is bodily, spiritual, and psychic, so they are nine. The numbers are nine, the celestial spheres are nine, and the natures and senses are nine; thus the correspondence becomes apparent. So investigate the secrets of number and letters, and you will find abundant knowledge in combinations and separations, in accordance with the quality of the Merciful (raḥmāniyyah) and the quality of the Compassionate (raḥīmiyyah) in "In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate." From "In the name of God" the cosmos receives nourishment, "and by eating and by drinking" [UNCLEAR: the connection of this phrase is garbled]. So reflect on the secret of the Qur'ān: you will find it in the multiplication of six by seven; the surahs of the Qur'ān are likewise. And the six, as forms within the perfect number [UNCLEAR: the wording is incomplete], corresponds to the number of days in which God created the heavens, the earth, and what is between them. These three are detailed into nineteen: the seven heavens with the Throne and the Footstool, and the earth is ten. The letters are ten, namely those at the openings of the surahs, arranged in five ranks, apart from the twofold, threefold, and fourfold; their total, however, is twenty-eight.

(Chapter on the letters, which are of two kinds)

Those with two dots and those with three dots. Those with three dots are shīn and thāʾ: shīn indicates a dispersed gathering, and thāʾ indicates a united gathering. Those with two dots are tāʾ, yāʾ, and qāf: tāʾ is His manifestation in His dominion, yāʾ is His manifestation in His power, and qāf is His manifestation in His bounty. Everything from Him is a manifestation of al-Qāʾim (the One Who Stands) and al-Qādir (the Powerful). Everything is manifest and encompassing, like the light of the sun and the essences. Yāʾ distinguishes between the two relations. [UNCLEAR: broken wording; recoverable phrases are "every newborn stood," "or every gathering," "what a people carries by means of it," "like a thing," and "for everything by which a people ... what".] As for shīn, its meaning is "Bring us the secret of the letters," and its three aspects [UNCLEAR: kāhū and the connection to the following examples], in shīn, al-shaʾn ("the affair"), al-thaghār, al-ghathm, and the like [UNCLEAR: the last two words are uncertain readings]. Nūn means "a clear manifestation," like the nūn in al-ḥusn ("beauty"), nūr al-shams ("sunlight"), and waraʿ ("scrupulous piety") [UNCLEAR: the sequence of examples is garbled]; and "the pivot of falsehood, which its inner secrets reveal" [UNCLEAR: the connection of this phrase is broken]. As for al-muzn ("rain clouds"), through which a hidden secret appears, so that the position of nūn in a word may be preserved [UNCLEAR: broken connection], "the Essence encompasses it, its outward aspect, its inward aspect, and what is between them" [UNCLEAR: the referents are unclear]. For that reason, "a garden (bustān) was confined in its form" [UNCLEAR: the connection and the following kāhū are unclear], "in the name, the named one, apart from what it names" [UNCLEAR: the relationship between these words is unclear]. "Travel is based on men's characters," and the like [UNCLEAR: the connection with the preceding passage is unclear]. Al-Ḥasan, may God Most High be pleased with him, said: "In the Qur'ān is knowledge of everything, and knowledge of the Qur'ān is in the letters at the openings of the surahs." Know that the letters are in lām-alif, lām-alif is in alif, and knowledge of alif is in the point. Knowledge of the point is in the original knowledge in pre-eternity and the will; knowledge of the will is in the unseen realm of the air; and knowledge of the air is in [UNCLEAR: "the clothing/confusion of a mass of something"; the wording is garbled]. And He is the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing. It is said of the secret of shīn that it is one of the names of God Most High, like the other letters of the alphabet found at the openings of the surahs. These are the fourteen luminous letters, without repetition, as follows: (alif, ḥāʾ, rāʾ, ṭāʾ, kāf, lām, mīm, nūn, sīn, ʿayn, fāʾ, ṣād, hāʾ, yāʾ). It is related from Ibn ʿAbbās, may God Most High be pleased with them both, that he used to say: "The openings ..." [UNCLEAR: the quotation breaks off after awāʾil].

SCAN PAGE 069 · PRINTED FOLIO 63 The Opening Letters of Surahs Are Taken from the Names of Allah

— 63 —

The opening letters of the surahs are taken from the Names of God Most High. Abū al-ʿĀliyah said: “Not one of these letters is anything other than a key to one of the Names of God: alif is from Allāh (God), lām from Laṭīf (the Subtle), mīm from Mālik (the Sovereign), ṣād from Ṣādiq (the Truthful), rāʾ from Rabb (Lord), kāf from Karīm (the Generous), ṭāʾ from Ṭayyib (the Good), sīn from Samīʿ (the All-Hearing), ḥāʾ from Ḥamīd (the Praiseworthy), qāf from Qadīr (the All-Powerful), and nūn from Nūr (Light).”

This is their form as arranged by Abū al-ʿĀliyah, may God Most High have mercy on him: alif-lām-mīm; alif-lām-mīm-ṣād; alif-lām-mīm-rāʾ; kāf-hāʾ-yāʾ-ʿayn-ṣād; ṭāʾ-sīn; ḥāʾ-mīm; ʿayn-sīn-qāf; qāf; nūn. He made the middle letter a letter of indication, namely hāʾ and bāʾ, and placed first the letters of alif-lām-mīm-ṣād, alif-lām-mīm-rāʾ, kāf-hāʾ-yāʾ-ʿayn-ṣād, and ṭāʾ-sīn, the ḥāʾ from ḥamīm, the qāf from “Qāf. By the glorious Qur'an,” and the nūn from “Nūn. By the pen.”

Ibn ʿAbbās, may God Most High be pleased with them both, said about the meaning of alif-lām-mīm: “Its meaning is ‘I am God,’ and alif-lām-mīm-rāʾ means ‘I am God; I know and see.’” Thus alif conveys “I,” lām conveys the Name of God, mīm conveys every kind of knowledge, and rāʾ conveys vision. Their order is: alif-lām-mīm; alif-lām-mīm-ṣād; alif-lām-mīm-rāʾ; kāf-hāʾ-yāʾ-ʿayn-ṣād; ṭāʾ-hāʾ; ṭāʾ-sīn; ṭāʾ-sīn-mīm; yāʾ-sīn; ḥāʾ-mīm; ḥāʾ-mīm ʿayn-sīn-qāf; qāf; nūn. Fourteen of the repetitions were omitted, including alif-lām-mīm and the Ḥawāmīm, for their letters are established in these fourteen surahs, which are those mentioned above.

Abū al-ʿĀliyah referred to the statement of Ibn ʿAbbās, may God Most High be pleased with them both, that the openings of the surahs are the Greatest Name of God. God knows best.

(Benefit of the Names) The number of the degrees of Paradise. From them knowledge emerged, and to them it returns; from them existing things appeared. Existing things are a sign pointing to the Most Beautiful Names. The Names have permeated the courses of spirits and bodies and have taken the place of security from created beings [UNCLEAR: the relationship between security and created beings]. There is no existing thing that the Names of God do not encompass in sight and hearing. What the Name of Divinity entails includes the meanings of all the other Names. Alif is an upright letter: from it the letters arose, and from it they arise, and it is their foundation. Among its counterparts are the intellect, knowledge, the Throne, and the Tablet; and “the three of lām” [UNCLEAR: the phrase's grammatical connection]. It is the letter connecting the lower and the higher, and its counterparts are the Tablet, the Footstool, and the soul. After lām comes mīm, a letter signifying completeness, whose counterpart is the body. Alif is the first created thing, while the body belongs only to created things. All the other meanings of the letters are contained in alif. Alif is the basis of gathering together and containing in summary form, just as the letters are contained in summary form in knowledge. Understand the meaning of completion and interpenetration: meanings of great spiritual secrets will appear to you, and you will attain right guidance in their sciences. Understand this.

Know that the saints, may God Most High be pleased with them, spoke of radiant rarities in the science of letters and Names. These were poured upon them from the source of special favor when certainty and sincerity took hold in their hearts. They were distinguished from others in the science of the Names by three things. First, through support and inspiration they understood meanings of the ninety-nine Names that others do not know through reflection and proof. Second, they knew hidden Names beyond these ninety-nine. Third, they were specially granted access to the Greatest Name.

As for the prophets, peace and blessings be upon them, through the light of revelation they knew of the ninety-nine what the saints did not know. This is because they knew the sciences of the hidden Names through knowledge of the Greatest Name of God. No one knows any of these Names as it truly is except the One who bears that Name and possesses the attribute expressed by its meaning: God alone, who has no partner. Beyond all these Names that God Most High taught His prophets and His saints is what God Most High has reserved for Himself in His knowledge of the unseen. No messenger-prophet or angel brought near has been given access to it.

The first thing with which God singles out a servant, when God wishes to take him into His care, is to teach him the knowledge by which he becomes a knowledgeable saint, and to grant him a special share of knowledge of the ninety-nine Names. God thereby opens to him kinds of knowledge from them that are not opened to a scholar through reflection. Then God raises him to knowledge of the hidden and outward Names among them, just as the outward ones have returned to God Most High. After the servant attains this knowledge, God teaches him the hidden things that are individual letters: the fourteen letters occurring in the magnificent Qur'an.

in the openings of the surahs, namely the luminous letters mentioned above; [UNCLEAR: the connective in "and understanding them" is broken] God Most High grants him understanding of the Greatest Name of God, by which, if He is invoked, He answers, and by which, if He is asked, He gives. According to most accounts, the Greatest Name is received only from al-Khiḍr, peace be upon him. A saint may also receive it through inspiration when mercy blows upon the servant. The ways in which the saints receive it differ, and explaining them in detail would take a long time. Its ultimate result is that the earth is folded up for him, he walks upon water and flies in the air, and the earth and entities are transformed for him, along with other karamahs with which God has singled out the saints. This is not knowledge of written pages; rather, it is reserved for [UNCLEAR: "who … between the servant and his Lord"; the construction is broken] . The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: "All existence subsists only through the inward names of God Most High, then the sacred outward ones." The inward alphabetic names of God Most High are the origin of everything pertaining to this world and the Hereafter. They are the treasury of His secret and His hidden knowledge. All the names of God Most High branch out from them; through them affairs are decided, and He deposited them in the Mother of the Book. Ibn al-Ḥanafiyyah was asked about kāf hāʾ yāʾ ʿayn ṣād, and said to the questioner: "If I told you its interpretation, you would walk upon water by it, and your feet would not become wet." Sahl ibn ʿAbd Allāh said: A man came to Ibrāhīm ibn Adham and asked: "What do you say about yāʾ sīn?" He replied: "It contains a name; whoever invokes by it is answered, whether righteous or wicked."

(Section) Each of the fourteen letters at the beginnings of the surahs has a meaning and something which, if God Most High disclosed it to the servant, would bring him a karamah from His presence. It is established in the hadith from the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, that he said to his companions: "When you meet the enemy, invoke: 'ḥāʾ mīm; they shall not be helped.'" Ḥāʾ mīm is among the hidden inward names of God Most High, so know this. Sahl ibn ʿAbd Allāh al-Tustarī, may God Most High have mercy on him, said: The noblest of all the alphabetic letters are the nine letters; the alphabetic letters are clothed in their light. They are these: (alif, lām, rāʾ, ḥāʾ, mīm, kāf, lām, ṣād). The outward bodies indicate them and their nobility: these are the seven heavens, the Footstool, and the Throne. They are the seven embodied forms to which God Most High alluded in His saying, Most High: alif lām mīm, ṣād, kāf hāʾ yāʾ ʿayn ṣād, ṭāʾ sīn. These are the fourteen letters. It is said that they are the Greatest Name of God, outward and inward. What the shaykhs among the people of spiritual realization, the imams of religion, and the scholars of religious law and realization have indicated is that the Greatest Name of God is among the outward names; consensus almost formed on this. The interpretation of this Name is that it brings things out of nonexistence into existence. Its alif points to the noble Essence, and it has the letter ḥāʾ for the utterance of the secret; [UNCLEAR: "and it is from it, if"; the connection is broken] the breast is the secret of knowledge, in general and in detail. Through it is the favor bestowed upon the Messenger of God, peace and blessings be upon him, in His saying: "Have We not expanded your breast for you and removed your burden from you?" For it expands breasts. Since the alif is too exalted to be described by motion and stillness, because of its separation in beginningless eternity, and to it the ends of all aims return, it is in the Hereafter with motion. Motion is bound to the four vocalizations: ḍamm, naṣb, jarr, and sukūn, [UNCLEAR: "is struck from definition"; the wording is broken] , and it has no need of divine enabling. The first lām was brought forth unvocalized from its relation; then it became vocalized through the relation of what joins it from the language established for the secret of its highest [UNCLEAR: what "its highest" refers to is missing]. Then the hāʾ met it through the secret of its encompassing, so motion and stillness come together from it, [UNCLEAR: an unresolved word precedes "from the secrets of motion"]. For this reason it was the inward of the inward, as the Most High said: "He is the Living," for it expands breasts. The alif indicates the Essence, and the first lām is for the comprehensive covenantal pledge in this world, for accepting reception according to religious law, [UNCLEAR: "with what it contains of … an intermediary alif"; the intervening wording and its connection are broken]; then the hāʾ is for the completion of the matter on the day of the last creation, to gather the first and the last. Thus the fourteen letters revolved through this wisdom; through them you find [UNCLEAR: the object of "find" is missing] at their beginning and their end. Their beginning is thus, unfolded as you see: (alif, lām, mīm, ṣād, its alif), as the Prophet, peace be upon him, said: "He is the Outward, so there is no one above Him, and He is the Inward

— 15 — the Inward, beneath whom there is no one. Since the combination consisted of fourteen letters, the seven heavens and the seven earths, and all the dominion and spiritual kingdom within and between them, were sustained by the secret of God—exalted be His mention—in every particle of the world and in what is smaller than them, through something of the secrets of the Name of God Most High. Through that secret, testimony was borne to His oneness. God Most High said: {Do you know of anyone bearing His name?} God Most High also said: {Say, 'God,' then leave them playing in their vain discourse.} The shaykh, imam, scholar and erudite master Fakhr al-Dīn al-Khwārazmī—may God sanctify his spirit—said in the sanctuary of Mecca in the year 670: Whoever knows God Most High through His Name in their state and speech has known the Greatest Name particular to them. Thus He was the Most Merciful of the merciful to Ayyūb, peace be upon him, when Ayyūb said: {My Lord, affliction has touched me, and You are the Most Merciful of the merciful.} Likewise, He was the Bestower to Sulaymān, peace be upon him, when Sulaymān said: {My Lord, forgive me and bestow upon me a kingdom that will belong to no one after me. You are indeed the Bestower.} Likewise, He was the Best of Inheritors to Zakariyyā, peace be upon him: God gave him Yaḥyā, gave Sulaymān a mighty kingdom, and cured Ayyūb of his affliction. Whoever knows the Name corresponding to their need and asks God Most High by it, God answers them and brings them to their desired goal. Some shaykhs, when their student came to them wishing to undertake the spiritual path, would seat the student before them and recite the ninety-nine Names, looking at the student's face as they mentioned the Names, until the Name suited to the student became clear to the shaykh. The shaykh would then command the student to persevere in that Name until a door opened from it for the student; for his unique name is in it, and through it influence operates upon everyone other than him. This is his purpose. Knowledge of the Greatest Name of God is among the noblest sciences. The Greatest Name is the hidden pearl, protected from those who are not its people. It is stored beneath the inner meanings among the outpourings of this book. Over it were set [UNCLEAR: 'purposes of might'], and before it was drawn the veil of awe. Its entrance is the protected precinct of the spiritual kingdom; around it He set [UNCLEAR: the word 'ḥuwaym'] of overwhelming power. He set forth for them a parable and figures: questions of religion understood only by the foremost scholars among the seekers. Among the greatness of that through which influence is exercised are kinds of its honor and generosity [UNCLEAR: connection of the clauses]; and that those lofty descriptions and noble epithets should be brought forth and joined to it, since its praise and the praises of its Praiseworthy One [UNCLEAR: incomplete construction]. Although their kinds differ, they all converge upon declaring transcendence and holiness. Enough for you is the good of hearing them [UNCLEAR: connection to intimate prayer and those traces], so that it may be more majestic through its mention, or greater for whoever follows or reads it. Present it to whoever [UNCLEAR: wording about returning to it and daring to approach it]. It is [UNCLEAR: ‘muḥābī’]—the ordering of the Name, indefinite or specified, for one who invokes it in a prayer on its own. There is no promise of an answer to an isolated invocation, but noble names, attributes of spiritual experiences, and coolness of temperament [UNCLEAR: connection of these phrases]. Its intention, Muḥammad [UNCLEAR: connection]; through it the eyelids were cleared, and the chains of transmission were adorned [UNCLEAR: connection of Anas's report with ‘the breast/front’], although others shared its sources. Among the wonders is that the supplicant should invoke and not be answered. This Greatest Name is not without an expression beyond expressions [UNCLEAR: wording concerning their connections and what followed them]. It takes neither a dual nor a plural form, while all the Names take a dual form. This indicates that it is the greatest of His Names. God Most High said: {To God belong the most beautiful Names, so call upon Him by them.} He thus ascribed all the Names to it and arranged them as enfolded within it [UNCLEAR: syntax of ‘the remembrance and their mention’], indicating that it is the greatest of them. It has also been said that these Names are a description of this Name, and [UNCLEAR: defective clause about not being described by any of them]. They indicate that it is the Essence, not a name of the attributes; the names of the Essence are greater than the names of the attributes. This is plain and clear. The proof of this Name's validity in faith—and faith is complete only through it—is the saying of the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him: ‘I have been commanded to fight people until they say, “There is no god but God.” When they say it, they protect their lives and their property from me.’ Nothing else suffices. This indicates that it is the greatest of the beautiful Names of God and that it saves from the Fire. The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, also said: ‘Whoever dies testifying that there is no god but God and that Muḥammad is the Messenger of God, sincerely from his heart, God has made him inviolable to the Fire.’ It is the key to Paradise, and this Name the noble; through it one enters Paradise, and through it one is forbidden to the Fire; through it come faith and Islam, and through it comes excellence in supplication, because the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: “I have been commanded to fight people until they say, ‘There is no god but God.’ When they say it, they protect their blood and their property from me, and in the Hereafter their reckoning rests with God.” The greatest key to the prayer is “Allāhumma” (“O God”). The mīm was added to it because it brings together the remembrances, supplications, and healing incantations. These are ordered under the Greatest Name, and it falls within its scope, like the prayer, which is the pillar of religion. This is because nothing but it suffices in the opening takbīr of consecration: the prayer is not valid without it, by the consensus and agreement of the scholars of the various regions and the righteous predecessors. Likewise with the call to prayer: with it the prayer is opened, and with it the prayer is concluded. God knows best.

(Section) This Name entails a name and that which is named. This Name is among the things whose knowledge God has reserved to Himself. I will give you an example through which what I swear to you may be understood [UNCLEAR: the connection of “what I swear to you” to the example]. A person may know the name of a medicine and understand its meaning, its powers, and its benefits; after this understanding, the person uses

it. This is the level of understanding the utterance, establishing its meaning, and using it as that meaning requires. When a person understands the utterance and establishes its meaning, this is the reality. The manner of use then remains, and the person uses it. Undoubtedly, through this the fruit is obtained and the benefit is commended. This is the aspect to consider. The utterance has two states. One is that God Most High causes it to pass over a person's tongue without that person knowing that it is the Greatest Name of God. Is either of these two sufficient, or is neither sufficient, or is the second sufficient without the first? All of this requires consideration. It may come in a way through which awareness of the Greatest Name of God is obtained: it passes over the tongue without the person realizing that it is that Name. This is the purest of the degrees, and it is founded on expansiveness and following within the mercy of God Most High [UNCLEAR: the intended connection between "expansiveness," "following," and mercy]. What brings the servant perfection is understanding in truth. Whatever falls short of this still contains blessing and goodness, and differences arise according to the degrees of understanding. Its evidence is this: is someone whom God Most High has singled out—if this Name passes over that person's tongue—equal to someone whom God Most High does not single out and over whose tongue it does not pass? Rather, this shows you that its blessing is obtained however it occurs. Compare the subsequent degrees with this degree. Understanding may be through transmission, in that a person learns it and says, "This is the Greatest Name, great in goodness." The same occurs in the Names al-Jabbār, al-Khalīl, al-Jawād, al-Majīd, al-Mājid, and al-Jāmiʿ, for they indicate great goodness. God Most High said: {In them are good, beautiful ones}. Among His Names, Most High, is al-Khayr, the Good. God Most High said: {And God is fully aware of what you do}. As for what indicates adornment and zahw (flourishing), God Most High said: {We have indeed adorned the lowest heaven with lamps}. God Most High also said: {The love of desires has been made attractive to people}. Zahw: zīd ("was increased"), the soundness of fruit [UNCLEAR: the connection between these words is unclear]; it is also said to be the adornment of trees with fruit. As for shīn, it indicates al-shahīd (the witness) and shahādah (testimony), because God Most High said: {God has borne witness that there is no god but Him, and the angels and those possessed of knowledge, upholding justice}. Mushāhadah (witnessing) is direct seeing. The martyrs are alive with their Lord, receiving provision. And shurb (drinking): God Most High said: {They drink from a cup whose mixture is camphor}. Then God Most High said: {In it, called Salsabīl}. And shifāʾ (healing): God Most High said: {We send down from the Qur'an that which is healing and mercy for the believers}. The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: "The healing of my community is in three things: a verse from the Book of God Most High, or a lick of honey, or a cup from the hand of a cupper." In another narration: "or an incision with a cupping instrument." As for ẓāʾ, it indicates extended shade, and ẓuhūr (rising) is extended shade. God Most High said: {Upon it they rise}. God Most High also said: {Then they became uppermost}. It also indicates "stabbings for what is desired" [UNCLEAR: the intended sense of al-ṭuʿūn li-l-marghūb]. Among His Names, Most High, is al-Ẓāhir, the Manifest. As for fāʾ, it indicates fiṭrah (original nature), fākihah (fruit), and fuṭūr (fissures). God Most High said: {The fiṭrah of God upon which He fashioned people}. God Most High also said: {Originator of the heavens and the earth}. And He said

God Most High said, "Do you see any fissure?" God Most High said, "They and their spouses are enjoying themselves in shades." God Most High said, "And fruit of whatever they choose." These, then, are more important than those. Thāʾ, zāy, and ḥāʾ are cold letters, and their nature is the nature of water. The moon's nature is that of extended shade and the Garden of Eternity. Both ḥāʾ and thāʾ are cold, through the attribution of the nature of earth and the nature of water. Ḍād is moist, and fāʾ is hot and dry, with the nature of fire. Among the radiant heavenly bodies, the moon and the sun belong to it. They have come together in seven Names: the first is al-Thābit (the Constant), who establishes the servants; al-Jabbār (the Compeller); al-Khabīr (the All-Aware); al-Walī (the Guardian); al-Ẓāhir (the Manifest); al-Fard (the Single One); and al-Shahīd (the Witness). Thāʾ has not appeared in any of the Names of God Most High except His Names al-Wārith (the Inheritor) and al-Bāʿith (the Raiser), at the last rank of the world. As for the meaning, it is "whenever it comes together in the Name of God Most High, al-Bāʿith" [UNCLEAR: the clause is incomplete]; it points to the meaning in the Name of God Most High, al-Wārith. No letters of the alphabet are marked with three dots except thāʾ and shīn, because shīn encompasses what is other than it, and the secret of thāʾ is beneath it. It does not have alif's special property in the world of lower bodies. It is a cold, dry letter, like the earth and the pegs—I mean the mountains. The letter fāʾ is dry; the letter of heat acts within it, and it is the fifth degree of heat. Its form is taken into account in the letter alif, for His Name al-Fāṭir (the Originator), al-Fāliq (the Cleaver). Shīn is cold, and its secret is the secret of shīn and its activity. No other letter of the alphabet has three marks and three forms. Shīn brings together the very rank of units and tens, and shīn was placed in His testimony. Three testimonies branched from it: the testimony of the angels, the testimony of those who possess knowledge, and the testimony of those other than the possessors of knowledge. For that reason, "created the rank of knowledge between the rendering of the highest affirmation of divine unity, from the Truth, the building, and the affirmation of divine unity that appeared during the testimony to God, for me" [UNCLEAR: the clause is corrupt; its subject and the connections between its phrases are uncertain]. All the affirmation of divine unity came together in the Throne—I mean the lights of the affirmation of divine unity. For that reason, the Messenger of God, peace and blessings be upon him, drew attention to this concerning one who, through the remembrance of "There is no god but God" [UNCLEAR: the opening wording is broken]: it ascends to the Throne, and the Throne shakes because of it. God then says, "Be still in it, and do not fear [UNCLEAR: the following words read 'flee … for its speaker,' but their connection is corrupt]." This is because God Most High—exalted is His power—knew that the servants "are not represented in their ears, nor is a manner assigned in their speech" [UNCLEAR: the wording and its grammatical subjects are corrupt]. He set up for them a created being from among them, placed it in the highest stations and among the noblest created beings, and "shone for Himself" [UNCLEAR: wording and connection]. God Most High said, "The Glorious, Possessor of the Throne." It is like a chamberlain to a king whom one cannot reach to behold; the chamberlain indicates the king's existence, established presence, might, and authority. Do you not see what the Messenger of God, peace and blessings be upon him, drew attention to in his saying that God Most High wrote a book and placed it above His Throne, containing, "Indeed, My mercy has preceded My wrath"? And his saying, peace and blessings be upon him, concerning Saʿd ibn Muʿādh al-Anṣārī: "The Throne shook at his death"—may God Most High be pleased with him. This indicates what appears of the uprightness of al-Fard in "his throne" [UNCLEAR: the referent of al-Fard and the possessive are uncertain], so that you may know that the effects of power appear in the Throne out of nonexistence. For that reason, shīn was the last of the letters of the Throne, and it belongs to the affirmation of divine unity of the separate worlds. Since the arrangement of the Throne was ordered, a throne for every throne, shīn was the throne of the letters. This is because of the loftiness of its station and the loftiness of its rank. There is nothing among the letters that completes their thrones—"the letters" [UNCLEAR: the syntax is broken]—because it is the root of the tree of letters. Shīn is where the letters and their mingling end. No branch of alif comes after it, "because it..." [UNCLEAR: incomplete connection]. Likewise, no alif from it comes before alif. Since the shape of shīn was like the shape of alif, there was a shared correspondence [UNCLEAR: the adjective sinniyyah is uncertain], "otherwise spread out in three letters" [UNCLEAR:

connection] , as follows: shīn yāʾ nūn, the relation of its [UNCLEAR: unknown term kinsiyyatihi] . Even if a letter other than shīn is composed of three letters, its throne is not like the throne of shīn, because it does not reach the corresponding limit in His saying, "God bears witness," indicating the rootedness of the affirmation of divine unity and "the nonexistence of existence to the two abodes and the worlds" [UNCLEAR: the wording and connection are corrupt] . Shīn is a Footstool for the throne of alif, because every subtle thing is a throne and every unveiling is a Footstool. It is not far-fetched that the Footstool should be the bearer of the Throne, for you see that mīm is a Footstool for the Throne of shīn [UNCLEAR: the page opens with an incomplete phrase] . In truth, every subtle thing subsists through every dense thing. Therefore alif is the lightest and most subtle of the letters, because it has no resemblance; before it stands a consideration [UNCLEAR: the meaning of this expression is uncertain] . Nothing resembles it among the individual letters, and its ultimate limit cannot be known through anything other than itself. No other letter precedes it or comes after it at the end of the word. Thus it points to firstness and lastness, because the realm of the Footstool is subtler in comparison with the realm of the Throne. Do you not see that the Footstool is the place of forms, while the Throne is the place of the lights poured forth to the farthest end of the world? Alif is the directions of the units, tens, and hundreds; and shīn is examples of its direction toward the letter shīn [UNCLEAR: the relationship between these terms is obscure] . When it passes beyond utterance, it becomes a cause. Shīn is three hundred aspects within the thousands [UNCLEAR: the numerical relationship is obscure] . For whoever contemplates the letter shīn knows its realities and the wonders of the things made by God Most High, and witnesses the secrets of manipulating the letters in this way. Since shīn was the final rank of the Throne in its undivided form, its end in its expanded form was thus: shīn. Nūn is what bears the created worlds: I mean the whale that carries the world on its back. Nūn draws from shīn, and nūn draws from nūn; likewise, the commentaries draw from nūn. God Most High said: “Nūn. By the pen and what they inscribe.” The pen draws from the inward aspect of nūn, which is the outward aspect of the matter whose inward aspect is kāf, indicating the concealed secret. This is the secret of sīn: “is not unknown; inscribed” [UNCLEAR: the syntax of these last words and their connection to what follows are broken] . Whoever writes the letter shīn in it a thousand times in the first hour of a day appropriate to his work—for among the days are those sought for good and those sought for evil, such as Saturday and its first hour, and Tuesday and its hour; each day has a secret appropriate to its work and its understanding—“knew this and practiced it” [UNCLEAR: the connection of these words to the preceding condition is broken] : God Most High makes easy for him what he seeks and intends, whether good or evil, from the innumerable secrets of shīn in the bodily world. However, someone with pain in his limbs must not carry it, because that pain is upon him through its particular property [UNCLEAR: the causal wording and the referent of the property are uncertain] . Nor should a woman in childbirth carry it, for childbirth is made easier for her with agitation, and it contains harm that ought to be disclosed [UNCLEAR: the wording links ease of childbirth with agitation, without explaining the harm] . This letter occurs in the Name of God Most High, al-Shadīd, the Severe; look there at its special properties. Whoever knows the rank of shīn and its relationship to nature, in its undivided form as shīn and in its expanded form as yāʾ and nūn, and the natures and numerical relationship within those two, witnesses its secrets, sees its accounts firsthand, and knows its condition in terms of effects undergone and manipulations. ʿAyn draws from the exaltedness above which there is nothing; rā’ draws from the mercy above which there is no mercy and beneath which there is no recipient of mercy; and shīn draws from the witnessing above which there is no witnessing and beneath which there is nothing witnessed. Look how you find in witnessing both something witnessed and a witness, and in mercy both a recipient of mercy and one who shows mercy. Might belongs to God, His Messenger, and the believers. Might belongs to divinity, to unending subsistence, and to existence without a beginning; the might of the prophets is the existence of the prophetic message, and the might of the believers is the existence of faith. These, then, are the ranks of shīn in al-Shahīd, the Witness.

(Section) According to the first view, these seven letters are for punishment, so write them for punishment as well. Write the seven letters, beginning with the letter shīn in full, “and toward the days and their letters, and with the request reversed” [UNCLEAR: the syntax does not establish how the days, their letters, and the reversal are to be arranged]. Say in your supplication, “O God, take vengeance on so-and-so,” and name whatever kinds of punishment and affliction you wish, after writing the letters according to its model, namely the state of the day and the request [UNCLEAR: the model and its relationship to the day and request are obscure]. “By the right of these Names: O Shadīd, O ʿAzīz, O Wāḥid, O Ẓāhir, O Wārith, O Fāṭir. O God, O Shadīd, O Aḥad, after the fā’ of His creation [UNCLEAR: this phrase is broken], in accordance with the matter You intended and the power You determined. O You whose existence has no connection and who has no end; O You whom nothing approaches except Your rank, and for whom there is no cessation; ‘for a day when God will not disgrace’; ‘and those who are wretched, in the Fire, where they have groaning and gasping’; ‘the disbelievers’ [UNCLEAR: these fragments are joined in a broken sequence]. O Severe in punishment, ‘Indeed, your Lord's grasp is severe.’ ‘As for those who are wretched, in the Fire, where they have groaning and gasping.’ ‘Indeed, the tree of Zaqqūm is the food of the sinner; it boils in bellies like the boiling of scalding water.’ O Mighty, O Prevailing, O You who have no likeness, and all the needs

All of them are before Him. You are the Mighty without qualification, the Eternal; [UNCLEAR: "none other than Him bequeaths to You in Your might"; wording of the inheritance or succession clause]. O You whose power is manifest, O You who said—and You are the most truthful of speakers—"No indeed! It is Laẓā, stripping away the scalp; neither giving shade nor availing against the flame." O Inheritor, You are the One to whom the whole affair returns. O You who did away with the created worlds and those in them, while the call is made, "To whom belongs dominion today? To God, the One, the All-Subduer." Every invocation concerning an outward or inward matter, little or much, returns to You [UNCLEAR: the connection of "each of it, an invocation" is damaged]. O God, send down upon so-and-so ruin, woe, punishment, and vengeance. "Do not call today for a single ruin, but call for many a ruin." O Compeller, You are the One whose judgment takes effect along the course of destiny and upon everyone; no cautious person's caution can repel it.

You are the One who bound the psychic forces and the intellectual forces within the dense bodies; [UNCLEAR: "none loves that except upon the one who declared transcendence in Your regard and made them a portion of Your identity, and the manifestation of subjugation through You"; syntax and antecedents are damaged]. For You are the Possessor of power, overpowering might, honor, and awe. And by the right of Your spiritual dominion, which You chose through the very determination You made, and the judgments of Your divinity, and the lights of Your burnings [UNCLEAR: the referent of the burnings] ; none other than You knows [UNCLEAR: the object of knowing is not stated] . Exalted is Your standing, and great is Your sovereignty. Every movement in the world of earthly dominion, spiritual dominion, and overpowering might— [UNCLEAR: "and abased through it the meaning of the names of the All-Subduer"; the subject and connection are damaged] . [UNCLEAR: "by right, You chose the sea of eternal governance, the Majestic, the Transcendent"; the connection of these words is damaged] . O You who set the world in motion as instruments; [UNCLEAR: "I, by the movement of what is in it of the secret of life created for the spirit, by the reins of decrees and the manifestation of wisdom"; the construction is damaged] . Manifest in so-and-so, from the severity of Your overpowering might and Your subjugation, that which stills his senses when I confront him and extinguishes his spirituality in my presence.

"Indeed, Hell is the appointed place for them all." "We have certainly created for Hell many of the jinn and humankind." O Originator of the heavens and the earth, I ask You by Your power through which You determined the upper and lower created worlds, and by the right of the first Word through which You originated the earth and the heavens, through Your true saying: "Then He turned to the heaven while it was smoke, and said to it and to the earth, 'Come, willingly or unwillingly.' They both said, 'We have come willingly.'" Do such-and-such for me. Mention what you want; the desired result will occur, according to the text, and God is the One who enables success.

(Chapter Ten: The Secrets of al-Fātiḥah, Its Special Properties, Its Famous Invocations, and the Noble Verses)

Know that whoever has a need among needs should perform ablution, pray two rakʿahs, recite this invocation, and supplicate with it; the text states that the need will be fulfilled. It is this:

"(In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate.) My Lord, I ask You by the Name through which You opened the world of command and creation, by the secret of self-disclosure to the Real, the revealer of the cause of revelation and the transcendent in command, existence, inwardness, and intelligibility [UNCLEAR: the connection of these descriptions is damaged] . That is perceptible to the senses for those whom You have strengthened, rather known to those whom You have made witness, unknown to those whom You have willed; [UNCLEAR: 'what is ambiguous in it does not impair the oneness of the wisdom You have decreed'; the wording is damaged] . O All-Knowing, O Forbearing, O Opener, O Lord, I ask You, O God, by the secret of the relation linking the presence of existence and possibility, which entails the manifestation of the greatest attribute and the secret toward which one turns, through the establishedness of things divine, generally and specifically, in beginning and return; from the vastness of the sciences of spirituality, which do not come to an end in settledness or establishedness; from a special effusion of mercifulness that does not end, occurring through the witnessing of the elucidation that draws near through a nearness whose essence is unknown [UNCLEAR: the connections within this sequence are damaged] .

"O Merciful, O Compassionate, O Opener of planning, ease, help, protection, success, care, concealment, perfection, good provision, blessing, hope, good opinion of You, and despair of anyone other than You. (In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate.) It comes to be by Your command and comes to be through Your existence, and a blessing from You [UNCLEAR: the subject and the connection of 'a blessing' are uncertain] . Blessed is Your Name, and exalted is Your majesty; there is no god other than You. In You we have believed, to You we have submitted, and upon You we have relied. Bring us to realization, O God, through Your light, O Master of the Day of Judgment. Illuminate our inner sight with Your light, O Proof, O Light of Day, O Guide of those who lead astray; there is no guide other than You. (Praise belongs to God, Lord of the worlds.) Make us free of need of others through You, O Self-Sufficient, O Enricher, O God. (The Merciful, the Compassionate.) The witnessing of Your Essence, O Merciful [UNCLEAR: the connection of this phrase is damaged]. 'Peace—a saying from a Merciful Lord.' (Master of the Day of Judgment; You alone we worship, and You alone we ask for help.) O God, I ask You by the fact that You are God, in pure realities specification, and that You are God in every condition of earnestness and adjustment [UNCLEAR: the sense of "earnestness and adjustment" here], and that You are God, sanctified by the distinctive qualities of absolute oneness and self-sufficiency, beyond opposite, contradiction, peer, and helper; and that You are God, whom nothing resembles, and He is the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing. I ask You to bless and grant peace to our master Muhammad, his family, and his companions, and grant peace, and to fulfill my need by the right of "Guide us to the straight path, the path of those upon whom You have bestowed favor." I ask You to favor me by fulfilling my need and whatever holds for me the good of this world and the Hereafter, with me kept safe through care from afflictions, through the distinctive forms of solicitude. O One who repeatedly bestows good things, O You who are truly worthy of reverent fear and worthy to grant forgiveness! O God, do not make us among those disgraced in the life of this world and the Hereafter, and make us among those who are "not those upon whom wrath has fallen, nor those who go astray." Amen. O God, do not make us misguided, nor leading others astray, nor driven away from Your door, nor despairing of Your face, through Your mercy, O Most Merciful of the merciful. May God bless our master Muhammad, his family, and his companions, and grant them peace.

(And this is another invocation) So invoke with it in important matters, and know its worth. It is this:

"In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate. Praise be to God, Lord of the worlds": praise surpassing the praise of those who praise, Lord of the first and the last; praise that will bring me approval and protection with the Lord of the worlds. "The Merciful, the Compassionate": He who spread out the regions and chose Moses, the one God spoke to. God is the Reviver of bones when they are decayed. The Merciful, the Compassionate: these are two noble Names and a cure for every sick person. "Master of the Day of Judgment": He who has no rival in kingship, nor companion, nor minister, nor counselor; rather, He was before the existence of the world and all the worlds together. You are my encompassing guard and my protection from all devils, my help against the far and the near, and my face against the opposing kinds [UNCLEAR: the sense of "my face against the opposing kinds"]. "You alone we worship," with acknowledgment, shame over sins, and fervor [UNCLEAR: the sense of "fervor" here]. We repent to You of sins, and we bear witness that there is no god but God alone, with no partner, no rival, and no likeness to Him, Possessor of Majesty and Honor; and we bear witness that our master and our prophet Muhammad is His servant and His messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace. "And You alone we ask for help," with every need and every affair of this world and the Hereafter, O Guide of those who lead others astray. "Guide us to the straight path, the path of those upon whom You have bestowed favor," from among the prophets, the utterly truthful, the martyrs, and the righteous. "Not those upon whom wrath has fallen, nor those who go astray. Amen."

In the name of God, Lord of the first and the last, Creator of those in the heavens and those on earth, Raiser of the prophets, the messengers, and the believers; by the right of the Powerful, the Subduer, the Majestic, the Enricher, the Merciful, the Lord, the One in the worlds, worshipped in every place, declared One by every tongue, the Excellent, the Pre-eternal, who perfects what He makes, the Subduer of His creation, the Most Holy, before whom necks are humbled and lofty aspirations submit. Faces are abased before the Living, the Self-Subsisting, and whoever bears injustice has indeed failed. O Living, O Self-Subsisting, O Advancer, O Delayer, O First, O Last, O Manifest, O Hidden, O Bestower, O Transcendent, O Beneficent, O Bestower, O Avenger, O Pardoner, O Tenderly Compassionate, O Possessor of Kingship, O Possessor of Majesty and Honor! Self-Standing, Self-Subsisting, Abiding, Ever-Enduring. Indeed, in the remembrance of God hearts find rest. O Living, O Self-Subsisting (3). You see me, hear my speech, and know my complaint. You are my aim, my request, and my hope, and I am in need of You. You are the All-Knower of unseen things, and You know secrets and private whispers. Nothing on earth or in heaven is hidden from You. You are Lord of the mighty Throne. I ask You for beneficial knowledge, upright religion, true certainty, and consummate wisdom. O Self-Subsisting, O He (3). I ask You to unveil the veil of the unseen with what is within it, until I behold the abiding spirit (3). You, O Living, O Self-Subsisting, O Light of the heavens and the earth and what lies between them, and Lord of the mighty Throne! I ask You to bless and grant peace to our master Muhammad, to disclose to me the secrets of Your Names, and to subjugate all Your creation to me in obedience; and my heart, for You, worship [UNCLEAR: the syntactic connection of "my heart, for You, worship"]; and to grant me the lights of Your guidance and knowledge of Your secrets, until I am rejoicing, dazzling [UNCLEAR: the connection of "dazzling" to the following words], what appears of Your gentleness Alṭafuka [UNCLEAR: damaged opening word], O Subtle One, be gentle, and Most Merciful of the merciful [UNCLEAR: connection of the opening words]. According to the text, the petitioner asks for whatever he wishes of the affairs of this world and the Hereafter, and they are fulfilled.

“And this is another invocation.” Set apart for yourself a pure, clean place in which to be alone, and perform your five prayers at their proper times. Then recite it after each prayer 18 times for a period of 14 days. When you have finished your prayer, invoke with this invocation:

“In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate. Praise be to God, Lord of the worlds,” who illuminates the inner sight of the knowers with the lights of spiritual knowledge and certainty, draws all the realizers with the attractions of nearness and firm establishment, opens the locks of the hearts of those who profess divine oneness with the keys of divine oneness, and draws those hearts with the attractions of nearness and the manifest opening; who made excellent everything He created, began the creation of the human being from clay, and then made his progeny from an extract of despised fluid.

“The Merciful, the Compassionate,” the Wise, the Most High, the Magnificent, the Eternal, the Pre-eternal, the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing, who wrote the signs of divine oneness with the pens of power in the breasts of the people of instruction, and inscribed the lines of the people of guidance in the paths of the secret of the people of spiritual knowledge, for the people of sainthood [UNCLEAR: relationship between these paths, the secret, and its recipients]. Sufficient for you are the people of the Cave and the Inscription. God addressed Moses, the one with whom He spoke, with words of honor; God honored His noble Prophet by saying: “We have indeed given you seven of the oft-repeated and the magnificent Qur'an.”

“Master of the Day of Recompense,” who breaks the mighty tyrants and the rebellious, annihilates the despots and the aggressors, and subdues the heads of the Pharaohs, the people of heresy, and the unbelievers. That is God, your Lord; blessed, then, is God, Lord of the worlds. O You who adorned created beings with the garments of bringing-into-being, and sent forth the marvels of the unseen dominions, leading the mounts of steadfast generosity [UNCLEAR: the image of the dominions and the mounts]. O You who spread the clouds of the bonds of His pardon over all creation, every one [UNCLEAR: sense of the bonds of pardon]. O You who have no partner in Your dominion and no helper.

“You alone we worship,” acknowledging our inability to fulfill what is due in worship of You, “and You alone we ask for help,” in carrying out what You have commanded concerning the fulfillment of Your rights at every time and moment. O Possessor of magnificent bounty, O You who give life to bones when they have crumbled away.

“Guide us to the straight path”: the path of the people of the upright religion; the path of the people of uprightness and rectification; the path of those upon whom You have looked with the eye of Your care; the path of those who possess resolve and a sound heart; the path of the people of sincerity and submission; the path of those who have held fast to guidance and rejoiced in it. “The path of those upon whom You have bestowed favor,” among the prophets, the utterly truthful, the martyrs, and the righteous. Reinforce us with the angels of victory and firm establishment, and direct us in existing beings, things brought into being, and bringing-into-being.

“Not those upon whom wrath has fallen, nor those who go astray. Amen.” Do not make us go astray, nor make us lead others astray, nor make us be driven away from Your door. Gather us among the company of the God-fearing, by Your mercy, O Most Merciful of the merciful. May God bless our master Muhammad, his family, and his companions, and grant them peace.

“And this is its adjuration; say:”

O spiritual spirits, possessors of luminous essences, radiant with the spiritual body [UNCLEAR: al-matn may instead mean text] and the divine laws, abiding in the subtleties of the manipulation of letters and the fine points of their knowledge, brought into being, charged with subjugating hearts and spiritual spirits, the numbers and the knowledges of their stored-away secrets [UNCLEAR: syntax connecting the spirits, numbers, and knowledges]. Revive/be alive [UNCLEAR: intended reading of the command], O mighty spirits and noble angels, Jibril, Mikail, Israfil, and Rufail. Aṣbūʾt Āl Shadāy [UNCLEAR: opaque invocation]. Understand my intention, fulfill my need, and undertake my service, by the right of God: the Opener, the Provider, the Forbearing, the Bestower, the Most High, the Magnificent, the Deity, the Subtle, the Great. Kāf-hā-yā-ʿayn-ṣād; ʿayn-sīn-qāf. Answer, O Green King [UNCLEAR: king or angel]. May God grant blessing in you and upon you.

And if it is the last night of the 14 days, a large green bird comes to you and stands before you. Begin with the greeting of peace, for he is a great king [UNCLEAR: king or angel]. Direct him—then what you desire [UNCLEAR: connection of this phrase]—after he has taken from you a covenant and conditions, among them that you do not lie, do not eat unlawful food, and do not commit an indecency. If you remain upright, he will remain upright with you and appoint a servant to fulfill your needs. The incense is anything fragrant, such as Qumari aloeswood.

If you desire the love of someone among creation, fast on Thursday and Monday and recite this invocation at the breaking of the fast 15 times, and at dawn. Ask God to turn that person's heart toward you and grant you that person's love, and mention that person by name [UNCLEAR: tarʿajā, the word following the naming instruction]. God knows best. If you want someone to fulfill a need for you, fast on Thursday, withdraw from people, and recite it frequently along the way with a fully attentive heart and mind; your need will be fulfilled. Its spiritual discipline lasts 9 days or 7. Write a square wafq together with Sūrat al-Fātiḥah; it is 9260, without the basmalah, for affection and love. Place the wafq before you and recite the invocation 10 times as a remembrance at the breaking of the fast. Fumigate the wafq with fragrant incense, and [UNCLEAR: "gather it until dawn"; the action before "until dawn" is damaged]. Then lift the wafq and carry it; your affairs will succeed, and the spiritual agency will serve you through the blessing of al-Fātiḥah. (This, too, is the invocation of the noble al-Fātiḥah.) (In the name of God, the All-Merciful, the Compassionate. Praise be to God, Lord of the worlds.) (The Compassionate), [UNCLEAR: "who was gentle through it concerning what preceded"; the connection is damaged] ; that mercy had already come from Him to me in ancient pre-eternity. [UNCLEAR: "I … turning … lifeless … found knowledge and creation or character"; the wording is damaged] , with the sweetest ward [UNCLEAR: the meaning of ward here] and the most pleasant bliss. I ask You, my Master, to bestow Your blessing in full and make Your favor endure through Your preceding mercy, so that I fear no plot from anyone possessed of vile cunning, and that You [UNCLEAR: "make manifest to me, in creation and character, from every blameworthy quality"; the wording and its connection are damaged] . (Master of the Day of Judgment), whose station is too exalted for Him to need a partner or assistance; God rules over those in the kingdom and the spiritual dominion by His power that crushes all tyrants and the arrogant, severe in His assault upon oppressive, unjust rulers; He subdues, with the intensity of His strength, His domination, and His assault, whoever rebels and acts tyrannically among tyrants and rebels. He shatters anyone who shares in His greatness and majesty, seizing that person to perish among those who perish. I ask You to subject the hearts of Your creatures to me, O God who inclines hearts, who softens iron for David, peace be upon him: budūḥ 3 daḥūb 3 yā Mālik 3, of the kings of all the worlds, all of them together. Give me mastery over the forelock of so-and-so and so-and-so, until that person is in my grasp among the most abased. There is no god but You. Glory be to You; I have indeed been among the wrongdoers. Reach me with Your mercy, O Most Merciful of the merciful. (You alone we worship, and You alone we ask for help.) I have kept You as my reserve for my poverty and need, O You before whose greatness the most insolent tyrants and the arrogant submit, and before whose majesty the tyrants among humankind and rebellious jinn become small. O You whose assault is severe, whose subjugation is mighty, who takes vengeance on everyone wielding oppressive power, establish me; support me with victory from You and a clear triumph, that I may subdue all my enemies. (Guide us on the straight path, the path of those upon whom You have bestowed favor, not those who have incurred wrath, nor those who go astray.) Bestow on us, from Your presence, the gifts of the utterly truthful; let us witness the scenes of the martyrs and the righteous, and reinforce us with the angels of victory and empowerment.

Immerse me in the abundance of Your provision from the treasuries of Your mercy, which encompasses everything, and relieve me of every distress, O Reliever of the distressed, by Your mercy, O Most Merciful of the merciful. 'His command, when He intends something,' etc.; Sūrat Yā Sīn: recite it 3 times. The Prophet, peace be upon him, said: 'Whoever recites al-Fātiḥah at bedtime, and with it recites al-Ikhlāṣ 3 times and the two surahs of refuge, is safe from everything except death.' When al-Ḥasan and al-Ḥusayn fell ill, the Prophet, peace be upon him, was distressed, so God revealed to him: 'Recite a surah containing no fā', for fā' is from tafa'ul (taking a favorable omen). Recite it 40 times over a vessel containing water, and wash with it his hands, his feet, his head, his face, and the rest of his body, for God will heal him of every pain.' Some scholars said: 'Any sick person who writes al-Fātiḥah in a clean vessel, washes the writing off with water, and drinks it will be healed by God.' Whoever suffers from much forgetfulness, writes it in a glass vessel, washes the writing off, and drinks from it will lose his forgetfulness. Whoever recites it frequently will have his heart and inner being purified of all promptings of the lower self and satanic suggestions. Whoever writes it in a glass bowl, washes the writing off with pure oil, and rubs the oil on the sciatic nerve and the site of back pain will have the pain leave him; it benefits wind, paralysis, and every dry or wet illness. Whoever writes al-Fātiḥah in a gold vessel at the first [UNCLEAR: moment or hour] of Friday with musk, saffron, and camphor, washes the writing off with water, and puts it in a bottle, then wipes his face with some of it when he wishes to enter the presence of rulers, will gain acceptance. Whoever enters the presence of someone whose evil he fears and recites al-Fātiḥah will be safe from that person's evil. Ibn al-Shaʿbī complained of back pain, so [UNCLEAR: 'say to him'; damaged narrative connection]: 'You should use the foundation of the Qur'an, which is al-Fātiḥah.' He kept to it, wrote it down, washed the writing off, and drank, and was healed. Ibn ʿAbbās said: 'Everything has a foundation; the foundation of the Qur'an is al-Fātiḥah, and the foundation of al-Fātiḥah is the basmalah.' Ibn al-Qayyim said: 'The best treatment is with al-Fātiḥah. That is because I stayed in Mecca for a long time, during which an illness afflicted me, and I could find neither a physician nor medicine. So I said: "I shall treat myself with al-Fātiḥah." I did so and saw that it had a tremendous effect. I would therefore recommend it to anyone complaining of severe pain, and he would recover.' Whoever recites al-Fātiḥah 19 times when entering the presence of a tyrant will be safe from him. Whoever writes it as many times as the number of its letters on Friday and carries it will be protected from the assaults of jinn and humans. Whoever says every day three times, 'In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate; in the name of God, the best of names; in the name of God, Lord of the earth and the sky; in the name of God, with whose name nothing on earth or in the sky causes harm, and He is the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing,' will not be harmed by anything. Whoever writes the letters with which the surahs begin in a glass bowl, washes the writing off with rainwater, and gives it to a poisoned person to drink will find that the poison has no effect on him; this has been tried repeatedly. And [UNCLEAR: sallama; the wording before 'the Prophet' is damaged] the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him: whoever places his hand on his head and recites the saying of God Most High, 'He is God, there is no god but He, Knower of the unseen and the witnessed,' to the end of the surah will have healing.

- 74 -

The source continues: from every disease, al-asām [UNCLEAR: the opening is a fragment; the meaning of al-asām is uncertain]. Shaykh Shihāb al-Dīn al-Suhrawardī said that whoever recites Sūrat al-Burūj in the ʿAṣr prayer is safe from al-dāmīl [UNCLEAR: the illness named here is uncertain]. Whoever writes al-Fātiḥah, washes off its writing with water, and mixes a little water with it will see the blessing appear visibly in it. As for its effects in letter-forms, whoever writes it [UNCLEAR: the source reads 'after them, the meanings of its letters'; the connection is damaged] in a glass bowl, washes off its writing with rainwater, and drinks it after fasting twenty-five days, God opens for him a door of gentleness, outwardly and inwardly. If it is written after purification and fasting five days, and 'Indeed your Lord is God, who created the heavens and the earth' is written as far as His words 'Lord of the worlds,' on pure paper on Friday at the hour of Venus, and he carries it on his head, God Most High brings about gentleness for him and inspires dread of him in hearts. In it there is also a secret for one whose forgetfulness is frequent, if he drinks it. Whoever writes this wafq, carries it, and places it in a house, harmful creeping creatures will not enter that house. This is because of its inclination of the heart: what practitioners of observation seek from the ascendant is spiritual power; if the heart's power of faith is manifest, it is more effective than the ascendant. Beware of impurity in any of this, and you will find good fortune. God knows best. This is the form of the wafq, as you see. Among these are the verses of al-Laṭīf in the Qur'an, in four places. The first is in Sūrat al-Anʿām, the words of God Most High: 'Eyes do not perceive Him, but He perceives eyes, and He is the Gentle, the All-Aware.' This verse is beneficial for one who fears for himself an enemy, an oppressor, or a tyrant: let him invoke His name as His name al-Laṭīf, morning and evening, 129 times, reciting it after the verse just mentioned; he will see wonders of God's gentleness, and God will make him safe from his enemy. * The second is in Sūrat Yūsuf, the words of God Most High: 'Indeed my Lord is gentle in what He wills; indeed He is the All-Knowing, the Wise.' Its special property is for one who fears hardship, an ordeal, straitened circumstances, anguish, or grief: let him invoke His name Laṭīf according to its numerical count and recite the verse; God will deliver him from that and from every worry. * The third is in Sūrat al-Shūrā, the words of God Most High: 'God is gentle with His servants; He provides for whom He wills, and He is the Strong, the Mighty.' Its special property is for one who has become poor: he recites His name al-Laṭīf, recites this verse, and does not persist in it; worldly goods will come to him. * The fourth is in Sūrat al-Mulk, the words of God Most High: 'Does He who created not know, when He is the Gentle, the All-Aware?' Its special property is for one seeking appointment to an office, such as a judge, a governor, or the like: let him recite His name al-Laṭīf morning and evening and recite the verse; what is sought will be obtained. * Let us return to the benefits of al-Fātiḥah that we were discussing: if it is written and its writing washed off with rainwater, the sick person wipes his face and hands with it once, drinks that water 3 times, and, when drinking it, says, 'O God, heal; You are the Healer. Suffice; You are the One who suffices. Grant well-being; You are the One who grants well-being,' 3 times, God heals him of his illness immediately, unless his appointed time of death has already arrived. * If someone with palpitations in his heart or ḥayf [UNCLEAR: the meaning of ḥayf here is uncertain] drinks some of that water, that condition leaves him. If it is written with musk and saffron in a glass vessel, its writing washed off with rosewater, and someone with an ailment drinks some of it, he is healed; or, if a dull-witted person drinks some of it for seven days, his dullness disappears, and he memorizes what he hears. If it is written with musk in a glass vessel, its writing washed off with the rainwater that falls in the month of Kānūn [UNCLEAR: which Kānūn month is not specified], Isfahan kohl is ground with it, and a person with weak eyesight applies it as kohl, his sight becomes clear, and his eye [UNCLEAR: maḥat; the wording about the eye is damaged]. * If the gall of a white rooster described as afraq [UNCLEAR: this adjective is uncertain] and the gall of a black hen are added to that, and it is applied as kohl, he sees spiritual persons, and they speak to him of things he did not know. * Whoever persists in reciting it night and day loses his indolence, and no pain comes to him. * If it is written in a clean vessel, its writing washed off with rosewater, and the liquid dripped into the aching ear, its pain goes away. *

If it is written, its writing washed off with pure bān oil, recited over that oil 70 times, and the oil applied to someone suffering from paralysis and sciatica [UNCLEAR: the conditional sentence ends unfinished on this page] .

— 75 — Women [UNCLEAR: opening fragment] ; and every pain vanished. * Whoever has a need with God, let him recite in sequence and according to the revelation, with faith and conviction, 7 times, facing the qiblah, after praying two rak'ahs with al-Fātiḥah and Sūrat al-Ikhlāṣ, 30 [UNCLEAR: the scope of this count is unspecified] . Then let him ask for his need; it will be fulfilled. * Among the things that have been tried is that whoever recites it between the prayers of Ṣubḥ and Fajr for 41 days, for a period of 40 days without any addition, and asks for his need, it will be fulfilled. * These verses are transmitted from the book Kanz al-Muqarrabīn by the learned Ibn Sabʿīn, who transmitted them from Imam ʿAlī, may God honor his face. They are: If you are seeking provision, * and the path to your purpose from slave and free, * and would quickly attain what you desire, and be safe from opposition and betrayal, * then take up the Opening of the Book, for within it * is a secret for what you have hoped for, and what a secret! So persist in studying it after ʿIshāʾ, * and at Ṣubḥ and Ẓuhr, then ʿAṣr; * and persist with it at Maghrib every night, up to ninety, following these with ten. * You will attain whatever you wish of honor and standing, * great awe-inspiring majesty and high rank, and honor that the nights do not change * through any event that brings diminution, * and success and joys continually. You will be safe from the chastisement of every evil, * and will not need anything from anyone, * and will not be stricken by misfortune and harm. From hunger, nakedness, and severance, * and from the violence of one who commands and forbids, * you will be protected and truly attain your hopes, over the long span of time, in every age. * For if you do this, a visitor will come to you * with what [UNCLEAR: the verb 'yabghīka' and its connection to 'from' are unclear] from Zayd and ʿAmr. (And this is the spiritual discipline of al-Fātiḥah.) It is to retreat into a dark place where no one sees you except God, and fast for 3 days, the first being Sunday, on condition of abstaining in this discipline from anything that has a spirit. Break your fast with barley bread and oil, without eating your fill. Recite al-Fātiḥah after every prayer one hundred times, and supplicate with this, saying: My Lord, bring me into the sea of Your oneness and the vast ocean of Your unique singleness, until I emerge into the freshness of Your mercy, with flashes of the Qur'an on my face, from the traces of Your mercy, awe-inspiring through Your awe, strong through Your strength, mighty through Your might. Clothe me in the robes of honor and acceptance; make easy for me the easing of connection and union; crown me with the crown of karamah; and bring me into harmony with Your beloved ones. O Master of this world and the Hereafter, O You who took Ibrāhīm as a close friend, who spoke to Mūsā directly, and who greatly honored Muḥammad, peace and blessings be upon him: Peace, a word from a merciful Lord. O Master of the Day of Judgment, You alone we worship and You alone we ask for help. Guide us to the straight path, the path of those whom You have favored, not those who have incurred wrath, nor those who have gone astray. After 3 days, a white cat will appear to you in the mihrab, puffing itself up until it fills the place where you are; then it will remain a heap. Then a man will come out from beneath it, saying: What is your need, and what do you seek? Do not ask for anything, and say to him: I want the Name and the seal. And brotherhood is a condition upon you [UNCLEAR: who imposes this condition is unspecified]. The recitation is 3 times after the Ṣubḥ prayer, and likewise at Ẓuhr and ʿAṣr, and ten after Maghrib. We supplicate with this supplication: (In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate. Praise be to God, Lord of the worlds.) [UNCLEAR: corrupt word 'hadāyākūn'] for me ease, and for me approval with the Lord of the worlds. (The Merciful, the Compassionate.) The One who spread out the regions and singled out Mūsā, the one spoken to; God gives life to bones when they are decayed. In the two are two great Names, healing for every disease and sickness, a path to the gardens of bliss, and deliverance from the torment of Hell. (Master of the Day of Judgment.) God has no partner in His dominion, no rival, and no helper. (You alone we worship.) The acknowledgment; and we confess our shortcomings. I bear witness that there is no god but God alone, without a partner, the true, manifest King; and I bear witness that our master Muḥammad is the Messenger of God, the truthful, the trustworthy. God is the Maker of all existence and knew what lies hidden in inward thoughts [UNCLEAR: ʿilm/ʿalima' can also be read as the noun 'knowledge'], and the One who wraps night and day; my proof to all the worlds, and my direction toward the nearest and farthest among the different kinds. If you keep to seclusion for 7 days of the discipline, say after the supplication: O God, subject Your green servant to me; indeed, You have power over all things. The incense after the recitation is aloeswood, frankincense, and jāwī during the days of seclusion. The Prophet, peace be upon him, said: Whoever has an illness, let him recite over pure water al-Fātiḥah and Āyat al-Kursī 7 times, and the two Sūrahs of Refuge 71 times, and drink it on an empty stomach for 3 days; God will restore him to health from every affliction. Those who know God said: The Mother of the Book contains a thousand outward properties and a thousand inward properties. If it is written in a vessel, washed off, and given as a drink for any illness, God removes it. The Prophet, peace be upon him, said: If you lay your side upon the bed and recite al-Fātiḥah and "Say: He is God, One," you have become safe from every matter. The Prophet, peace be upon him, said: Whoever recites the end of al-Ḥashr, places his hand beneath his head, and says, "O God, I ask You for healing from every disease," is healed.

His command, when He wills a thing, is only to say to it, 'Be,' and it is. Glory be to Him in whose hand is the dominion of everything, and to Him you will be returned. Creator of everything, and He is Trustee over everything. Ṣād qāf nūn. God will suffice you against them, and He is the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing. Preserving the two does not weary Him, and He is the Most High, the Magnificent. And you do not harm Him at all. Indeed, my Lord is Guardian over everything. God is the best Guardian, and He is the most merciful of the merciful. For him are successive attendants before him and behind him, guarding him by God's command. And We have guarded it from every accursed devil. And as a protection; that is the determination of the Mighty, the All-Knowing. And as a protection from every rebellious devil. God is Guardian over them, and you are not a trustee over them. For every oft-returning, watchful one. Rather, it is a glorious Qur'an in a preserved tablet. Take charge, O Mīṭṭarūn, liyajsamʿalʿān, ṣaʿb, lahyāl, ṣak-hā, ʿasāl.

(Chapter Eleven: On the Inventions of the Realm of Mercy and the Shining Lights from the Secrets of the Spiritual Kingdom)

☆ Know—may God grant me and you success in obeying Him—that God wrote a book in His beginningless eternity, seventy thousand years before He created the spirits, by the reckoning of those years each day of which measures fifty thousand years, which are among the signs of God Most High. God wrote in it what no one other than He knew. Yet what has reached us of it is what our master Muhammad, peace be upon him, brought to our attention by saying: “God Most High wrote a book seventy thousand years before He created the heavens and the earth. It is with Him upon His Throne, and in it is: ‘My mercy preceded My torment.’” This is a reality [UNCLEAR: how the expression “grew great upon it” connects to what follows] for the people of understanding whom God guided to a straight path and loved. They recognized this reality and became immersed in the seas of bounties through their affirmation of divine oneness, and their thoughts spoke. They are the heirs concerning whom God Most High said: “Those are the heirs who inherit Firdaws; they abide in it forever,” the pure ones from the realities of the lofty ranks [UNCLEAR: connection of this description], throughout the continuance of the ages. They never tire of looking at their wealth and witnessing the absolute merciful fire, upon the reality of what that Presence could encompass of the compound letters: an indication for one in whom the least of his knowledge became subtle [UNCLEAR: wording and referent of "his"]. ☆ And know that the Creator—exalted is His power—when He lowered the highest pavilion and seated it [UNCLEAR: referent of "it"] upon the Seat, the divine standing [UNCLEAR: connection between "the Seat" and "the divine standing"], and clothed it in a robe of splendid light, crowned it with the crown of the highest wisdom, and displayed it before the realities in the rank of the day of contentment, from the absolute light, the expressed...

— 79 — ... that which is expressed, and it is beginninglessness, the most sought; then damahu [UNCLEAR: the meaning of this word] in the realities, the technical terms, the knowledges of the manifestations with him [UNCLEAR: the connections among these terms]. So they fled from their own selves, the thought of their solitudes, the throne of their chairs, and the firmness of their feet upon their carpet, in the abodes of their stations in the Holy Presence, and the difficulties of their barzakhs, spacious in extent for the written things; and from their highest, the endings and the upper things [UNCLEAR: the relation of this last phrase]. Then they brought them to nothing, as a companion [UNCLEAR: the referent and the relation of 'companion'], and took them as a friendly wayfaring. So they answered his call: "O Lord, grant us a secret by which one is guided through the secret of the secret, while the subtle faculty witnesses the realities of thought, for He built for us an encompassing orbit and a simple form." When God knew from them this descriptive compassion and the original, derivative reality, God opened for them that aforementioned Book, renowned for its virtues and its glory, and made them witness the secret of the Circle of Mercy. Its secret was imprinted in their secret, and through its secret they looked out over all their other secrets; then [UNCLEAR: adh'hā; the reading and meaning of the word introducing the circle are uncertain] a radiant circle spread its ray, split open, and with its breath revived the dead. Behold, it was a circle with an outward and an inward: its outward was a circle containing the letter of its preparedness, 567, and its inward contained letters whose number was 231. Thus the proportion of 130 is a beginningless proportion, and it is the concealed one; and the proportion of 231 is an endless proportion, and it is the Book concealed therein. When inspired knowledge and understanding, a secret imparting understanding, a divine outpouring, and a holy spirit began to appear to them from its discourse, they never ceased following its traces while it clarified for them the most exalted Truth. They found the power for agreement and opposition through the substance of agreement, and took it as an imam for the Abode of Abiding and as provision for the Abode of Peace. If you desire that, realize the secret of the second number; then the first knowledge and the outward secret, brought forward without delay, will appear to you. This is because the uppermost canopies, over which the most exalted Chair holds sway, were veiled by the secret and splendor, by the secret of what is intended within what is intended. It is only the renowned bringing-into-being in the single ones, with respect to ranks, not with respect to number; so understand. People have ranks of perception in this: whoever witnesses the first Book folded up witnesses the veils of the uppermost canopy, and whoever witnesses [UNCLEAR: mar, a word preceding 'the writing'] the writing witnesses the most splendid canopy. Beyond it there is no degree to which one ascends, for the binding of solicitude [UNCLEAR: the reading of 'binding' and its connection to the ascent], which encompasses the secrets of the Circle of Mercy. Here I give you an example to bring understanding near: suppose a plane circle whose angles extend; raise it into the air without pillars. Its outward is above the above, its inward below the below, its first the first of the first, its last the last of the last, its right its beginninglessness, and its left its endlessness. And from the circle that is the circle of alif jīm dāl, its outward dāl alif, and its inward alif ṭāʾ nūn bāʾ, explaining the alif [UNCLEAR: the connection of these phrases and what explains the alif]; for the outward alif is in the proportion of above the above, since there is no above and no below and no right and no left and no behind and no interlocking and no assimilation and no restriction and no unboundedness and no above and no below and no right and no left and no behind and no before; so understand * As for the secret of Mercy, it is the secret of the barzakh between the two alifs that participate in the circle's inward and outward; and you are the whole circle, witnessing the realities of Mercy. So understand the canopy and believe the truthful thinker. If you loosen the gem-setting of this ḥamām [UNCLEAR: whether 'pigeon,' 'bath,' or 'death' is intended], you will enter the Garden of Knowledges in peace. Then [UNCLEAR: fashaqaba, the damaged verb governing 'thought'] thought, and by the light of Mercy, rise with it so that I may stand upon it; and [UNCLEAR: wa-afta, a damaged verb] a circle, essential in its secret, toward it [UNCLEAR: the relation of 'toward it']. And the divine outpouring of Mercy overflowed; then [UNCLEAR: fataqum, a damaged verb] the demolition of what came before and what came after, and what of it was outward and what was inward. Thus the realities of things become bearers of good tidings for you and warners directed toward your action, and you will join the greatest losers in deeds, those whose striving went astray in the life of this world while they think that they are doing good work. In the world of the canopy, the Most High presented them with His saying [UNCLEAR: the boundaries between quotation and interleaved commentary, including the world-phrases below, are uncertain]: "Those are the ones who disbelieved, in the world of veils, in the signs of their Lord and in meeting Him." Then it made clear, in the world of the canopy [UNCLEAR: the subject of 'made clear']: "Their deeds came to nothing on the Day of Regret; so we do not understand any weight for them in the barzakh [UNCLEAR: the source says 'understand'; its relation to 'weight' is damaged, and the first-person-plural speaker is uncertain], on the Day of Resurrection. Their recompense is Hell, in the world of veils, because they disbelieved in the world of al-karamī [UNCLEAR: a designation possibly related to generosity], and they took...

…my signs in the world of the highest Rafraf, and my messengers in the world of the most splendid canopy, in mockery… If they had entered the circle of the Merciful, the secrets of the realm of sovereignty would have traced them. [UNCLEAR: the opening continues an earlier passage; the quotation boundary and the identity of the first-person speaker are not established on this page.]

(Attention) In the saying “There is no deity except God” there are two circles: negation and affirmation. The circle of negation is from the circles of affirmation, or from the circles of negation of the Originator; and the circle of affirmation is of the Originator. These are two lines: negation in the world of operations, and the line of affirmation over operations. Since the line of negation contained the letters hāʾ, the things negated were hāʾ [UNCLEAR: the letter's role in these two expressions is uncertain]: the negation of choices from the things willed. This is your existence through acknowledging the power over your undertaking of actions. It is lāh, the five [UNCLEAR: the reading lāh and its connection to “the five” are uncertain], among the attachments of actions to the soul. Whoever cuts these off is raised thereby to the circle of affirmation, which has 7 ranks, corresponding to the number of its letters, so that his life is then through the affirmation of divine oneness, his action through witnessing, his power through contentment, his disposal through wisdom, his sight through insight, his witnessing through reality, and his hearing through unveiling. Through his life in the affirmation of divine oneness he perceives his reality; through his world in witnessing he perceives the lights of abiding. By his power—al-muḍāf, “the added” [UNCLEAR: the connection of this word to the surrounding clause is uncertain] —his soul sarat [UNCLEAR: the intended reading of sarat is uncertain] away from looking toward what has passed. He is made to speak with wisdom; taktub, “writes,” the crown of the head “from slipping” [UNCLEAR: the connection of the verb taktub, the crown of the head, and slipping is damaged] . Through his sight with insight he uncovers the reality of the ultimate outcome, and through his being made to hear by the secret, the vision is established for him in the world of reality. Thus, whoever—khayr [UNCLEAR: this word's reading here is uncertain] —knows, is content, speaks with wisdom, and looks with insight hears through the secret; that is the distinction. And [UNCLEAR: the connection of wa-man kānat to what follows is uncertain] , “There is no deity except God” was twelve; the circle of the perfection of existent beings was in plants and animals, and existent beings were between the perfection of the four seasons. The four seasons contain 12 months, and the whole world is within the bounds of the circle of the world. Thus the two forms have been completed, where it was described according to what was allotted to it in the first ordering on this path: “I am a builder, la-amjīd [UNCLEAR: this word's reading is uncertain] , about him [UNCLEAR: the referent is uncertain] , through the realities of the people of measure, in its months, then its days, then its hours.” [UNCLEAR: the boundary of this first-person passage and the identity of its speaker are uncertain.] There were thus the twelve months: each month subsists through a letter; rather, each letter revolves in a month. The months are the receptacle of the letters. Through them mercy descends, through them the word appears, wisdom gushes forth, guidance comes about, benefits grow great, al-ḥaṣb increases [UNCLEAR: the meaning of al-ḥaṣb here is uncertain] , and good deeds multiply. This is in general. As for the details, God, out of His hidden gentleness and His subtle wisdom, established what He brought into the ordering of the world within a single day, arranging it over 12 hours, one hour corresponding to each month, in which “the river passed” [UNCLEAR: marra al-nahr, “the river passed,” is an uncertain reading in this context] . He placed the secret of spring in the second set of three hours, the passage of autumn in the third set of three hours, and the passage of severity in the fourth set of three hours. Each hour subsists through the secret of a letter from those lordly letters that reinforce the affirmation of divine oneness. Since daytime was 12 hours and the ordering was completed through it, if the servants' daytime were to continue without interruption, the very blessing would turn into torment, for upholding it befits only the Self-Subsisting. Human knowledge is composed of motion and rest, and its passing away and the unveiling of its phases are inevitable. So God made night for it: the existence of its secret and its return to the world of the reality of the secret of transition and resurrection, the ascent of spirits, the rising of intellects, and the stillness of human beings under the wisdom of darkness. He made night 12 hours. Since the circle of “Muhammad is the Messenger of God,” peace be upon him, was 12 months and 12 letters, there is a letter for every hour. For “There is no deity except God” does not complete the affirmation of divine oneness except together with “Muhammad is the Messenger of God.” Likewise, the circle of daytime is not complete except through the circle of night. Thus wisdom in night and day has been completed by the mingling of mercy, according to the saying of God Most High: “Out of His mercy He made for you night and day, so that you may rest therein and seek of His bounty, and so that you may give thanks.” The meaning of this is that whoever says “There is no deity except God; Muhammad is the Messenger of God,” subject to what we have mentioned and realizing what we have drawn attention to, is as though he had worshipped God for an entire year. Hence the Prophet, peace be upon him, said: “The best of what I and the prophets before me have said is: There is no deity except God.” * Know that the four letters correspond to 24 worlds, with seven upper and lower barzakh-realms, and 11 revolving orbits. Each world has a creative origination, and four upper ones, and they are

And they are the realities of the beginnings of the worlds of invention: they are 24 worlds, and in each world is the reality of one luminous letter. That single letter thus governs the manifestation of each of these worlds. Since the reality of the upper and lower world is a relation within the very being of the Throne, the secret of their stability within it lies in the two lines written in light, by which I mean white light and green light. They are: “There is no god but God; Muhammad is the Messenger of God.” Those two luminous lines are beneath the Throne, so understand the reality of this luminous subtlety. Since the spirits of the Malakūt realities and the lights of the Jabarūt realities issue from the eight who bear the Throne, the whole upper world is the lights of lights, and it is the Throne; the illuminator of the light is God. Each angel has 3 letters. From each light a slanting letter emerges; then the horizon of every Malakūt and Jabarūt and celestial sphere [UNCLEAR: the meaning of this fragment after “slanting” is uncertain]; the light of Malakūt, with its ink, is speech [UNCLEAR: the meaning of this clause is uncertain]. The light of Jabarūt is with the spirits, and the light of Mulk sustains the heart. Thus 24 are completed for the eight angels, from multiplying three by eight. Therefore, for whoever says, “There is no god but God; Muhammad is the Messenger of God,” the utterance reaches the Throne. This is because the good word ascends of itself: it is at ease in Mulk, an ascension in Jabarūt, and a rising in Malakūt. God Most High says: “To Him good words ascend, and righteous work raises it.” Therefore, according to the text, whoever says it at bedtime with the count kūr [UNCLEAR: the meaning and numerical value of this count are uncertain], his spirit appears beneath the Throne, nourished from that according to its powers. Therefore, whoever says it upon seeing the new crescent is safe from all ailments; whoever says it upon entering the city is safe from its trial; and whoever says it with the intention of looking into the higher realms has the unseen of his purposes disclosed to him. This is subject to the conditions we have mentioned. Since the transverse or accidental realities are 12, each station has a letter by which the one standing in that transverse reality stands. He ascends in that letter and becomes a manifestation of a god on the Day of the Greatest Gathering, meaning the day of the Middle Resurrection. This is a subtlety that reveals the secret and opens the locks of thought. The Merciful naming, expressed as the Light of Lights and the Pole of the Circle, has revolved around the obscure essences, the ambiguous attributes, the earlier centuries, and the firmly established manifestations. It made a small revolution and took possession of the heavens; and ṭ-b-hā k-l-y [UNCLEAR: the readings and meanings of these words are uncertain], the scroll for the Raḥīmī (Compassionate) Book, the dazzling light and the manifest balance. Then, after that, what belongs to it [UNCLEAR: the meaning of this fragment is uncertain]; so the earth was changed into other than the earth, just as it was changed in length and breadth. The spirits were immersed in those seas until, from the very source of darkness, an ember was reflected for those warming themselves, and it blazes toward the magnified Tree and the honored result at the lofty height of Ṭūr Ṭuwā. None is guided to its fringe, nor strives with its striving, except the departing, scent-exuding wanderer, and the grasping wanderer, or the absent, wicked one, or the faithful, preponderant one. This is the shining forth of the Tree of Difference and the fading away of the name of creatures [UNCLEAR: the sense of “shining forth” here is uncertain]. Understand this upper subtlety: it lies in the secret of the saying of God Most High: “Say: I exhort you to one thing only: that you stand for God in twos and singly, then reflect: your companion has no madness.” Exclude thought with the letter of gentleness; then reflect on the secret of Oneness and the “passing” of Two-ness [UNCLEAR: the reading and meaning of marr here are uncertain], for the outpouring of human judgments. Witnessing Oneness is not sound except by distinguishing true Two-ness. Within the secret of the even and the odd, the even is everlastingness [UNCLEAR: the sense of abad, “everlastingness,” here is uncertain] . Whoever witnesses the secret of the even through the secret of the odd has stood upon al-yusrā and al-yusrā [UNCLEAR: the source repeats the same term, which may mean “the easier” or “the left”; its sense here is uncertain] , and the granting of happiness in the stations of al-yusrā for al-ʿusrā [UNCLEAR: the relation of “the easier/the left” to “the harder” here is uncertain] . * Know that it is a day measured at fifty thousand years in the second rank. It is also, in its day's measure in the third rank, as the Prophet, peace be upon him, measured it in his saying: “Like the two prayer cycles of dawn.” For one to whom God opens in the secret of Oneness without defining Two-ness, the day is fifty thousand years. Whoever brings Two-ness into association by blending Oneness with it, his day is like a thousand years. Whoever singles out alf [UNCLEAR: this may mean “a thousand” or the letter alif] karrah (“a turn/repetition”) over the worlds [UNCLEAR: the intended operation in this clause is uncertain] , his day is like the two prayer cycles of dawn. Then he stands upon the crests of deeds and recites upon the line of al-jubūr [UNCLEAR: the reading and meaning of al-jubūr are uncertain] and letters

Joy. "Praise be to God, who has removed sorrow from us. Indeed, our Lord is Forgiving, Appreciative." * Know that the substance of the entire world, its lower and upper parts, its nearest and farthest reaches, every atom deposited in it, is only from the life deposited in the exemplar of water. In it is the secret of Making (jaʿl), and it is water. As for the parts of water, in it is the secret of life. Water is a barzakh, an intervening boundary, between the two circles. Through the secret of Making, Jabarūt and Malakūt came into existence. In every outward aspect is the secret of life, and in an inward aspect is the secret of Making. Thus ḥāʾ comes from life (ḥayāh), through the secret of heat (ḥarārah), and jīm from Making (jaʿl), through the secret of Majesty (jalālah). Its inward aspect faces heat, which is the secret of life, and its outward aspect is through the jīm of Majesty: faqaʿ [UNCLEAR: the reading and meaning of this word are uncertain] for Malakūt. Through heat, the mirror of the light of life manifested to the essence of the intellect; then the light of al-shaʿshaʿānah (radiance) split forth from the form of existence. Heat came, and the jīm of Majesty: adhhī [UNCLEAR: this word and its grammatical connection are uncertain] , the secret of Lordship, because it belongs to the domain of Lordship and intimacy. * The Highest Truth manifested through intimacy, for the appearance of jīm and the seeing of intermediaries. Oneness is the root of wisdom in this regard. The saying of God Most High is: "Say: Have you considered, if God makes the night perpetual over you until the Day of Resurrection?" If the jīm of Making were to dominate: "the darkness of oneness" [UNCLEAR: the wording of this conditional result is defective] , owing to the absence of action through wisdom. If the ḥāʾ of life were to dominate, owing to the presence of expansion, oneness would become hidden. Thus the saying of God Most High is: "Say: Have you considered, if God makes ..."—the verse. Then God made them a balance of justice and a descent of mercy and bounty, so that wisdom would appear in making known and oneness would appear in bringing into existence. Therefore God said: "Out of His mercy He made for you the night and the day, that you may rest therein and that you may seek of His bounty, and that you may give thanks." This, then, is an everlasting subtle mystery. * Know that the upper canopies and the purified lights have become veiled over the lights of the intellect. The merciful canopies are a manifestation in the spirits of invented things: istawiyya [UNCLEAR: the reading and meaning of this word are uncertain] . And the intellect—the lofty canopies are veiled by subtle thought [UNCLEAR: the syntactic connection of 'the intellect' to the canopies is uncertain]. The interior of radiant Malakūt is from the light of the parts of resplendent Malakūt. If you wish to understand * this, you must understand these indications. Take four of the birds: the Name al-Maknūn (the Hidden), al-Makhzūn (the Stored), al-Maḥjūb (the Veiled), and al-Aʿẓam (the Greatest). Tame them to yourself, make them familiar through the secret of intimacy, and saddle them in the Holy Presence. When you have gained possession of the keys [UNCLEAR: the possessive ending is malformed] and witnessed the witnessings of their secret, place a portion of them on each mountain: on the mountain of the degree of the bird, the portion of the Greatest; on the mountain of Jabarūt, the portion of the Requested, Veiled bird; on the mountain of Malakūt, the Stored portion; and on the mountain of the most splendid Rafraf, the portion of the Hidden bird. Then call them—the secret of amthunna [UNCLEAR: the reading and meaning of this word, and its connection to the command, are uncertain]—they will come running to you. This is for one who has realized the Name of Might and Wisdom. If you understand the secret of the inspirational quality of the soul and luminous unveiling, take four of the birds and tame them to yourself: the first is the bird of Life, the second the bird of Knowledge, the third the bird of Power, and the fourth the bird of Will. Realize life—the life of faith—through annihilation of sense; and knowledge—the knowledge that leads to God, "and Majestic" [UNCLEAR: the honorific is broken here]; and Power through the secret of invention; and Will through the secret of thought in origination. Make the placement on the mountain of al-durr (pearls), through the secret of Life; on the mountain of thought in origination, through the secret of Knowledge; on the mountain of composition, through the secret of Power; and on the mountain of arrangement, through the secret of Will. Then call them with the tongue of wisdom: they will come running to you. This appears to one who approaches God with his whole being, until he is characterized by God's saying: "I was his hearing, his sight, and his tongue"—the hadith. * Know that the fire complained to its Lord and said: "My Lord, part of me has consumed part of me." So God permitted it two breaths: a breath in summer. These, then, are two different breaths from one nafs [UNCLEAR: the unvocalized word can mean 'soul' or 'breath' here]. The separation of the breath was made easy only because of the presence of density; rather, the noble subtlety, the lofty partition, and the obligation under the full conditions are hidden. Understand this from the saying of God Most High, "There is none of you except one who approaches it": this is an expression for the worldly day. As for the entry in the Hereafter [UNCLEAR: the sentence is unfinished on this page].

— 83 — of the Hereafter, [UNCLEAR: fqumamah; the continuation is obscure]. Then call them; they will come to you running. If you have enfolded annihilation in abiding and witnessing in meeting, take four birds and turn them toward yourself, and establish the reality of their existence in witnessing them. Then place a portion of them on every mountain: on the mountain of the intellect, the bird of Prophecy; on the mountain of the spirit, the bird of Truthfulness (Siddiqiyya); on the mountain of the heart, the bird of Martyrdom (witness-bearing); and on the mountain of the body, the bird of Righteousness. Then call them; they will come to you running. If your station is firmly established, you will witness these understandings. So take four birds and turn them toward yourself—that is, take the bird of the intellect, which is the secret of Knowledge; the bird of the heart, which is the secret of Will; and the bird of the secret, which is the secret of Power. Then place a portion of them on every mountain: place the bird of the intellect on the mountain of primary life, the bird of the secret on the mountain of otherworldly life, and the bird of the heart on the mountain of eternal life. Then call them; they will come to you running.

* Know that whoever clothes himself in the robe of immortality cannot validly witness subjugation. So cast off the intellect, the Lord—that is, and the robe, the spirit [UNCLEAR: al-lahani; the syntax of this phrase is broken] —because might is the pole of the robe. If you desire how to connect with what we have intended, accord with closing what is between [UNCLEAR: ma baynamahu; the ending and its referent are unclear] .

* One of the People of Realities related, saying: "I boarded a vessel in which the number of the collection fundamental to it was 131 planks. This is a condition in the Ark of Salvation. I was cast into the sea, running with the wind of safety for the duration of the days of the four seasons, derived from the days of God Most High. I reached the seashore and found precious jewels, brilliant rubies, great stores, red sulfur, colored mines, and the spring of life flowing perpetually. I bathed in its water and drank a draught from it after which there is no annihilation. Then I boarded my vessel and returned toward my homeland. My launching was from the sun's rising to its setting; there is the blessed shore."

* Know that the movements are four: the movement of unveiling, which is the first, and the movement of veiling, which is the second. The first movement of unveiling is the movement of atoms; it is the essential movement, and it is the movement of the intellect. The movement of the first journey is the movement of the soul, and it is voluntary. The movement of the second journey is the movement of atoms, and it is the movement of longing. The first unveiling belongs to the first day, the day God created the spirits in the worlds of the covenant. The second day is the first journey, the day the intellect addressed him in the world of Dust (haba). These are the beginnings of the first things. The third day is the day of the second unveiling, the day the covenant was taken. The fourth day is the second journey, the day of endlessness, except that its end is the day of unveiling. Thus the first unveiling is a first Throne, and it is the first journey, [UNCLEAR: karami; term unclear] of beginninglessness; then the second unveiling is the second Throne of endlessness, [UNCLEAR: karami; term unclear] of duration. All these phases and cycles are the reality of Mercifulness and the truth of Compassionateness. The reality of Mercifulness is the secret of [UNCLEAR: al-marjahah; the precise meaning is uncertain] —I mean the breath ascribed to the manifest Presence of Lordship, and in its relation to the subtle things employed through dense things.

As for the secret of the veils—that is, emergence—our Prophet, peace be upon him, drew attention to it in his saying, reporting from his Lord: "Indeed, seventy veils of light and darkness: if He unveiled them, the splendors of His Face would burn whatever of His creation His gaze reaches." These veils are from your relation, not from His relation. They are not impossible on two grounds; those do not veil bodies, and the Real Most High is not a body. The third: the veiled must have a direction, whereas God Most High has no direction. Thus the veils of darkness are the veils of the fathers from the lights, and the veils of light are veils from the principles of the Essence—that is, its reality. Were it not for that, they would vanish.

* Know that subtle things carry dense things, and subtle things, if their parts are greater than the parts of dense things, and [UNCLEAR: wa-sa'layhi; damaged wording] upon it, by a subtlety from the secrets of numbers and the pacts of letters.

* Know that God's secrets, His objects of knowledge—the subtle things, the dense things, the upper entities, [UNCLEAR: al-salafiyyat; the category is obscure] , and the entities of the Malakut—are of two divisions: numbers and letters. The secrets of letters are in numbers, and manifestations

Numbers within letters; numbers are higher things belonging to spiritual beings, while letters belong to bodily and Malakūt circles. Numbers are the secret of sayings, and letters are the secret of actions. The world of the Throne is numbers, and the world of the Seat is letters; the relation of letters to numbers is like the relation of the Seat to the Throne. Through the secret of numbers, power was understood. For the Creator—glorified be He—praised Himself through the secret of numbers in the saying of God Most High: {And enough are We as reckoners}, and made His praise of letters return to Him in the saying of God Most High: {Read in the Name of your Lord}—the verse. Since the Situated Seat was connected to the essence of the Encompassing Seat, one of them was put later; the first and the last, the form of letters from numbers [UNCLEAR: the connection of these phrases and the agent of the postponement are unclear]. Therefore the rank of letters was put later. Through the secret of numbers, the secret of the divine intellect was understood, and through the secret of letters, the secret of the spiritual spirit was understood. The last rank of the intellect is the first rank of the higher soul, and it is also the first effusion. Letters are derived from the ḥarf of a thing, namely its edge, while number is its beginning and its middle; every beginning has a middle and an edge. Through the secret of letters, the secret of the Higher Seat and the Vast, Most Splendid Seat was understood. For the beings of the higher and lower world differ according to the difference of their essences in the Higher Seat and the difference of their transitions and phases in the Most Splendid Seat. The Vast Seat is the first of the beginnings of the Throne, in relation to the first emanations of the Malakūt realities; the last degree of the lower things draws its support from the first degree of the higher things. * Know that the Most Splendid Throne is the effusion of the first light, the Vast Seat is the effusion of the second light, and the Higher Seat is the effusion of the third light. The first effusion is richer; it is the first [UNCLEAR: the connection of 'richer' with 'it is the first' is unclear]. The third is the first of the letters and the last rank of number. This is the secret expressed as the reality of the human being, to which attention is drawn in the saying of God Most High: {Indeed, I am creating a human being from clay}. Then, when the two handfuls had been completed, addressing him, the human reality, became necessary [UNCLEAR: the grammatical relation of 'the human reality' to 'addressing him' is unclear]. God Most High then said: {So when I have formed him and breathed into him of My spirit, fall down prostrate before him}, meaning the last two handfuls and the first effusion. The world in its entirety, its higher and its lower, is through the reality of these three attributions. Among the beings of the world, some are purely one effusion, some carry two effusions, and some carry three; this is the world, the all-containing pole. Therefore the bearer remains fixed in relation to their essences, on the basis of the poverty of its known Seats, not altering the realities of their own numbers, nor changing the essences of their bodies through what appears in the world of human reality and the secret of composition [UNCLEAR: the pronoun referents and the grammatical attachment of 'not altering' are uncertain]. It belongs to the realities of the Higher Seat; that is in the world of Mulk [UNCLEAR: the referent of 'it' and its connection to human reality or composition are unclear]. The human reality of the world becomes manifest to him: the secret of the Vast Seat, the knowledge of Jabarūt [UNCLEAR: the grammatical connection among 'human reality', 'secret', and 'knowledge' is unclear]. Through it, within the realities of the higher spirit, the secrets of the Most Splendid Seat bear witness. Therein he witnesses the realities of the genesis of the Hereafter, namely the reality of the lofty breath; his essence is thus completed and his reality becomes manifest [UNCLEAR: the referent of 'he' is not explicit here]. So whoever leaves the straight line for the oblique and enters into fortification; for when an oblique line is added to an oblique line and you extend them, they meet and become straight. When it is added to the straight line and you extend them to their balance, they meet; and turning it toward manifestation, growth, stability, and witnessing, with a finite count [UNCLEAR: the subject and object of 'turning it', and the continuation of the opening 'whoever' clause, are unclear] . Then whoever, 'and in him' [UNCLEAR: the transition is broken] , when he passes to the world of Barzakh, ascends the three Throne-realities; 'what meets him', the first effusion [UNCLEAR: the grammatical connection of these phrases is unclear] , which is related to the Higher Seat, not the lower, for the Malakūt realities: a torment of shaping and burning in 'inṭāq bd wa-ʿqb' [UNCLEAR: the reading and meaning of this phrase are uncertain; inṭāq suggests making something speak] , mixed with the sulfur of distance, ablaze with the fire of the flaming heart-letters and a lack of listening [UNCLEAR: the grammatical link of 'lack of listening' to the preceding description is unclear] . This dark, subtle duration mixed with wrath is completed—may God protect us from it. * Then he is conveyed to the second phase of torment, which is the torment of human reality, just as the first torment is the reality of the dense bodily bearer. Those in whom there is the second effusion are tormented; it is the Vaster Seat. That is a torment

Torment of forming, for inversion and the stripping away of the actual powers of bodies: the wills are turned back from the vision of truth to the interior of the nourishing wisdom, and the essences of the inward forms are cast toward him. Whenever something among them loves him, his will aspires toward it, so that he may be inverted from it instantly; thus torment is united within him. Then what [UNCLEAR: the words mā razat do not yield a secure meaning] for him from the outward forms is multiplied, until those forms fully render their reality from him. It is then separated from him [UNCLEAR: what is separated is not specified] ; at that point he returns to the nourishing faculty and witnesses another form. Its beauty is multiplied for him many times over, and his will aspires toward it; then it is inverted upon him. He experiences multiplied pains and torment and kinds of humiliation such that he wishes he had not seen it. Of these there remains whatever God wills, under the rule of their [UNCLEAR: kashāfatihā, perhaps a damaged word for density] and their subtlety, until all those forms reach the Seat, all together. This is in the secret of the saying of God Most High: {Whenever their skins are burnt through, We replace them with other skins, so that they may taste the torment}. The skins are a table spread upon them, according to the nourishing faculty. The replacement of the essences of the forms refers back to the lordly descent, to transfer those forms. They possess beauty by virtue of their placement in the Seat; the numbers of their torments are multiplied only through the multiplication of the configurations of their beauty. Torment returns upon him; the lordly inversion in beauty remains in the faculties of the tormented [UNCLEAR: the connection between these clauses is uncertain] . God Most High said: {Then a wall was erected between them, with a gate; within it is mercy, and outside it, on its side, is torment}. If you wish to witness the reality of the absolute beauty that unites, how it became inverted into the very ugliness that distances: this is not an inversion in His essence, nor in His attributes, nor in His actions. Rather, it is the mirror of the first existence for whoever finds beneficence beautiful, and knowledge of justice is the secret of the left Handful. Every mercy is bounty, and every punishment is justice. And let there be a return to the Preventer, upon him, in realization [UNCLEAR: the reference and connection of “upon him” are uncertain] . Through the subtleties of thought we have pointed toward it: the observation of inversion in respect of descriptions, not in respect of essences, from the light of the High, the Most High, as a report concerning the Absolute Secret, the Clear Truth, the Light guiding to the straight path, the Highest Secret and the Most Exalted Balance, His Mighty Book, where He said: {Say: It is guidance and healing for those who believe}, up to His saying: {far}. The meaning of this is: say, it is guidance for those who believe in the abode of dominion, and it is blindness for them in the abode of Barzakh. Those are called from the doubting, tormenting forms, from a far place, because of the heaviness in their ears. When all the forms have been fully undergone, their essences succeeding one another with their different kinds and the renewal of their torment, the form-producing faculty of vision is stripped from him, and the second forms of torment disappear for him. This is the torment of the third effusion, and it is the relation of the Most Splendid Seat. It is the torment of the first ranks of the numbers connected with the first extremities of the letters. It is the torment of the spirit, expressed as the length of the soul. That is because the lordly speech, the most splendid vision, and the stripping off of the robe of purification have preceded; this is the most severe torment. Speech is brought forward through the precedence of utterance and the advancement of vision, and purification is brought forward through the absence of understanding of absolute perceptions, and burning fires, if he is thirsty from the intensity of the blaze [UNCLEAR: the relation of the fires and this condition to the preceding clauses is broken]. As for the lower letters, they cut their intestines, and they are [UNCLEAR: dīniyyah, literally "religious"; its meaning and referent here are uncertain]. They hope if they are hungry, and they are clothed if they are naked, from darkness and fear [UNCLEAR: the phrase "from darkness and fear" has an uncertain connection to the clothing or nakedness], until His High command and His complete judgment are obeyed, in the relation of one who spoke among them, from absence, and within them in the three worlds [UNCLEAR: the connection between "one who spoke among them," "from absence," and "within them" is broken]; and theirs is a painful torment. Then the veil is lifted from the eye of human insight, and there appear to him the secrets of the royal letters, the reality of the numbers of Malakūt, and the spring of life: I mean the honored Pool reserved for the Prophet, peace be upon him. This is if we intend the world of Barzakh; otherwise judgment follows him, torment cuts him off, enumeration seizes him, and confinement individualizes him until the day of the collective Resurrection. * As for what we have mentioned of the [UNCLEAR: marr, possibly "passage," but its meaning here is uncertain] of the subtle realities subsisting in the [UNCLEAR: katāʾif, as written with t; the intended word is uncertain], they are the secret of the reality of that; learn it. Truly, whoever has known himself has known his Lord, and nothing is nobler than knowledge of God; so understand the secret of this

The subtlety [UNCLEAR: opening fragment]: understanding the secret of the subtle soul and its proportion in relation to dense things. Understand this fundamental secret through knowledge of the self and the inner nature of the causes of the spiritual austerities that lead to it in its entirety. After that, there will open to you, from the divine effusion and opening, that which takes you out of the circle of Turkish limitation (al-turkī) [UNCLEAR: the intended sense of "Turkish"] into the circle of formal unboundedness. This covering will be unveiled, space will widen for you, and you will ascend to the Lote Tree of the Utmost Boundary and be bewildered in the spacious heart of the Garden of Abode. What I have brought forth of these divine secrets in Sufi expression is in pursuit of God's good pleasure, and I offer them as a gift before my private conversation. Then you witness their suns, of life, and the symbol concerning the eye of his insight [UNCLEAR: syntax and possessive referents]; his harm and the sinking in the world of his thought disappear [UNCLEAR: whose harm and thought are meant]. I hope that he will be my companion in the Highest Assembly and sit with me in the most splendid garden [UNCLEAR: the hoped-for companion is not identified], because of the saying of God Most High: “And cooperate in virtue and God-fear”; and as the Prophet, peace be upon him, said: “A person's faith is not complete until he loves for his brother what he loves for himself.”

(A subtlety) Know that the abode of the Barzakh needs the realities of the things of the Malakūt. It is only reflected in the things of the Barzakh, so it is with the spirit, and the phantoms appear [UNCLEAR: what is reflected and how the clauses connect], as mentioned in the saying of the Prophet, peace be upon him: “Whoever institutes a good practice has its reward and the reward of whoever acts upon it until the Day of Resurrection.” I have a covenant and a pledge binding those who are characterized by purity and clothed in the mantle of faithfulness: whenever they peruse the curtain of this upright canon and contemplate the secret of this straight path, they are to turn their eyes away from the grossness of the wording and look with the eye of perfection at what is hidden.

* Know that the parts of the world, upper and lower, are gathered into parts whose numbers are three thousand thousand thousand thousand, and four hundred thousand, and sixty-eight thousand thousand, and one hundred thousand thousand, and one hundred thousand, and forty thousand, and two hundred, and twelve. These numbers are encompassed in your dense self, and the proportion of your Malakūt-form is the remainder of the preceding number [UNCLEAR: the syntax of the relation between the dense self and the remainder]. Thus the subtle and the dense things are confined within the composite form. Whoever discovers this reality reaches the marr of gratitude [UNCLEAR: the meaning of marr] and the valley of love.

* As for the proportion of the spirits in relation to what was mentioned before, what sustains them from the Great, Beloved, Manifest, Illuminating divine Spirit is one part of thirty thousand thousand. This part bears the dense things of the composite world. If you wish to understand that, divide the total number, which is thirty-two thousand thousand, and six hundred thousand thousand, and fifty-eight thousand, by two hundred thousand and fifty thousand, by twenty-one thousand and six hundred, then by three hundred and five [UNCLEAR: the grouping of the divisions is not explicit]. Extract the quotient and make it a number, for it is the original result. Take it and gather it as letters; then enter into those Names and realize the named realities to which it applies [UNCLEAR: the referent of “it”]. For it is it [UNCLEAR: referent not established]. Then confine yourself where [UNCLEAR: damaged syntax], with the hidden secret and full knowledge. “God makes those who believe firm with the firm word in the life of this world and in the Hereafter.” God, an eye in the world, His reality [UNCLEAR: the preceding verb reads “appeared”, but the construction is corrupt]. And He spread His mercy over us; indeed, He is Noble, Kind, Merciful. This, then, is the reality of the tashkīk of the spirits, the supplies, and the realities of the veiled, abiding in the lights of Majesty [UNCLEAR: the sense of tashkīk and the linkage of the following words]. Believe in it, and attach it with trust, affirming its truth [UNCLEAR: the attachment and its object are uncertain]. May God have mercy on you with wide mercy through His favor and generosity. He bestows universal beneficence, and God guides whom He wills to a straight path. May God bless our master Muhammad and his family and his companions, and grant peace.

(Chapter Twelve: On the Greatest Name and Its Hidden Operations)

* Know—may God grant success to me and to you—that the Greatest Name of God has properties and indications. I have explained them so that the secrets within them may be seen, that its seeker may benefit from it and understand its meanings and wonders. The author states that this Name heals illnesses and pains and hastens recovery, and that it is the fortified fortress.

* Among its properties, according to the author: if it is written and placed with a dead person, that person is safe from the torment of the grave. And among…
